Greek Rebellion 'Lost,' Venizelos Flees, Wounded

Turk Warships Enter Aegean Sea After Islands Fall.

Desertions Cripple Revolution Ranks

By the United Press.

Athens, March 9.—With wholesale desertions from rebel ranks and their commander in chief, Eleutherios Venizelos, reported wounded and fleeing, the Greek revolutionist cause appeared desperate today.

Gen. Camenos, its northern leader, was quoted by the government as declaring, "We are lost." His declaration came at the end of a message addressed to his troops and intercepted by government radio.

Meanwhile, a squadron of Turkish warships, headed by the battle cruiser Yavuz, was reported at Istanbul to have proceeded into the Aegean Sea because of the occupation by Greek rebels of islands near the Turkish coast.

The Athens government, jubilant over the prospects of an early termination of its struggle, declared the rebel forces have become demoralized and broken.

Rebel Mutiny Rumored.

An unconfirmed report spread through Athens that the crew of the rebel cruiser Averoff had mutinied and thrown their commander, Col. I. Alexis, into the sea.

Communists were adding their subversive influence to the rebel troops. In the towns of Drama and Cavalla, Communist groups demanded that the rebel officers obey the commands of Communist noncommissioned officers on penalty of a counter-rebellion.

Some of the rebels are said to have imprisoned the metropolitan of the church and several high prelates because they declined to join the revolution.

Venizelos is aboard a destroyer bound for Egypt, according to a wireless message picked up by a Yugoslavian steamer.

Receipt of the message was confirmed by official sources.

It was presumed that Venizelos was wounded in the rain of bombs and naval shells showered over Crete during the last two days, or in the airplane assault on his residence at Canea.

The message was intercepted by the steamer Vitsova, which was near Volos at the time.

Venizelos was presumed to be headed for Alexandria.

Meanwhile, Gen. George Condylis planned an even closer encirclement of the rebels in Macedonia in an attempt to force their surrender.

Waits Better Weather.

"With an improvement in weather conditions," Premier Panayoti Tsaldaris declared, "the rebellion in Macedonia can last only a few hours more."

Heavy guns pounded rebel positions yesterday and tons of bombs were poured on their strongholds from a fleet of 12 powerful airplanes.

A section of Seres-Drama Railway was bombed and destroyed, crippling the enemy's movements and disrupting his morale.

That the revolution has not been crushed, however, was indicated

Salaries Voted 1,200 'Payless'

Sub-Committee Compromise Sets Compensation for Dec. 1 to May 15.

Payment of the salaries of 1,200 employes of the alcohol tax unit, Internal Revenue Bureau of the Treasury, from December 1 to May 15, was agreed to yesterday by the Senate Treasury-Postoffice Appropriations sub-committee.

Decision of the committee was a compromise. It means that all of the employes of the unit who have been working without pay since December 1 will get their pay until May 15 and after if the action is ultimately approved.

About 450, however, will go out of the service after May 15.

Plight of the employes was made the subject of a special message to Congress from President Roosevelt. Their trouble arose out of the so-called McKellar rider. This provided that after December 1, last, appropriations might not be used to pay the salaries of agents unless they had passed civil service examinations. Senator Kenneth J. McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, had the rider adopted after a prolonged fight, in the course of which he charged that only Republicans held such jobs in his State.

The McKellar rider was aimed at 450 former prohibition agents. The comptroller general ruled that the language of the act applied also to several hundred other employes whom it was not intended to affect.

King May Become Dionnes' Guardian

By the Associated Press.

Toronto, March 8.—The Ontario government moved today to secure new guardians for the Dionne quintuplets by making them "special wards of His Majesty the King as represented by the minister of public welfare of Ontario."

A bill was introduced in the Legislature by David A. Croll, the welfare minister, empowering the Cabinet to appoint a board of guardians with authority over the finances, education and physical well-being of the children. These "active guardians" will share authority with the father, Oliva Dionne, the "natural guardian," and with Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe.

All the guardians would be directly responsible to the minister whose approval is essential to all contracts and who will hold the quintuplets' money in trust for them until they become 18.

League Action Likely to End Balkan Crisis

By the United Press.

Geneva, March 8.—The League of Nations may take action in what is now regarded as the gravest threat to Balkan peace since the World War.

The league leadership, alarmed by Bulgarian declarations that Turkey is undertaking threatening military movements near the border, and Turkey's stiff reply that these movements are necessary because of the Greek revolt, probably will present the case to the members of the league council for definite action.

The Balkans, almost overnight, thus have become again a potential source of international explosion. Greece's neighbors have taken advantage of the rebellion as an excuse for throwing their finest troops into frontier posts.

Treaties Set at Naught.

All the political moves that have been made within recent years by the Little Entente and the Balkan Entente appear tonight to be jeopardized.

King Boris of Bulgaria was known to have met with the general staff and the supreme war council to examine the whole Balkan situation. As result of this conference, more troops are to be dispatched to the Greek frontier.

Messages from Sofia, however, stressed that Bulgaria has no ambition to extend her territories, and that she "merely intends to keep her frontiers inviolate."

Three French warships anchored in Greek waters today, joining two British warships, to protect their nationals in event of a rebel bombardment of Athens and other cities.

Since early morning cannon have boomed in the fog along Greece's northeastern frontier, indicating a heavy artillery duel between the rebel and government forces.

Commercial planes, in their last flights over Greece, reported roads choked with long columns of infantry and horse-drawn supply carts.

Turks Near Thrace.

Geneva today heard that the Turks were moving infantry, in full war equipment, to within 3 miles of the Thracian frontier.

Senate Votes 400 Millions To the Army

Authority to Enlarge the Force to 165,000 Men Also Is Granted.

Nye Warns 'Challenge' Will Stir Action by Other Nations.

By the Associated Press.

The Senate ended a three-day battle over armaments yesterday by voting a near record $400,000,000 for the War Department with authority to increase the standing army from 118,750 to 165,000.

Considerably changed by the Senate, the bill will go to conference with the House. The vote on passage was 68 to 15.

"Assuredly our challenge is going to invite competition of other nations," warned Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, in assailing the authorized increase in the Army.

"We are continuing the game of bullying, of encouraging and of enticing the thing no one here desires to engage in.

Increase Is Assailed.

"We are justifying this increase on the basis of activities of other lands which have seen fit to increase their armies in preparation for war. While we are seeking to justify expenditures on the basis of what others are doing, the others are doing the very same thing on the basis of what we are doing."

He said the Army appropriation did not represent all that the military forces would get during the year, adding that $400,000,000 had been given the Army and Navy during the last two years from public works funds.

In an effort to prevent further such allotments, Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, introduced an amendment to the work relief bill to bar the use of any of that money for military purposes.

King Loses on Protest.

The major increase attached by the Senate was that of $20,000,000 to finance Army expansion, the House having provided simply "such additional sums as may be needed."

Senator King (Democrat), Utah, protested such blanket authority, but his motion to send it back to committee to trim off $50,000,000 was defeated.

A proposal by Senator Bone (Democrat), Washington, to require that the pay of labor in arsenals equal the pay in navy yards also was defeated.

Included in the bill as passed was an amendment by Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, providing for establishment of a National Guard air base in Mississippi. It provided no specific appropriation, although Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, protested it would cost $375,000 and require an annual outlay of $190,000 for maintenance.

See Amendment Killed.

Of the total, about $50,000,000 was for nonmilitary purposes, such as river and harbor improvement.

The 15 voting against the measure on final passage included both Democrats and Republicans. They were:

Democrats—Bulow, Clark, Costigan, King, Long, Murray and Pope.

South Dakota Passes Legal Liquor Measure

Pierre, S. Dak., March 8 (AP).—South Dakota, dry for 18 years under one of the most drastic prohibition laws in the Nation, will have legal liquor again.

After backing and filling through 59 days of its 60-day session, the State Legislature finally completed action on the bill to legalize alcoholic beverages. Gov. Tom Berry is expected to sign it shortly. Carrying an emergency clause, the law will become effective immediately the Governor signs.

Enter Gen. Butler! Assails Gen. Johnson

By the United Press.

Philadelphia, March 8. — Gen. Smedley D. Butler tonight joined Father Charles E. Coughlin and Senator Huey P. Long in their attack against Gen. Hugh S. Johnson.

Butler called Johnson "the mouthpiece and circus barker of the speculators, profiteers and money frabbers," adding, that the fight between Coughlin and Long on one side and Johnson on the other "is likely to finish the political career of Johnson's best friend—President Roosevelt."

Butler also sided with Senator Long in calling for an investigation of Postmaster General James A. Farley, declaring "he has time to be Postmaster General, he has time to be National Democratic Chairman, he has time to be New York State Democratic chairman, he has time to run around the country. I guess he can spare the time to tell the country about himself."

President Sees Holmes Buried At Arlington

Dr. Pierce Reads Service; Notables of Capital Attend Funeral.

By Gerald G. Gross.

Oliver Wendell Holmes was laid to rest yesterday on the heights of Arlington. The President of the United States looked on and so did Mrs. Roosevelt, several of the late justice's former associates on the Nation's highest bench, Senators, Representatives, diplomats and a host of other dignitaries. Had he lived, yesterday would have been his ninety-fourth birthday.

Immediately outside the enclosure, pressing against the ropes, stood a few hundred men and women of no official status. Many carried umbrellas to keep off the fine sleet which beat down from a leaden sky.

President Roosevelt, who had driven to Arlington National Cemetery directly from the White House, was among the earliest arrivals. He was standing beneath a canopy, the chill wind hurling sleet against his face, as the caisson bearing the body of "the great liberal of the Supreme Court" rounded the last corner of the drive and came into view.

Plane Dips Over Grave.

Almost at the same moment a white air transport swooped dangerously low above the heads of the mourners. This was no preconceived salute, but the involuntary gesture of a pilot, contending with poor visibility and a low ceiling, apparently trying to land his ship safely at the nearby Washington airport.

Three minutes later the service was ready to begin. Mrs. Roosevelt, who had attended the brief rites at All Souls Church with Prof. and Mrs. Felix Frankfurter, was by her husband's side. Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and six Associate Justices stood alongside the casket. The inclement weather prevented the participation of Justices Van Devanter and Brandeis.

President Roosevelt removed his hat as the Army Band began to play "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" in funereal tempo. At the finish, and as the Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce pronounced the first line of the Twenty-third Psalm, the sleet storm was increasing in intensity.

There was no eulogy, just the

Farley Probe Voted Down By Senators

Long's Charges Branded 'Indefinite Hearsay' by Committee.

G. O. P. Minority Insists on Open Inquiry to Allay Suspicion.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Branding the charges of Senator Huey P. Long (Democrat), of Louisiana, as "vague and indefinite hearsay and rumor," the Senate Postoffice and Post Roads Committee yesterday rejected the "Kingfish's" resolution calling for an investigation of Postmaster General James A. Farley.

The committee unanimously agreed that Senator Long "has not produced facts or evidence constituting a proper case for investigation," but five Republicans on the committee dissented from the further conclusion that the resolution of investigation should be rejected and that "no committee of investigation" should be appointed.

The Republican minority held that while Senator Long had failed to present sufficient facts, the charges against the Cabinet officer were so grave that a suspicion had been created in the mind of the country that nothing short of an open, all-inclusive and impartial inquiry would allay this suspicion.

McKellar Upholds Farley.

The committee's report, adopted late in the day, was read to the Senate by Senator Kenneth McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, before a week-end adjournment. He added a spirited denial that Mr. Farley had intervened in the Tennessee bank inquiry and held that four grand juries had absolved those involved of any wrong-doing.

The Tennesseean assailed the "Kingfish" for "muck-raking" and casting aspersions in his bank scandal charge on "as honorable men as may be found anywhere." Senator Long's only reply on the Senate floor was to cite a letter from a national bank examiner to a Federal district attorney charging "fictitious entries" in the books of the American National Bank of Nashville for purposes of "padding or window dressing" to deceive examiners and the public.

Senator Long had what he said was a photostatic copy of this letter read to the Senate earlier in the day and before the committee acted.

At the time he presented what purported to be an affidavit from a former carpenter's union official charging that crates in which glass arrived for the new Interstate Commerce Commission Building here had been destroyed on arrival in order to conceal the inferiority of the glass and the fact that it had been purchased from a concern in which Mr. Farley was alleged to have an interest.

Promises Other Documents.

After the Senate adjourned, the "Kingfish" said these were but "lead-off documents" in a series he would lay before the Senate from time to time. He characterized the committee's report rejecting his proposal for an inquiry as "a Farley report."

"The only mistake the Senate made was sending the resolution for an investigation to the committee," he said. "Its report says Farley says this and that isn't true and that Farley says there is no need of an investigation of him because it isn't true and so the committee says there is no need for an inquiry. Farley could have written his reply direct to the Senate."

The majority report was based in large part on quotations from

Filibuster on Works Compels Recess, Delays Wage Ballot

Prospective Radio Blast by Father Coughlin on Monday Night Motivates Senators in Holding Up Vote on Amendment.

By Robert C. Albright.

A short-lived but successful filibuster on the President's works and relief bill yesterday forced a Saturday recess of the Senate, delaying a vote on labor's pivotal prevailing wage amendment until next week.

Adapting the Administration's own strategy of "carrying the issue to the country," prevailing wage advocates claimed a tactical advantage in the delay.

Senate leaders, canvassing their own strength in preparation for a show-down, put up no real resistance.

It was learned that a strong motive behind the belated filibuster was desire to hold up a vote until a radio blast from Father Charles E. Coughlin Monday night, for the prevailing wage. One speech by the Detroit priest flooded the Senate with telegrams against World Court entry, and a few hard-pressed Labor Senators would not be adverse to another deluge.

For four hours yesterday, a vote on the War Department appropriation bill hung fire, although the bill was completed and awaiting a ballot. It had been announced that the works bill was the next order of business.

Speech after speech on extraneous matters were poured into the record, concluding with one by Senator Huey P. Long, of Louisiana. Long refused to subside until Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, in charge of the works bill, promised there would be no prevailing wage vote until Monday at the earliest.

Huey glibly tossed gibes at colleagues reported to have changed their stand on the prevailing wage issue after assurance of Administration grants to their States.

"Why didn't they call on me?" he shouted. "I might be in the market and open to a bargain.

"It ain't fair to tell some Senators, 'If you'll vote against the prevailing wage, we'll spend $150,000,000 in your State.' I resent anybody calling on anyone before me. I might have done it for less."

He sardonically proposed an NRA code for the Senate, setting up rules "under which a vote may be changed." He said there ought to be a committee of three to enforce it, that he should be chairman of the committee.

Long took his seat as soon as

Cuban Government Paralyzed As State Department Strikes

By the Associated Press

Havana, March 8.—Employes of the Cuban state department quit work tonight, leaving only two government departments operating fully as President Carlos Mendieta's administration took vigorous steps to break strikes gripping the nation.

The cabinet authorized the secretary of the interior to issue provisional licenses to individual citizens to carry arms. This was to give employes filling strikers' jobs means of protecting themselves.

A bomb heavily damaged one of several water mains at Marianao, which carried Havana's water supply, in the newest flare-up of violence.

With some observers expressing the opinion that the strike movement threatened the entire political, educational and commercial structure of the island, the administration faced this situation:

1. All but two government departments partially or completely paralyzed by walkouts.

2. Nearly 400,000 school teachers and students out of classrooms leading the movement for Mendieta's overthrow.

3. Street car traffic in Havana almost completely stopped, the few cars operating having nonunion men aboard.

4. Newspaper publication virtually suspended by strikes of employes protesting government censorship.

5. Emergency hospital and first aid stations functioning in makeshift style because workers were out.

6. No customs or tax collection because of the strike in the treasury department.

7. Port traffic seriously hampered by the strike of customs inspectors.

8. The postoffice closed, no mail moving in or out of Cuba and none

President Challenges Authority of McCarl In Navy Fund Dispute

36 Reds Working in Navy Yard Here, Officer Tells House Probe

Says Sabotage Is Feared; Legislation Likely to Permit Dismissal.

By Douglas Warrenfels.

Thirty-six known Communists are employed at Washington Navy Yard, records of a House committee disclosed yesterday.

A transcript of the testimony of Commander S. A. Clement before a House Military Affairs sub-committee revealed Navy Department officials fear a substantial number of Communists working in all Federal navy yards will commit sabotage.

Clement's charges are expected to result in legislation to permit dismissal of "red" workmen in both Federal and privately-owned ship yards.

The commander was cross-examined on the issue after Chairman McCormack, of the special House committee on un-American activities, told the sub-committee Clement informed his group 23 known Communists were among civilian employes at the Washington yard last December and that the number since had increased to 36.

The transcript revealed the following colloquy:

"Clement—I think I brought out that in the civilian organization of navy yards the Communist party has 'cells' (chapters) in practically every navy yard. * * * In the Brooklyn yard there is a big section. * * *

"The Communist party is something that you don't know where it

Bomb Mailed to Long Proves to Be a Fake

By the United Press.

Waterbury, Conn., March 8.—Joe Kelly, fearless janitor of the Waterbury Postoffice, today exposed an attempt to frighten Senator Huey P. Long with a "dud" bomb.

Postal workers heard an ominous ticking inside a package. When they saw the address they rushed to the rear of the building, doused the bundle in a barrel of water and sent out alarms to postal inspectors at Boston, Waterbury police, State police and chemical experts at the Scoville Manufacturing Co.

Meantime, Janitor Kelly pulled the bundle apart and discovered several sticks simulating dynamite, some tinfoil and wire and a note to the Kingfish stating "We all make mistakes; this goes to show you can make yours."

NRA Fosters Trusts, Borah And Glass Say

Take Issue With Richberg, Johnson; Hold 'Little Man' Is Crushed.

By Felix Bruner.

NRA came under the fire of two of the Senate's most experienced warriors yesterday, Senator Borah and Senator Glass.

Taking issue with Donald R. Richberg, New Deal coordinator, who testified earlier in the day before the Senate Finance Committee, and with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, who spoke on the radio Thursday night, the two veteran Senators laid down a withering bombardment of words.

Both Borah and Glass attacked the alleged monopolistic provisions of the NRA and insisted that the codes were driving small business men into bankruptcy. Glass demanded that the same efforts that have gone into NRA enforcement be used to enforce the anti-trust laws. He referred to Recovery Administration as "abominable."

Richberg had urged that Congress act speedily on NRA legislation and, defending the recovery organization, declared that it had provided 3,000,000 new jobs.

Carried to Senate Floor.

Gen. Johnson had intimated that the advance of civilization might mean elimination of the small business man.

Nearly every word of Richberg's testimony was questioned by at least one of the dozen Senators who sat in a semicircle around him in the crowded committee room. Smiling, puffing continually on a cigar, Richberg parried every thrust. He was told to appear again today.

The committee had not been adjourned an hour before the argument was carried to the Senate floor.

At the committee hearing Senator La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin, questioned Richberg's figures. He produced statistics to show that

Denies Group Represents Works; Green Assails Labor Board.

The automobile industry yesterday refused to deal with the American Federation of Labor.

Turning down a request for a conference, the Automobile Manufacturers Association told William Green, president of the federation, that it did not believe Green's organization represented automobile workers generally.

Green replied that the action of the manufacturers was "characteristic," and that their stand confirmed the contention of the labor group that the Automobile Labor Board was serving the purpose of the automobile makers.

Letter Sent to Green.

The manufacturers' statement was in the form of a letter to Green. It marked another chapter in the controversy between the industry and the labor group, which started more than a year ago.

The federation is at present taking a strike vote. Whether a strike will be authorized, Green said, depends on the result of the ballot. It is being taken in 176 unions.

"The manufacturers," the letter sent to Green said, "bargain collectively with their respective employes through representatives of their employes' own choosing, in accordance with the settlement made by the President of the United States on March 25, 1934, in accordance with the law."

The settlement to which the letter referred resulted in appointment of the Automobile Labor Board, headed by Dr. Leo Wolman. The A. F. of L. recently withdrew from cooperation with the board, charging it was working in the interest of the manufacturers.

The letter, signed by Alfred Reeves, vice president of the association, declared that manufacturers are in regular negotiation with bar-

Housewives' Leader Predicts Rebellion on Rising Food Costs

By the Associated Press

Chicago, March 8.—Right now American housewives are changing their buying policies to meet the problem of rising food costs.

But if prices keep going up, "women will rebel!" Thus Mrs. Wilbur Fribley, president of the Housewives League of America, detailed the tactics adopted by the Nation's largest purchasing class today.

This was the burden of her opinion:

"We stretched our budgets as much as we could. Now we are doing some deep thinking, rearranging our menus, buying cheaper foods and substituting staples for many luxuries. We are using more lowly vegetables, such as parsnips and carrots, instead of expensive green groceries.

"More people who relished Brussells sprouts are eating cabbage now. More fish is finding its way to the table. It's cheaper than meat and people don't eat as much. We have gone back to the old method of buying by price instead of by quality."

Mrs. Fribley recalled statistics placing food costs at a level 15 per cent higher than a year ago and an Agricultural Department estimate that they might ascend another 11 per cent in 1935.

She epitomized the reaction of the women of the land in this statement:

"We wouldn't mind higher prices if our husbands' incomes were boosted, too.

"The problem is being discussed everywhere," she said. "It's the main topic of conversation in women's organizations. We blame it all on the AAA and the Government.

"If prices continue to mount, there will be organized opposition later on. Women will rebel! We won't buy and we can't buy."

Swanson Told to Ignore Comptroller General on Expenditures.

Clash Is Discussed In Cabinet Session

And Final Word Is Left to Attorney General Under Decision.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Setting a precedent which may have far-reaching effect, President Roosevelt announced yesterday that he and his Cabinet have decided to back Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson in the latter's fight with Comptroller General J. R. McCarl.

The Navy Department, he disclosed, has been ordered to pay the traveling expenses of retired officers, en route home from distant points, in spite of McCarl's ruling that such payment would be in violation of law, and in the face of the heretofore prevailing opinion that the Comptroller General is beyond the reach even of the President.

The question is a minor one, concerning the expenditure of only a few thousand dollars a year. What made it significant was the fact that, for the first time since the office was established by Congress in 1921, an Administration was challenging the final authority of the Comptroller General.

Move Sets Precedent.

Criticism of this latest onslaught against McCarl—regarded as an officer of the legislative branch of Government—was expressed, earlier in the day, at a House committee hearing, and a movement was launched in the Senate to reappoint the Comptroller General for another 15-year term.

Mr. McCarl, a strait-laced Republican appointed by President Harding, has been a thorn in the side of the Administration ever since it embarked on its huge spending program. But never before have instructions gone forth that his decisions were to be ignored.

In some quarters the President's action was interpreted as the first step toward a general breakdown of the budget and accounting act, under which Congress sought to set up an independent agency to rule on expenditures.

Matter Before Cabinet.

The President and his advisers, however, disagree with this interpretation, it is believed, since the theory behind the flouting of the comptroller general is that he is not, and in reality never has been, the final arbiter. Under this theory, it is the Attorney General who has the final authority, as he is the only official with power to enforce a decision of the comptroller general.

In reply to an inquiry, Mr. Roosevelt said the matter was discussed at yesterday's Cabinet meeting. He pointed out that naval officers can

Boy, 7, Killed; Manhunt Starts

By the United Press.

Ypsilanti, Mich., March 8.—The frozen and mutilated body of 7-year-old Richard Streicher, jr., son of a wealthy Ypsilanti manufacturer, was found late today with five stab wounds in the chest, forming a large cross.

The body was discovered by Buck Holt, 13, schoolboy chum of Richard, under a narrow footbridge leading to an island in the Huron River.

Gov. La Follette Urges Larger Work Program

$4,000,000,000 U. S. Plan Too Small, He Says in Asking New Policy.

By the Associated Press.

Madison, Wis., March 8.—Gov. Philip F. La Follette, standard bearer of the new Progressive Party, tonight declared the time has come for a fundamental change in the governmental policy of meeting the depression and outlined four kinds of public and private works he said would give employment to upward of 350,000 Wisconsin men for one to two years, if done all at once.

In a radio address, the Governor said he has prepared the plan which would be financed by Federal, State and local governments, but that he would not reveal its details until the Wisconsin Legislature has disposed of the general budget bill.

In announcing he would ask his State to take the initiative in organizing its human and material resources to provide work, La Follette said that during the last five years both Government and citizens have been wasting the wealth of the country by supporting idle men, factories, machinery, and land.

"Production of Wealth."

From now on, he added, the objective must be "production of wealth, and not its reduction."

The Governor said proper criticism of the $4,000,000,000 Federal work program is not that it is too large, but that it is too small.

"I do not dispute," he said, "that $4,000,000,000 is a lot of money. But let us not forget what has been spent, and above all what has been lost. In the last five years we have lost enough through idleness to buy the whole of the United States, lock, stock and barrel."

Wisconsin, the Governor said, has completed a survey of available works which is applicable to every other State.

"It does not include all work that could be done, but it does answer once and for all those reactionaries who claim we have no work for the unemployed," he said.

Outlines Jobs.

He enumerated these mediums of employment:

Work for 100,000 men for two years, conserving natural resources; preventing top-soil erosion; improving fertility of good farm lands and quality of livestock; restocking forests, streams and lakes with fish and game, and building back our timber resources.

Jobs for 100,000 men for two years through ordinary repair work on farm and city homes.

Extension of modern conveniences to farms and homes, thus providing jobs for one year for 15,000 bricklayers, 30,000 carpenters, 8,000 plasterers, 12,000 sheet-metal workers, 25,000 painters, 15,000 plumbers, 3,000 electricians, 15,000 roofers, 40,000 semi-skilled laborers and 14,000 common laborers.

Plan for Financing.

He also proposed work in repairing and constructing streets and highways, sewer and other utility systems, in electrifying farms and in building schools.

"This program will cost money," he said, "but it can be financed through the joint efforts of the Federal, State and local governments.

"The detailed plan will be presented to our Legislature. The first year it will take more money than to keep people on the dole. But here is the essential difference:

"When we support people in idleness we get nothing back. When we pay people for work—either for the Government or in private employment—we get something in return for our money."

Transient Killed by Train.

Newport News, Va., March 8 (AP).—Frederick A. Jones, stationed at the Fort Eustis Transient Camp, was killed last night when struck by a train on the C. & O. main line near here. He was believed to have gone to sleep on the tracks. Efforts are being made to locate his relatives.

Between You and Me

Huey's 'Share-the-Wealth' Plan on Thin Ice; Truck Regulations; A Holmes Anecdote.

By Raymond Clapper

HUEY LONG is getting out on thin ice. He has been under pressure to be specific about his "Share Our Wealth" program and he is yielding to it. A plausible politician can go a long ways so long as he sticks to generalities. When he begins to be specific he gets into trouble.

The Kingfish's "Share Our Wealth" mirage has lured millions of persons. But if he lets them come too close they are going to discover that there is nothing there but hot sand. That is the danger he is in at the moment. His power has skyrocketed in recent months.

Knowing he had a record-breaking audience on the air Wednesday night, Huey was tempted to put on a high-pressure sales talk. Some here were inclined to think yesterday that he had oversold his wealth-sharing program and exposed fantastic and flimsy underprops.

* * * *

Many minds have tackled the question of redistribution of wealth and numerous carefully thought-out programs have been suggested.

But when Long attempted to explain the mechanism by which he would share the wealth, it was disclosed that he had nothing to work with except monkey wrenches and nuts.

* * * *

No one could own a fortune in excess of from three to four million dollars. He proposes that the surplus of all fortunes above this maximum should become the property of the United States. How would this money be captured by the United States Treasury?

"Not hard to do," Long says. "We would not do it by making everyone sell what he owned; no. We would send everyone a questionnaire. On that he would list the properties he owns, lands and houses, stocks and bonds, factories and patents, etc. Every man would place his appraisal on his property, which the Government would review and maybe change on some items.

"On that appraisal the big fortune holder would say out of what property he would retain the few million allowed to him, the balance to go to the United States."

"Say Mr. Henry Ford should show that he owned all the stock of the Ford Motor Co., worth, say, $2,000,000,000," Long continues. "He could claim, say, $4,000,000 of the Ford stock, but $1,996,000,000 would go to the United States. Say the Rockefeller fortune was listed at $10,000,000,000 in oil stocks, bank stocks, money and stores. Each Rockefeller could say whether he wanted his limit in either the money, oil or bank stock, but about $9,800,000,000 would go to the Government."

And then what? Henry Ford, turned into a minority stockholder, takes his $4,000,000 and goes to Florida to loaf. The Government, as a majority stockholder, takes control. Well, the Government builds warships and if it can do that, even though it depends far more than the public suspects upon the designers and engineers of private shipbuilding companies, it probably could run the Ford automobile factories after a fashion. Then the Rockefellers. Presumably one of the things they would let the Government take would be Radio City. It loses a lot of money and somebody would have to continue taking care of a good fat deficit every year. Uncle Sam would soon have a fine collection of cats and dogs.

And surely big corporations like the huge life insurance companies are going to be required to share their wealth too, aren't they? Or would the Government merely take stocks and bonds when held in large blocks by individuals and let great corporations with millions of reserves piled up go scott free simply because their ownership is scattered instead of concentrated in the hands of one millionaire?

A real economist could ask more pointed questions than these. Perhaps Long knows all of the answers, but he has succeeded thus far only in exposing his own plan as a program for chaotic and spotty socialism. It is not even selective socialism, such as socialization of natural resource industries. It is accidental socialism. It would set up an indiscriminate mixture of State and privately owned enterprises. And throughout it assumes that values are fixed and would remain stable despite changes of ownership; that, for instance, Ford's business would not be affected were his personality to be disassociated from its active management.

Those are obvious questions which occur to every one when Long begins to take his work of art apart so the crowd can see what makes it tick. The old magicians found it was easier to hold an audience by keeping it mystified.

It is not so much the theory of Federal regulation that truck operators fear in connection with the Eastman proposals for bringthem under ICC control as it is the dead hand of red tape.

They have seen what regulation of rates has done to the railroads. Rate classifications become frozen and result in ridiculous inequities. For instance, if a piece of steel of a certain type is shipped, it goes at one rate. But if it has a hole bored in it, it must go at a higher rate, although it is no more bulky than before and actually weighs less. Traffic men can cite scores of such instances. Truck operators dread the prospect of having to haggle over such classification matters instead of simply hauling a load for a fixed price.

Another thing—the procedure of changing rate classifiactions, or of obtaining permits to operate, as developed in railroad regulation by the ICC, has become a complicated expensive and time-consuming process, requiring employment of legal counsel and frequent trips to Washington. Small truck operators say that only the largest concerns could afford to go through such procedure.

Those who have given careful study to the problem of truck regulation feel that it is essential, if they come under ICC regulation, that a new technique of regulation adapted to truck traffic is necessary. They do not believe that red-tape methods, developed for railroads before the automobile appeared, should be imposed on an entirely different mode of transportation.

'Spirits' Talked To Mrs. Tabor, Her Diary Said

'Baby Doe' Died of Heart Attack, Belief; Rites to Be Near Mine.

By the Associated Press.

Leadville, Colo., March 8.—The spruce-clad hills which were the background of her hey-day will be the final haven of Mrs. Elizabeth (Baby Doe) Tabor.

She will be buried here, not far from the Matchless Mine lean-to where she lived and died in the years of her poverty—years given to the keeping of a promise to her late husband, H. A. W. Tabor, to hold on to the abandoned mine from which he reaped millions.

A March wind churned up a spray of salt-like snow today as her brother, William E. McCourt, went to the shack to piece together the story of her end.

As he left the main road and tramped through a foot of packed snow McCourt told the small party accompanying him that his sister was 83 years old and not 73 as the world generally had supposed.

Kept Diary on Calendar.

On a large red and black figure calendar, tacked upon the wall, was what amounted to a cryptic diary.

The final notation, apparently scrawled with pencil February 22: "Mr. D. and lady came." Another notation made February 20 said "I went down to Leadville. Mr. Zaitz's boy drove me home. I went down got food home."

For February 21 there was scribbled the one word, "spirits." Some of those who inspected the cabin said they found on another date the notation: "Spirits—I talked with three."

"The body was frozen stiff," said Coroner James Corbett, "but our investigation now shows Mrs. Tabor did not freeze to death." The coroner said he believed a heart attack preceded Mrs. Tabor's death.

Silver Coffin Suggested.

When Tom French and Sue Bonney, neighbors, found her yesterday she was only partially clothed but there was coal, wood and provisions in the shack. A small amount of money was in a purse.

When she last was in Leadville she attracted attention because her feet, encased in gunny sacks, were wet; her dress was muddy and she said she had slipped and fallen several times in coming to town. Clad in a long, gray dolman and a cap with a veil, she avoided all but a handful of trusted friends and would accept aid from none.

The funeral services probably will be Sunday or Monday, but in which of two cemeteries the burial will be was uncertain. Leadville's "old-timers" were brushing up their Sunday best "just in case" the Sabbath was chosen.

F. O. March, of New York, in a telegram to a Denver newspaper, suggested a public subscription for a silver coffin for Mrs. Tabor. In his will, her husband urged that his widow place a monument worth not less than $1,000 at his grave. Unable, however, in her circumstances, to carry out this request, Mrs. Tabor provided no monument for the weed-covered grave of the silver king and former Senator in Denver.

Mexicans Free Diaz After Fine

Archbishop Held 24 Hours for Officiating Beyond Own District.

By the Associated Press.

Mexico City, March 8.—Held incommunicado nearly 24 hours, Archbishop Pascual Diaz was released this afternoon after paying 500 pesos (about $135) fine for volating Mexico's religious laws.

The leader of the Catholic Church of Mexico, whose mysterious disappearance yesterday stirred fears he had been kidnaped or deported, was accused of officiating at religious services outside the federal district.

Previously government departments had denied any official knowledge of his arrest, although two officials privately confirmed reports that he was in custody.

Intimates of the archbishop said they learned he was transferred from one jail to another during the night, to keep friends from learning his whereabouts.

The charges against Diaz, who was arrested with three companions, were based on the fact that he officiated yesterday at the town of La Visitacion in the state of Mexico. His license permits him to officiate only in the federal district.

This was the archbishop's second arrest in recent months on the same charge. Previously he also was fined 500 pesos.

Bill Asks Abolition Of Water Board

Hagerstown Measure Being Drafted for Legislature.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., March 8.—The Board of Water Commissioners of Hagerstown would be abolished under a bill being prepared here for introduction in the Legislature.

There are three members, two of the party in power and a minority member, with salaries of $400 annually.

The board has had few functions since the completion of the city's new Potomac River pumping system. The superintendent of water would be answerable to the Mayor and City Council under the bill.

Sewer Rent Provided.

Williamsport, Md., March 8 (Spl.).—All property owners of this town would be required to connect with the new sewage system now nearing completion, under a bill introduced in the Legislature. The bill also empowers the mayor and commissioners to fix the rate of sewer rents.

Lure of Africa Grips Johnsons, Here With Film

Prefer Veldt and Lions to Four a Day in Theater.

Compared with playing four a day on F street, getting a lion and his mate to sit for their pictures in their native Africa is a picnic. For some people. For Martin Johnson, for instance.

To this fellow whose business is photographing lions, a couple of years on the veldt is like two weeks in Maine for anyone else.

Mr. Johnson is wearing out his watch pocket. And Mrs. Johnson her clothes. That's because Mr. Johnson is everlastingly looking at his watch to see if it isn't time for Mrs. Johnson to change her clothes for another personal appearance with "Baboona," their current animal movie.

Returning to Africa Soon.

So in about three months the Martin Johnsons will pack off for the Itura Forest, 450,000 square miles of jungle in the center of Africa, there to hide from a world of personal appearances, completely out of touch with the civilized world and its newspapers.

"We're sick and tired of reading about murders and kidnapings and that Congress is passing some damn fool law," said Mr. Johnson. "We're going to stay a year and a half and when we come out will wonder what's happened. We'll be like Rip Van Winkle."

Mr. Johnson told reporters at the Willard Hotel where he and Mrs. Johnson are staying, that if they really wanted to do something for them, they should say this time they are going to Africa alone. In Africa, they will recruit a couple of hundred native porters.

Besieged by Applicants.

"Every day we get letters," Mr. Johnson explained, "hundreds of them, from women, children, men, boys. They all want to go to Africa. Some of them are willing to pay. They all think it would be fun. They don't know that 90 per cent of the life there is drudgery, that seldom there's anything exciting like a herd of elephants stampeding."

Even the lions, Johnson said, sometimes forget to be wild. They're not tame, exactly, just well fed and contented.

Session Fails To Evolve Plan On Road Deficit

Montgomery Group Talks With State Board About Debt Financing.

Montgomery County, Md., commissioners yesterday conferred with the State roads commission, but failed to reach agreement on financing the county's road deficit or the expected $60,000 deficit for road maintenance.

The roads commission officials went over the financial statement furnished the commissioners several days ago and explained the items which caused the deficit, estimated to reach $147,913.21 by the end of this fiscal year, September 30, 1935, exclusive of road maintenance costs.

Chairman Nathan L. Smith informed the commissioners there is possibility a bill will be introduced into the Legislature now in session permitting the commission to carry the various counties on an even basis, regardless of their indebtedness this year. This would be of great benefit to the six counties with deficits and the four near that stage, but it is expected the other 13 counties would object.

The county commissioners will meet Tuesday at Rockville to discuss plans for paying the deficit. It is not believed they could include the sum in the annual levy, since it is for State roads maintenance, and some other source of taxation probably will have to be evolved.

Prescott Asks Liquor Reform In Montgomery

Would Give the Governor Authority to Appoint Control Board.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., March 8.—A bill seeking to give power of appointment of the Montgomery County liquor control board to the Governor and name John C. Walker as manager of that board for a term of four years was introduced today by Senator Stedman Prescott (Democrat), Montgomery.

The bill was one of two introduced today by Prescott. It would take from the Montgomery County commissioners the right to name the control board and give the appointment power to the Governor. The board of county commissioners now prescribes the salary of board members, and the Prescott bill would give them $600 a year.

The bill also provides that Walker be named manager and purchasing agent for the board at a salary of $3,000 a year, his term to expire May 31, 1939, when the board shall name another. The Montgomery County commissioners are directed to borrow what is necessary to provide the board with working capital.

Prescott's other bill would authorize the Montgomery County Treasurer to appoint his own attorney or attorneys at an aggregate salary of $1,200 a year and a private stenographer at $1,300 a year.

The Senate also passed three Montgomery County House bills today and sent them to the Governor. They were:

By Cantrel and Magruder—Authorizing the Montgomery County commissioners to name one of their number as supervisor of county police at an annual salary of $600.

By Montgomery County delegation—To provide that the county accountant shall audit the books of all county agencies.

By Shoemaker—To provide that two members of the Glen Echo Council shall be elected in odd years and two councilmen and the mayor shall be elected in even years.

America Near A Revolution, Dr. Walsh Says

Speech of Long Enhanced Danger of Outbreak, Priest Asserts.

Prediction that the United States is dangerously near a revolution was made last night by Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University and regent of the Foreign Service School in his weekly lecture on revolutionary phases.

Declaring that Senator Huey P. Long's radio address Thursday night "has advanced to an incalculable degree direct participation by the people in the crisis which Government is trying to reduce," Dr. Walsh declared:

"When the sorely tried patience of the masses will reach bottom, and upon what desperation it will then embark, is hidden in the unpredictable future. But one thing would appear to be certain. The point of recoil can not be far off. We have been brought dangerously nearer by the events of last week and may be moved nearer to zero hour by the events of the next week.

"It is a fearful responsibility he takes whether he be general, Senator, or molder of public opinion, whatever his calling, who splits the unity of an embattled people, and divides our already weakened forces into three quarreling camps of embittered friends and brothers. That is exactly the opportunity long awaited by the enemies of democracy and Christian civilization. They saw it created to their hands by similar prolonged and futile bickering in Russia during the eight months of the provisional government when a wilderness of diverse panaceas and a torrent of passionate rhetoric engaged the attention of the moderates in control."

China's Chance To Get Its Loan In Lap of Tokyo

Britain Reported Insistent There Must Be Approval by Japan.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai, March 8.—Japan tonight apparently held the key to China's chances to get an international loan.

While reports as to what the Nanking government wants were conflicting, there was general agreement that Japan's wishes in the matter would influence any decision concerning the proposed loan.

Government financial experts and bankers conferred frequently the last few days. It was believed here they were preparing concrete proposals on China's financial needs for the consideration of interested nations, Great Britain, the United States, Japan and possibly France.

"Tentative" Plans.

The Japanese Legation and other financial quarters here are insistent, however, that the negotiations are highly tentative, many obstacles remaining to be ironed out.

A spokesman for the Japanese Legation here remarked that "the Japanese are not particularly complimented at the fact that China first sought economic help from Britain directly, only including Japan in her request when that effort failed."

He referred to Chinese efforts to obtain economic assistance abroad, beginning several months ago in negotiations between the Chinese government and British bankers, which collapsed after several weeks.

Thereupon, diplomatic quarters say, Great Britain took the initiative in drawing the attention of other governments to China's needs and to the possibility of offering financial assistance.

In the Lap of Tokyo.

The Japanese spokesman's remark, taken in conjunction with Britain's reported insistence that the loan must be predicated on the requirement that there be no Japanese objections, was taken to confirm the general view that the matter is chiefly in the lap of Tokyo.

The British also insist, it was understood, that any loan extended must be financially sound. This also is in accord with the oft-repeated Japanese assertion that Japan opposes any loans of political character to China.

Regarded as significant in some quarters are the reported efforts on the part of the Chinese government to better relations with Japan, this being interpreted as prefatory to obtaining the much-needed financial assistance.

Inquiry Started In Hit-Run Case

Police Seek to Link Trio Held at Lexington With Accident.

By the Associated Press.

Lexington, Va., March 8.—Police were busy today trying to obtain accurate information as to the background of two youths and a woman companion arrested near here in an allegedly stolen car containing burglars' tools.

The three being held are Grady Bennett, 22, and Sadie Brooks, 21, both of Rocky Mount, and Clark Gillon, 21, of Roanoke, who are charged with possessing a stolen car. Officers said the machine bore a Virginia tag painted to fake a West Virginia plate.

State Policeman L. A. Brugh, Sheriff H. V. Watts and Commonwealth's Attorney W. W. Ackerly made the arrests on a highway, after being asked to look for a car that struck several children Monday night at Roanoke.

Roanoke officers want to determine if hit-and-run charges should be preferred against the trio held here.

Police Arrest Beggar for Public Intoxication.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., March 8. For the first time in years the Martinsburg police yesterday arrested a blind man on the charge of public drunkenness. He gave the name of George Watt, stating he came to Martinsburg earlier in the day and was en route to Winchester and Harrisonburg.

Watt, police said, had been begging on the downtown streets throughout the day, stationing himself in front of business places and singing old-time songs. According to his story, as the day advanced he started to drink ale, eventually consuming between six and eight bottles.

Traffic Officer Mark Tabler took charge of the man, after reports had come in that the man had fallen asleep on the pavement and that boys were removing the nickels and dimes being dropped into his hat by sympathetic pedestrians.

begins or ends. It is very hard to tell, with the exception of a small group, who are running it.

"In a very vital spot, we will say the Washington Navy Yard, if an emergency comes along and we, knowing that the Communists have the policy of sabotage—they say so and so it must be—it is not unreasonable to assume that they are put there for that purpose and——

Employment of Civilians.

"Clement—They are employed under the civil service, sir.

"Thomason—Have those in authority been advised about these civilians here in the Washington Navy Yard who are Communists?

"Clement—Yes, sir.

"Thomason—Nothing has been done about it?

"Clement—You can not discharge them without cause. You can not discharge a man for attending Communist meetings. You might do it and get by with it, but it would not be legal."

Representative William N. Rogers (Democrat), New Hampshire, asked was there any evidence of Communist literature in the Portsmouth Navy Yard. Clement responded:

"I am pretty sure there is. I have a vast quantity of this stuff. The Washington Navy Yard, the New York Navy Yard and the Boston Navy Yard have what they call the United States Worker in each case, a publication that they put out. And most of the shipbuilding companies that are engaged in shipbuilding for the United States have these factions, too."

Urges McCormack Bill.

Clement suggested favorable action on the McCormack bill to prohibit anyone from urging members of the armed forces to disobey rules. Members listened attentively as he unfolded an account of how Communists used attractive girls to win members among sailors.

"Small groups," he explained, "consisting of, say, two men and three girls, will come aboard ship with the regular crowd of visitors and sightseers.

"The men of this group will circulate about the decks, staffing their handbills into boats, behind ventilators, etc., where members of the crew eventually find them, read them and then generally turn them over to the executive or the officer of the deck.

Girls Seek Recruits.

"Meanwhile, the girls of the group—chosen for their good looks—will be picking out promising appearing enlisted men, engaging them in conversation with the object of making dates with them ashore and working on them there to convert them to the 'cause' and thus gaining a recruit within the ship's company.

"Once gained, a 'cell' is formed through which others may be talked over into joining. The same general method is used at shore stations. * * *

"While ashore at liberty our men are often urged to attend Communist meetings, both public and at private houses. They are approached by these propagandists on the streets, in parks and beer joints."

The McCormack bill was indorsed in letters from Secretaries Dern and Swanson. The measure was favorably reported by the sub-committee moving on the island. No government telegraph office was operating.

As the island's two largest labor groups, the National Confederation of Labor and the National Federation of Labor Unions, decided to support the general strike movement "in principle," although without setting any date, the government strove to get customs and internal revenue officers functioning again.

Employes Untrained.

Most of the offices were in the hands of military appointees who were not familiar with treasury department procedure.

The situation in interior towns differed from that in Havana only in degree. An air of apprehension was evident. The cabinet, already in permanent session, met hurriedly at the palace during the afternoon to discuss the strike problems.

A bomb explosion in Cardenas killed Delfin Acosta, chief of police, while at Matanzas, capital of the province of that name, the home of military supervisor was attacked.

In Havana groups of students marched through the streets, one of them carrying a black banner bearing Mendieta's picture and the inscription "Death to Machado," the inference being that Mendieta is another president such as Gerardo Machado, who was overthrown by revolution in 1933.

Bombings in Havana.

Fourteen bombs exploded in Havana and its environs during the night, damaging the Havana courthouse and police stations, while seven went off at interior points.

Four Havana newspapers, El Mundo, Nacion, Ahora and La Palabra, said they had been ordered by police to suspend publication. The morning edition of El Pais, however, appeared.

The American Ambassador, Jefferson Caffery, would not confirm or deny a report that he had received a letter signed by the "Milicia Ciudadana," a supposed secret organization, warning him either to quit his job, change his policy or suffer death.

Van Zandt Assails Virginia's Senators

Newport News, Va., March 8 (AP). Commander James E. Van Zandt, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, would "hate to come from a State like Virginia and have two Senators like you have to represent you in Congress," he told an audience of former service men here last night.

He predicted the bonus bill would pass Congress, be vetoed by the President and would be decided in the Senate after the House overrode the veto.

Hamstrung

Justice Swiftly Overtakes Purloiner of Meat.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., March 8.—Mrs. Georgia Boyer, of near Middletown, this county, is convinced that Frederick County officers get results and the county court is equally sure. Harvey J. Price also is convinced that the "law" in Frederick doesn't fool around.

Mrs. Boyer reported to Sheriff Harry McCann that four hams had been stolen from her smokehouse and that Price was suspected.

This was a few minutes before noon. Sheriff McCann arrested Price, recovered three pieces of the meat, located the fourth in a Strasburg restaurant, and as the clock struck 2, Trial Justice A. J. Tavenner sentenced the defendant to six months on the State road.

Butler's Parley Settles Terms Of Peace Plan

Unofficial 10-Power Group Agrees on 6 Policies at London.

By the Associated Press.

London, March 8.—Specific proposals for strengthening the League of Nations, the Treaty of Paris, and the restoration of world prosperity by the stabilization of currencies, lowering of tariffs and settlement of governmental debts were unanimously approved by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's unofficial ten-power conference the educator revealed today.

The proposals and recommendations covered a wide field of subjects designed to minister to the ills of the world.

"This is the first time since the war," Dr. Butler said, "that such a representative body of men were able to agree on anything."

Dr. Butler spoke enthusiastically of the conference results, but declined to express an opinion as to whether a similar official conference could be as successful. None of the 63 delegates who attended the various sessions at Chatham House this week holds an official government office.

Economic Survey.

The conference recommended that the trustees of the Carnegie endowment and officers and directors of the International Chamber of Commerce jointly sponsor "a competent commission to make a comprehensive and exhaustive survey of international economic relations to the end that a better understanding of these relations by the peoples of the world may be promoted."

In addition to the setting up of this commission, Butler expressed the belief that publicity would prove to be a powerful weapon in spreading the gospel of recovery as outlined in the conference. He predicted the conference would be discussed in Congress within a week.

The three proposed solutions to the economic and monetary problems were:

"First, that the governments of the United States and Great Britain, the world's greatest creditor nations, be requested to consult together and with such other governments as might be advisable for the purpose of agreeing upon measures to enable debtor nations to meet their obligations in goods and services:

Free-Trade Unions.

"Second, the conference draws the attention of the governments to the desirability of forming low-tariff or free-trade unions on the model of the Ouchy convention, to which any nation which does not join originally might afterward adhere on the same terms. In this connection attention is directed to the treaty drafted at Montevideo by the Pan-American conference with special reference to the most favored nation clause."

[The Ouchy convention, framed by small nations, including Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg, failed because Great Britain invoked the most favored nation clause. The Montevideo treaty provides for the waiving of this clause when similar rights are offered the protesting nation.]

"Third, we recommend that the leading governments, especially in the first instance, France, Great Britain and the United States, should consult one another without delay for the purpose of coming to a provisional stabilization of exchange on the basis of gold—allowing for readjustment in case of need—with a view to the establishment of a stable world gold standard."

Explaining this recommendation, Dr. Butler said it is put squarely up to the three governments to decide among themselves the unit of exchange.

Six Peace Policies.

Asserting the "economic and financial problems depend for their solution upon the preservation of peace and the restoration of political confidence and security," the conference recommended six peace policies:

"First, strengthening the League of Nations and increasing its authority as the impartial instrument of all nations.

"Second, steady building of the habit of judicial settlement of international disputes by use of the Permanent Court of International Justice, Permanent Court of International Arbitration and commissions of inquiry and conciliation.

"Third, checking of the constant growth of armaments which may so easily be used for violating the pledge given in the pact of Paris by providing a regular method of consultation and by affording an adequate interpretation of the pact and the obligations implicit in it.

"Fifth, recognition by the peoples, as well as the governments, of the fact that continuous consultation is the best safeguard against war, that should restraints ever be necessary economic measures could or would be effective if virtually universal and that if effective military measures would be unnecessary.

"Sixth, cooperation of nations to raise the standard of living, to assist in solving the social problems as already undertaken through the international labor organization."

4 Teachers Quit Posts In Fauquier Schools

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Warrenton, Va., March 8.—The Fauquier County School Board, which will hold its next meeting March 14, has had four resignations from the ranks of teachers in the last few weeks.

Miss Drucilla Davis, teaching at Piney Mountain, resigned, to become associated with the VERA. She was succeeded by Miss Virginia Bond, of East Radford, Va. Miss Sarah Pope, of Newsome, Va., succeeded Miss Evelyn Duncan, teaching at Bealeton, who resigned due to illness, and Lawrence Baldwin, of the Bealeton School, who also resigned, was succeeded by W. C. Gray, of Ashland. A successor has not been appointed to fill the position in the Marshall School, made vacant through the resignation of Howard Fletcher, who will be connected with the Department of Justice, Washington.

the Turks were menacing both Bulgaria and Greece.

Some observers, however, believe Turkey will remain loyal to her territorial status quo, as guaranteed by the Balkan pact.

Arrival of the French cruisers Tourville and Foch, following the destroyer Verdun, which reached Piraeus yesterday, was believed sufficient to protect French interests, and the movement was not regarded as a menace. Three Italian cruisers have been ordered to the Aegean.

If Athens is bombarded, the French and British warships will remove the staffs of the foreign legations, consulates and business houses.

There are no United States warships in Greek waters now. American commercial ships have been warned to avoid Greek ports.

Schools Seek $1,000,000 Aid

Education Board Requests FERA Funds for Extension of Present Form.

Richmond, Va., March 8 (AP).—A request that the Federal Government grant aid to Virginia schools in an amount believed to approximate $1,000,000 has been made to the FERA, it was learned today.

The amount asked, which was not made public by the Department of Education, was the total of the estimates by district superintendents of what they hold is needed to finance 1934-35 terms of from eight and a half to nine months.

The requisition is in addition to the eight months' funds guaranteed by State law.

What Virginia's schools actually will receive from Washington will be determined largely by the report of an auditor the FERA will send to Virginia to make an independent survey of the situation.

During the time the term is extended by Federal aid the teachers will be paid according to the $60 a month relief wage instead of their contract salaries.

Gov. Nice Is Listed As Dinner Speaker

Prince Georges Firemen to Be Hosts Tonight.

Gov. Harry Nice of Maryland is expected to attend the annual banquet of the Prince Georges County Volunteer Fire Association tonight at the University of Maryland. Visiting firemen from all sections of Maryland, Washington and Virginia also will attend.

Gov. Nice and Senator George L. Radcliffe are expected to head the speakers' list, according to C. Earl Wyvil, of Upper Marlboro, president of the association. State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer will be toastmaster.

The list of the guests of honor will include members of the county delegation to the Legislature, and members of the board of county commissioners. The Rev. Walter P. Plumley, pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church, Mount Rainier, will give the invocation and benediction.

There will also be delegations from Montgomery and Anne Arundel County (Md.) fire departments; Arlington and Fairfax (Va.) fire departments, and from the District of Columbia. Noble F. Rushe, president of the State Firemen's Association, will also attend.

Education Council Hits A. B. Action

Power for State Teachers Colleges Called 'Unwise.'

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., March 8.—The Richmond Council on Adult Education today attacked the decision of the State board of education in granting the four State teachers colleges the right to award the A. B. degree, terming the action "unwise" and a "costly decision" in a statement made public by Miss Jeffries Heinrich, executive secretary.

The statement said if two or three of the teachers colleges were abolished altogether, the State might be able to make adequate provisions for the liberal arts education of women.

Several newspapers also have opposed the education board's action in editorials.

'Cat Eye Lil' Denies Larceny Charges

53-Year-Old Woman Gets Time to Obtain Counsel.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, March 8.—Lillian McDowell, known as "Cat Eye Lil," pleaded not guilty today to a 12-year-old charge of larceny of jewelry and was granted time by the court to employ counsel.

Judge Albert S. J. Owens told the gray-haired woman recently brought back to Baltimore after serving a term at Auburn, N. Y., he would allow her a reasonable time to get a lawyer. If she failed, the court will appoint one for her, he added.

No date was set for final disposition of the charges against the 53-year-old woman, accused of stealing $10,284 in jewelry from the home of Nathan H. Kaufman in April, 1923, while employed as a maid.

by the government's open denial of Bulgarian reports that the offensive had delivered "a crushing blow."

Reports, too, from the Exchange Telegraph Co.'s correspondent at Sofia said rebels had landed men from warships in the Gulf of Orfani and had fortified the left bank of the river Struma.

The rebels also have captured islands in the Aegean and seized several merchant ships.

Socialite Injured By Fall in Hunt

Mrs. Leita Amory Perkins' Mount Bolts.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Middleburg, Va., March 8.—Mrs. Leita Amory Perkins, Middleburg and Washington society woman, was injured today when her horse ran away while she was hunting with the Piedmont hounds.

Shortly after the chase started from Five Points, Mrs. Perkins' horse bolted, took a fence, traversed two fields and entered a woodland, where the rider was thrown as the animal ran under a tree.

Picked up by fellow-huntsmen, Mrs. Perkins was found to be in a semiconscious condition. She was taken by Mrs. Charles Sabin to the office of Dr. Spitler, Middleburg, where it was found she had no broken bones, but was suffering from nervous shock and bruises. She was ordered to bed by the physician.

Property Holders Urge County Sewer System

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., March 8.—Property holders of West Annapolis voted 31 to 25 in favor of the proposal for water and sewerage systems to be constructed by the Anne Arundel County Sanitary Commission, in a test vote at a mass meeting today.

Most of the adverse sentiment has been based upon expense, but many opponents have been won over by a bond issue spread over a 30-year period, making monthly payments nominal, coupled with the fact that State health officials will enforce the improvements with probably greater cost.

Former Banker's Home Taken by Liquidators

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., March 8.—The large home of Emory L. Coblentz, in Middletown, former president of the defunct Central Trust Co., was transferred yesterday to the People's Liquidating Corporation, which is liquidating the assets of the trust company.

The transfer was made by deed filed for record in the clerk's office of the circuit court and contained revenue stamps showing a valuation of $7,000 on the property.

Service Company Sued For Collision Damages

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., March 8.—Suit for $10,000 damages was entered in the circuit court yesterday by Joseph Denhardt, Baltimore, against the People's Service Co., Inc., Frederick, and Wilbur May, Middletown.

The plaintiff alleges that on January 16 he was a passenger in a truck owned by Henry Eckert, Baltimore, and driven by Benjamin Clark, Linthicum Heights, Anne Arundel County, when a truck owned by the defendant company and operated by May collided with the machine in which he was riding, resulting in serious injuries to the plaintiff, who asks for a jury trial.

Hospital Head Dies At Charlottesville

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., March 8.—Mrs. Annie W. Harris, night supervisor at University Hospital for eight years, died last night of pneumonia.

Following the death of her husband 30 years ago, she entered Nurses Training School in Washington and after graduation became first district nurse in Charlottesville. Two daughters survive, Mrs. Marco Shepp, Wheeling, W. Va., and Mrs. Lauch Hughes, Jackson, Miss. She also leaves two brothers, Thomas and Wilson Row, of Washington, and five sisters, three of whom, Mrs. Susan Cameron, Mrs. John Gerns and Mrs. Dorothy Kirby, also reside in the Capital.

Roosevelt Sees Holmes Buried At Arlington

Dr. Pierce Reads Service; Notables of Capital Attend Funeral.

Psalm and Dr. Pierce's benediction. A dozen or more photographers were making pictures all the while.

Three volleys from the firing squad, sounding of "Taps" and the funeral was over. The melancholy "whoooo whoooo" of a locomotive whistle across the river coincided with the bugler's first notes, producing a memorable effect.

Thus did the funeral of a hero close. It had begun two hours earlier at an old-fashioned red brick house at 1720 I street northwest, which for years was the home of Mr. Holmes. At 11:35 a. m. its doors were thrown open and presently the casket emerged, borne by six pallbearers. A small crowd watched as the casket, covered with a new American flag, was placed inside the hearse for the procession to All Souls Church, Sixteenth and Harvard streets.

A larger crowd—a neighborhood crowd—filled the sidewalks near the church when the hearse arrived and the coffin was borne inside the historic edifice.

Little more than half of the total number of seats were occupied when the tolling of the 113-year-old bell cast by the son, Joseph, of Paul Revere, signaled the commencement of services.

Notables Attend Rites.

A select list of mourners eligible to enter had been prepared and it was adhered to faithfully. The bad weather kept many away. It had been expected that all pews would be filled.

Mrs. Rroosevelt and Prof. and Mrs. Frankfurter, who had come in by the Harvard street entrance, sat close up. Several rows behind them and on the left were Postmaster General Farley, Attorney General Cummings, Secretary of the Interior Ickes and Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Five years ago, minus three days, the pastor—Dr. Pierce—officiated from the same pulpit at funeral services for another famous Supreme Court jurist, William Howard Taft. It was stormy that day, too, as some may remember.

For his scriptural readings, Dr. Pierce chose many of the ones he delivered on the afternoon of March 11, 1930. He quoted, too, from the Memorial Day address entitled "The Soldier's Faith," which the beloved Bostonian delivered at Harvard University in 1895. It begins: "This also is part of the soldier's faith; having known great things be content with silence."

Reads Prophetic Lines.

The pastor likewise recalled those similarly prophetic lines uttered by the same speaker 4½ years later on the occasion of the death of Chief Justice Field of Massachusetts.

"We accept our destiny to work, to fight, to die, for ideal aims," they went. "At the grave of a hero who has done these things, we end, not with sorrow at the inevitable loss, but with the contagion of his courage; and, with a kind of desperate joy, we go back to the fight."

The congregation attended the reading of Joseph Blanco White's sonnet "Mysterious Night!" which had been announced the day before, and the reading of "Hymn of Trust," which was composed by the "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table" in 1859, when the son named for him was 18 years old.

The "Hymn of Trust" follows:

O Love divine, that stooped to share
Our sharpest pang, our bitterest tear,
On thee we cast each earth-born care;
We smile at pain while thou art near.

Though long the weary way we tread,
And sorrow crown each lingering year,
No path we shun, no darkness dread,
Our hearts still whispering thou art near!

When drooping pleasure turns to grief,
And trembling faith is changed to fear,
The murmuring wind, the quivering leaf,
Shall softly tell us thou art near!

On thee we fling our burdening woe,
O Love divine, forever dear!
Content to suffer while we know,
Living and dying, thou art near.

Interspersing the several readings were organ interludes. The music included the chorale by Cesar Franck, Chopin's prelude in C minor, the "Largo" of Handel, and "Komm, susser Tod," by Bach.

Under a change of plans made virtually at the last minute, the cortege took a direct route to Arlington Memorial Bridge instead of going to the cemetery by way of Key Bridge, as had been announced Thursday night.

Needy Families in Va. Given Garden Seed

Richmond, Va., March 8 (AP).—Virginia families on relief are being supplied with garden seed at an average cost of $5.50 per family, payment of which will be worked out on relief projects at regular rates of pay for such work, W. L. Myers, garden director for the VERA, said today.

Distribution of the seed already has begun. Seed collections are allotted according to the size of the relief families.

Auto Industry Spurns Request For Conference

gaining agencies which their respective employes have elected. It said they will doubtless meet other representatives when such representatives show proper authority from the employes.

Green had inclosed, in his communication to the manufacturers asking for a conference, a statement from F. J. Dillon, head of the automobile unions, and others, making charges against the industry.

Calls Charges False.

"The charges which this letter makes of conspiracy, discrimination, coercion, intimidations and of the existence of company dominated and controlled unions, are false, and without foundation," Reeves said. "Anyone making such charges shows himself to be irresponsible."

Reeves declared that he understood only a part of the 12 signers of the letter were employed in the automobile industry.

"No provision of law or other authority," he continued, "grants to a self-appointed committee of the American Federation of Labor any right to appoint representatives for the employes of the industry.

"Unprovoked Aggression,"

"The withdrawal of the American Federation of Labor from the settlement made by the President of the United States March 25, 1934, and the directing of a strike vote in this industry are acts of unprovoked aggression against the welfare of the employes in the industry and against the progress of recovery.

"The American Federation of Labor, whose members are only a small minority of the employes of the industry, by withdrawing from the President's settlement and by supporting Mr. Dillon's call for a strike vote, is hereby creating strife in the industry.

"Having repudiated the President's settlement representing as it does a small minority of the automobile workers, and having declared itself aggressor against the peace of the industry, the American Federation of Labor has no just claim to be spokesman for the automobile workers generally."

Test of Strength.

The strike vote is expected to be a test of the strength of the A. F. of L. in the industry. Previous votes have shown its strength to be very small, but this has been disputed by Green.

The Wolman board yesterday issued new figures on votes thus far taken. Of a total of 114,656 voters working, 83,828 were listed as belonging to no labor organization. Employes associations polled 12,187; the A. F. of L., 6,711; the Associated Automobile Workers of America, 6,074; Mechanics Educational Society, 544; blank ballots, 2,450, and voided ballots, 2,619.

Conference on Mines.

Meanwhile, preparations were being made for resumption Monday of conferences between the United Mine Workers of America and mine operators on the bituminous wage scale. The miners are asking for a 30-hour week and increased wages. The present scale expires March 31. Confidence was expressed that an agreement would be reached.

Labor problems also beset the oil administration. Administrator Ickes ordered the Shell Oil Co. to recognize five unions in California. At the same time he ordered the Keener Oil & Gas Co., of Oklahoma, to dissolve its company union.

Walter Hensey, Ex-CapitalMan, Dies in France

Body Will Be Brought Back to Washington For Burial.

The body of Walter Russell Hensey, sr., member of an old Washington family and once prominently identified in business and professional circles here, who died Thursday in Paris, France, will be brought back to the Capital for burial, friends and relatives here said yesterday.

Mr. Hensey was engaged in the manufacturing and export business in Paris. He formerly was associated with the real estate business of his father, Thomas Garrett Hensey, with offices at Thirteenth and F streets.

Later he practiced patent law and publishd a paper about patent law. After this he entered the mining business, which took him to Mexico, New York and Canada.

During the World War, Mr. Hensey was connected with the French High Commission in making purchases for the French government. Shortly after the close of the war he went to Paris, and since that time engaged in the manufacture and export of zinc products under the firm name of Zinc Products, Inc.

Mr. Hensey was a graduate of old Central High School and George Washington University. He was a member of the Phi Delta Theta Fraternity and many civic organizations.

His wife, Mrs. Bessie Draney Hensey, daughter of Thomas M. Draney, for many years a prominent contractor here, was visiting their son, First Lieut. Walter Russell Hensey, jr., U. S. A., an instructor at West Point, when she received word of his death.

Besides his wife and son, Mr. Hensey is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Edith Tenning, wife of a Paris representative of the Chase National Bank, who was in Paris when he died; his stepmother, Mrs. Ruth B. Hensey, of Washington, and two brothers, Milville Hensey, an attorney in the Veterans' Administration, and George Hensey, of Chicago.

Swanson Gets Roosevelt's Aid In McCarl Row

be returned home, their expenses paid, just before retirement, and added there is no question in his mind that Congress intended they should get transportation back if they happened to pass the retirement age at some distant station.

This point has been one of constant friction between the Navy Department and the General Accounting Office for at least 10 years. The Navy Department has strong convictions on the subject, so strong that Mr. McCarl remarked in a letter to Secretary Swanson February 27 that it was "beyond understanding why the Navy did not get the law changed."

An effort will be made to obtain an amendment, Mr. Roosevelt said, explaining that Mr. Swanson will take up the matter with the Naval Affairs Committee of Congress. But in the meantime, he went on, traveling expenses of retired officers will continue to be paid by the Department.

Follows Previous Rulings.

In approving this course, the President said the Administration is following the rulings of two Attorneys General—Homer S. Cummings and former Attorney General Harlan Stone, now Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. He added that the Court of Claims has upheld these opinions in one or more cases.

Mr. Roosevelt expressed the view that such conflicts as now exist between the Navy Department and the Comptroller General are common to all administrations. He indicated, further, that nothing derogatory to McCarl is intended. The Comptroller General, he commented, is an old friend for whom he has the highest respect and who has done a magnificent service.

Swanson Called to "Hill."

The controversy, meantime, had an echo on Capitol Hill. The House Appropriations sub-committee handling the Navy supply bill approved a suggestion that Secretary Swanson be called before it Monday to explain his instructions to subordinates that McCarl's ruling be ignored.

Chairman Glover H. Cary (Democrat), of Kentucky, told Admiral James O. Richardson, the Navy budget officer, that if reports of the incident were true "I wish you would say to the Secretary that this sub-committee is not in accord in anywise with the stand he has taken."

"The General Accounting Office occupies a most valuable and essential place in the Government's fiscal affairs," Representative Cary said. "It was created by Congress to carry out this all important work for the Government and I might say in the protection of the President and the appropriations made by Congress.

"Is this to be destroyed by a department of the Government and if the Comptroller General can be shunted around by a Cabinet officer or by any other officer in the Government then the Comptroller General's office might just as well be abolished.

Wants McCarl Upheld.

"I appreciate the fact that the Comptroller General is not infallible. He is human like the rest of us. But in the majority of cases he is right. It is the duty of this subcommittee to uphold his hand. Especially is it our duty to see that the power and authority conferred upon him by Congress shall not be abrogated or destroyed for some branch of the Government."

On the other side of the Capitol, Senator Arthur H. Vandenburg (Republican), of Michigan, drafted legislation to make the Comptroller General eligible for reappointment. Under the present law his term will end next year, and he can not be renamed.

Referring to Mr. McCarl as a "watchdog of the Treasury," Vandenberg declared he "has demonstrated a fidelity to trust unexcelled in the history of our Government. The Republic will need him in the next 15 years."

Vandenberg Lauds McCarl.

Acquainted with Mr. Roosevelt's announcement, Senator Vandenberg added: "I think they are in trouble when they ignore the comptroller. It is one more demonstration of the fact that he is a rare and unique person. I doubt if any gentleman chosen by Mr. Farley would be so faithful to his concept of his duty."

The Administration's action found Mr. McCarl out of the city and unavailable for comment—if, indeed, he would break his rule against press statements. Close associates gave the opinion, however, that the situation is a precedent which may have wide application.

If the Comptroller General follows his ruling—and there was no intimation he would back down—the Navy's traveling expenses will be disallowed when they come up for review by the General Accounting Office. The procedure then is to transfer the case to the Attorney General's office for prosecution against the disbursing officer who disobeyed the Comptroller General.

And there the matter will rest, it was indicated by Attorney General Cummings after the Cabinet meeting. He is plainly of the opinion that he has the last word, and in this case it is clear he intends to say it.

Effects of Policy Weighed.

Observers speculated on the possible effect this policy may have on the remainder of the New Deal's program. They recalled that it was McCarl who drastically cut the "tree belt" scheme, it was McCarl who forced abandonment of a Federal slum-clearance corporation, it was McCarl who altered the social experiment in the Virgin Islands.

In view of the number of times he has stepped on New Deal toes, some action to curb his functions has been predicted off and on for more than a year. The possibility that Mr. Roosevelt could even remove him from office has been debated, chiefly on the strength of a Supreme Court decision holding that Congress can write no laws that interfere with his right to remove executives subject to his appointment.

The President's warm praise of Mr. McCarl appeared to eliminate this possibility, but it was no less emphatic that the course adopted may radically alter the Comptroller General's importance. In his letter to Secretary Swanson, McCarl vigorously protested against delegation of his duties to the Attorney General.

The Department of Justice, he wrote, is "growing by leaps and bounds" as a spending agency itself. If the Attorney General is to take control, he argued, it would "operate to elevate a subordinate Cabinet officer to a place of 'high command' in the executive family."

$10,000,000 Estimated Value Of the Morgan Art Collection

Contains Paintings Family Bought Merely Because It Liked Them.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 8.—J. P. Morgan's art collection contains paintings bought just because the Morgans liked them and not for their market worth.

W. K. Drewes, art appraiser for millionaires, described the Morgan collection today as "probably the finest in quality in the United States," but said "there isn't the slightest dollar mark on any of his things."

An instance of the type of painting Morgan's collection holds, Drewes said, is a Hobbema painting for which the late J. Pierpont Morgan, sr., paid $100,000—a greatly inflated price.

"He bought it because he liked it," Drewes commented. "I told the present Mr. Morgan it was worth only $15,000 now. He said he didn't care—he liked it, too."

Drewes estimated the Morgan collection of paintings as worth about $10,000,000.

Six of the Morgan art treasures were sold recently for approximately $1,500,000. The financier's collection of miniatures on ivory soon will go on auction in London. The sales were ascribed to Morgan's desire to make his estate "more manageable."

The most important art collection in the country is that of Joseph E. Widener, of Philadelphia, worth "easily $100,000,000," Drewes said in an interview. "It is a large collection and high in quality. Widener paid $640,000 alone for Gainsborough' 'Blue Boy.'

"A very conservative estimate of the collection of Jules S. Bache, of New York, would be $15,000,000. In it are some of the finest paintings in the world—Rembrandt's 'Christ With a Pilgrim's Staff,' which is worth at least $350,000, and Goya's 'Don Manuel Osorio de Zuniga,' worth from $150,000 to $200,000."

Governor Will Seek Bank Code Penalties

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., March 8.—Gov. George C. Peerry today declared that he would recommend that the next Assembly attach a penalty to every prohibition in the banking code."

His statement followed discovery, through the report yesterday of a special grand jury in the American Bank & Trust Co. case, that important sections of the State banking laws carry no provisions penalizing bankers for violations thereof.

Dr. Hooper Confers Gold Emblem on Mason

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Culpeper, Va., March 8. — Dr. Thomas W. Hooper, of Culpeper, newly elected grand master of Masons in Virginia, made his first official visitation to Washington Lodge, No. 78, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, at Washington, Rappahannock County, and conferred the gold button emblem on John A. Compton.

"Squire" Compton, so called because he has served as justice of the peace in Rappahannock County for nearly as many years as he has been a Mason, is the oldest Mason in Virginia in length of membership.

Chamber Appoints Perry as Secretary

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., March 8.—Randolph H. Perry, city sergeant and local political leader, has been named acting executive secretary of the Charlottesville and Albemarle Chamber of Commerce. He assumes the position which is to be vacated March 15 by Verbon E. Kemp, executive secretary for the last six years, who has accepted the position of general secretary of the State chamber.

Members of the executive committee of the chamber said that the appointment was temporary and that Mr. Perry would serve while the chamber sought a successor for Mr. Kemp.

Board Studying U. S. Testimony In Mellon Case

Hogan Fights Questions on Sale of Stocks to Union Tust.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, March 8.—Presiding Member Ernest Van Fossan tonight took his two colleagues of the tax appeals board hearing the $3,089,000 Mellon income tax case to his Ohio farm to study the admissibility of testimony which the Government claims is one of its most important links in the case against the former Treasury Secretary.

The Government has charged the financier with selling stocks to the Union Trust Co., central banking structure of the Mellon family, knowing he could repurchase them "after the mystic 30 days" and claim tax losses.

Cross-examining Carl R. Korb, vice president of the bank, Robert H. Jackson, Government counsel, tried to bring out that the bank had accommodated its own directors and other patrons by holding their stocks 30 days and permitting them to repurchase the securities.

Dapper Frank J. Hogan, chief counsel for Andrew W. Mellon, objected to questioning along this line in a two-hour speech, saying that before the board could decide the relevancy of the testimony, it would have to try each of the 14 cases Jackson said he wanted to introduce and determine whether the bank had been guilty of a crime.

To do so, Hogan said, would meanwhile disqualify the board from later hearing two charges of income tax evasion which has been appealed before it by the Union Trust.

Hogan dug into court precedences as far back as the seventeenth century "Popish plot" case in England to cite instances of admissibility of evidence. He also referred to the case of Edward L. Doheny and Albert Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, in which as attorney for Doheny he won an acquittal on a charge of conspiracy.

NRA Promotes Trusts, Charge Of Borah, Glass

Take Issue With Richberg, Johnson; Hold 'Little Man' Is Crushed.

unemployment had increased more than 200,000 between December, 1933, and December, 1934.

Richberg replied that the increase had occurred before December, 1933.

La Follette came back with the statement that factory workers were receiving a smaller average wage in December, 1934, than in December, 1933.

Richburg answered that in a group of industries the total pay roll in June, 1933, was $96,000,000 a week, and in December, 1934, it was $132,000,000 a week.

Urges Speedy Action.

The witness declared there is much business uncertainty because no one knows which codes might be dropped. He urged speed in settling the problem.

Senator King (Democrat), Utah, declared the NRA might be completely scrapped.

Chairman Harrison, upon adjournment, announced a sub-committee of seven will be named to continue the NRA investigation. Harrison will be chairman of the sub-committee.

Richberg had been instructed to bring with him a list of codes he believes should be dropped. He had testified Thursday that he believed NRA should affect only interstate business. He had no opportunity to present the list yesterday, but is expected to do so today.

Senator Borah opened the bombardment from the floor.

He demanded enforcement of the antitrust laws, abolition of monopolies and division of wealth. He declared that the question involved was not so simple as Richberg had made it when he quoted a reduction in business failures.

"Favor Large Business."

"You can not determine the effect of NRA on small business by statistics of business failures," he said. "It is not a question alone of how many are actually driven out of business, but whether small business enterprises are compelled to live on the ragged edge of bankruptcy while the larger enterprises are enjoying vast profits."

Borah declared he had found only one code that adequately protected small business.

"In the other instances," he said, "the codes were framed by large business and enforced by large business. It is utterly impossible to prevent large business interests from directing and controlling the course of the industry.

"The small business man is constantly struggling against bankruptcy, while the larger industries are enjoying as high as 200 and 260 per cent of net profits."

Quotes Johnson.

The Senator quoted Gen. Johnson as believing "it is time for the small business man to pass out of the picture."

"It may be that Gen. Johnson is wise enough to know what is going to happen," he continued. "Maybe the small man will ultimately be crowded out. I do not believe so. I pray God that it may not be so."

Borah said it is well known that business combinations are being arranged. He said that 137 codes provide for price fixing and that "if you permit price fixing, you are simply making monopoly possible."

Senator Glass insisted that Johnson had suggested that the Government use its powers to speed up the process of putting the small man out of business.

"Not in the whole 45 years of the existence of the law," he continued, "has one tithe as much effort been made to enforce the antitrust laws as has been made in the past two years to enforce this abominable NRA law, and to use all the powers of the Government to intimidate and to boycott the small industries of this country."

Discussing the necessity for division of wealth, Borah told the Senate that when the depression began 2 per cent of the people had 80 per cent of the wealth.

"That condition can not exist under a republic," he said. "There must be a greater distribution of wealth.

"You must provide a fair distribution to all, according to his effort and his energy. If you do not do that you do not have a republic."

Borah said he believed President Roosevelt has different ideas about protecting small business than those held by Gen. Johnson.

Hospital Death Brings Inquiry

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald last night was investigating the death of Miss Anna C. Norcia, 25, a patient at St. Elizabeths Hospital, who was found smothered in her bed in the surgical ward of the institution early yesterday.

Her mouth was stuffed with a towel, held in place by strips of adhesive tape, which covered her nose. Her face was buried in her pillow.

The young woman's body was discovered about 2 a. m. by two nurses and a supervisor, who at first believed the patient asleep. Later, after making an examination, they summoned a physician. In nearby beds other patients said they had noticed nothing unusual.

Belief that the woman committed suicide, placing the towel in her mouth and plastering adhesive tape over it, was expressed by Dr. H. C. Woolley, assistant superintendent of the hospital. Hospital authorities are assisting the coroner in his investigation.

Miss Norcia was described as a "good patient" by Dr. Woolley, although, he added, she sometimes suffered fits of despondency. She was suffering from an organic affliction of the brain.

Farley Inquiry Is Voted Down By Committee

the two letters sent by Mr. Farley to the committee denying the Long charges. In a number of incidents the committee accepted Mr. Farley's denial as sufficient.

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, were consulted regarding some of the charges, and excerpts from their replies of denial also were given in the report.

Improper Conduct Denied.

Regarding the charge that Mr. Farley had profited from companies dealing in matters in which the Government had an interest, especially in the sale of building supplies, the report stated that from the record presented by Secretary Ickes "it is apparent that Mr. Farley has been guilty of no improper conduct of any kind in connection with the contract awarded by the Treasury Department to James A. Stewart & Co. with respect to any contract." The charges in that respect "are without foundation," the committee asserted.

Mr. Farley's letter denying any connection with any corporation or company since entering the Cabinet, already made public, was cited. He said he had never helped any contractor to obtain a Government contract and that "there is not a word of truth in the insinuation that I participated in any way in having bids of any contractor rejected by the Treasury Department or by any other department or agency of the Government."

The committee also cited Mr. Farley's denial he had solicited political funds from any Federal employes and that he had no knowledge of a letter seeking such funds on which his name appeared in the heading. The committee observed that the "Kingfish" had failed to produce any evidence to support his charge in this respect.

Contribution Is Discussed.

Regarding the charge that Mr. Farley, through a candidate for appointment as district attorney in Texas, had received a $1,000 political contribution from E. P. Knotts, then under charges of using the mails, on an implied promise to not prosecute the charges, the committee went into some detail.

The report quoted Mr. Farley as saying that when he received the contribution in March, 1933, Knotts was unknown to him. He got the contribution from Clyde Eastus, named a district attorney in Texas four months later. The committee held the charge was based on "hearsay."

The Postmaster General was quoted as saying that it was two months after receiving the contribution that he first learned a charge of using the fails to defraud had been pending against Knotts since 1930; that he immediately ordered the case prosecuted, that the man was indicted, convicted and sentenced to five years, which he is now serving.

The committee quoted a report from Attorney General Cummings which showed that Mr. Eastus had disqualified himself from acting in the case; that a special assistant to the Attorney General was named to prosecute the case with instructions to proceed on "your own responsibility without any suggestions or directions of any sort from Mr. Eastus," and that later Amos W. W. Woodcock, former prohibition commissioner and now a specitl Assistant Attorney General, was named to assist in the prosecution.

Stamp Angle Is Shelved.

The committee held that "the very fact that Mr. Farley wrote the letter quoted by the author of the resolution, thanking Mr. Knotts for the contribution, tends to snow the innocence of Mr. Farley." Under the circumstances, the committee asserted, Mr. Farley could not be blamed for accepting the money.

As for the charge that Mr. Farley had given away postage stamps, the committee held that in view of the Postmaster General's explanation "it is evident there is nothing to be investigated." Mr. Farley explained he had followed a custom of 40 years in the department under which the Postmaster General presented as souvenirs new issues of stamps.

The committee called the charge that there was a wire service in the Postoffice Department Building leading to gambling houses as based on "heresay" and quoted Mr. Farley as saying it was "utterly untrue and is as ridiculous and baseless as are the others (charges)."

Mr. Farley's denial that he had ever commandeered the facilities of public service corporations also was accepted by the committee, which pointed out that "there is no violation of the proprieties in connection therewith" in view of the law providing the Postmaster General the right to ride on any conveyance of a mail contractor.

The committee branded as "another charge on heresay" Senator Long's accusation that Mr. Farley attempted to persuade John J. Cornwell, general counsel to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, to support Clem Shaver for the Senate from West Virginia while a loan application by the carrier was pending before the RFC.

Mr. Jones was quoted as saying that the RFC did not make the loan on the railroad's terms, but agreed to underwrite as much of the bond issue as could not be floated by private bankers.

"In the opinion of every member of our board, the loan was well secured; and neither Mr. Farley nor anyone else ever spoke to me or to any other member of our board about this loan, except officials of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and the bankers who handled the issue." Mr. Jones wrote to the committee.

Gangster Charge Exploded.

On the charge that Mr. Farley had intervened to thwart prosecution against a Kansas City gangster, the committee reported it had learned from the Attorney General that "no action taken by the Department of Justice in any of these matters was at the instance or suggestion of Mr. Farley," and that "no appointment or designation of any attorney or agent to handle any phase thereof was suggested by him, nor was any official removed or caused to resign at his request."

The letters of the Attorney General and Mr. Farley cited regarding the charge that the Postmaster General had intervened to stop a grand jury investigation into the affairs of the American National Bank, of Nashville a case which Senator Long held involved Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador at large, were identical to the replies in the Kansas City charge. They set forth that Mr. Farley had nothing whatsoever to do with any action taken by the Justice Department.

After reading the report, Senator McKellar said that Paul Davis, president of the Nashville, and its vice president, Vance J. Alexander, were "victims of a foul conspiracy;" that the courts had upheld them and repudiated the conspirators. The latter, he said, had carried the case to Senator Long. Norman Davis, brother of Paul, Senator McKellar said, had not been in Tennessee in a quarter of a century, possibly owned a little stock in the bank, but was not either an officer or director of it.

The photostat exhibited by Senator Long in respect to this charge was of a letter purportedly written by F. A. Guiles, national bank examiner for the Nashville area, to A. V. McLane, Federal district attorney at Nashville, under date of August 12, 1933, setting forth various "unusual, if not irregular, transactions" found in an audit, which he held were "purely ficticious entries."

Fall River, Mass., March. 8. — Alyce Jane McHenry, 10-year-old Omaha girl, was smiling again tonight. Four days after a critical operation through which her misplaced stomach and other organs were transferred from her left chest to the abdominal cavity.

"Look at my stomach," she exclaimed tonight as the incision in her side was being dressed. "I never had a stomach like this before. I'll have to have all my dresses cut over to make them fit."

Filibuster Nets Senate Recess, Delays Works

Prospective Radio Blast by Father Coughlin Brings Postponement.

Glass gave his word there would be no prevailing wage vote before Monday. The Senate then quickly passed the Army appropriation bill, called up the works bill and spent a few minutes discussing its "non-controversial" provisions.

Fresh Disputes Start.

Senator Glass hoped to put a number of amendments previously approved by the Senate to a vote, but a half dozen Senators asked questions and fresh disputes started.

Senator Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, objected that the bill as now drafted is open to a ruling by the Controller General disallowing all expenditures for other than work relief.

Senator Borah (Republican), offered an amendment to exclude all allocations for military purposes. He asked Glass if the President would be limited to the broad classifications mentioned in the bill, and was told that under the heading of "miscellaneous" and an $800,000,000 transfer privileges, other projects might be undertaken.

Recess Welcomed.

The Administration is determined not to take another licking on the prevailing wage issue when it comes to a vote. Reports that three Democratic Senators are ready to switch to the prevailing wage side renewed activity of leaders to offset it, so the week-end recess may be welcomed all around.

Majority Leader Robinson originally had intended to hold the Senate in session today, and some hopes had been held out for a prevailing wage vote.

Senate sponsors of amendments to trim the bill to $2,880,000,000 or less also were anxious to hold up consideration. Monday, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has promised to deliver an accounting of all outlays from the original $3,200,000,000 recovery appropriation, in response to a Senate resolution. Conservatives, headed by Senator Harry Flood Byrd, of Virginia, expect to demonstrate that $1,600,000,000 of the original sum is still unspent.

Suits Demand $40,000 As Accident Damages

An automobile accident at the intersection of Tenth and G streets northwest, last November, formed the basis for damage suits totaling $40,000 filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday.

Nicholas Fillah and his father, George A. Fillah, both of 728 Sixth street northwest, filed the suits against John Sheahin, 821 Eleventh street northwest. Through attorneys Richard A. Wellford and Percy H. Marshall, the Fillahs claimed that an automobile owned by Sheahin collided with the machine in which they were riding because of the negligent way in which it was being driven.

Both Fillahs claimed to have suffered serious injuries.

Revolution, Says Nick, Is a Sad Business

All this makes Nick very sad. As he was telling the boys yesterday, Nicholas Manthos is a peace-loving man. He has his home at 326 John Marshall place. He has a wife and 11 children. He has fine jobs, shining shoes at police headquarters, where business is good, and cooking at St. Elizabeths Hospital, where the pay is steady.

Normally Nick is happy man. But yesterday his thoughts were miles across the sea in the land of his youth where men he knew were falling and turning the white snow red. Yet he knew this must be.

There is a Greek word, Nick said, that explains everything. The word sounds like:

"Waystis."

"That," Nick said, "means you, I, him, we, all three, want to be it. We want to rule. Only one man can rule. So we fight.

"It's in the blood, this fighting. Once there were many kings in Greece—in Athens, Corinth, Crete, Sparta. Always they fight. They fight Turks, fight like mad. Then they fight each other and the Turks win.

"Venizelos, he fine man. There many fine men in Greece. All fine men want to run things. So they fight. It's because they—what you say?—inherit this fighting business.

"Me, I like democracy. Democracy only way you have peace. Once there was a king, a fine, strong, good fighting man. But he like peace. So he try to lick other kings to keep from fighting. He lick one, but when he go fight other, the one he lick start fighting again.

"You want to know my opinion of this revolution? You tell 'em Nick say Hercules ain't killed the Hydra yet."

Surgeons Fear Death Of Ambulance Driver

Physicians at Emergency Hospital still hold scant hope for the recovery of Harry Wallthrop, 45, of the 300 block of Second street northeast, critically injured Wednesday when his ambulance overturned and burst into flames after a collision with an automobile at Constitution avenue and Twenty-sixth street.

The ambulance, which Wallthrop drove for the Board of Public Welfare, was rushing James Rochester, 11, a pneumonia victim, to the hospital. The driver of the automobile, Leslie C. Egleston, 34, of Ballston, Va., was at liberty under $1,000 bond yesterday, pending a jury trial on charges of reckless driving.

Tax Sponsors Scoff at Threat Of Film Move

Industry Warns of Shift to Florida if Western State Enacts Levy.

Sacramento, Calif., March 8.—Moviedom kept right on talking today about deserting California to avoid possible "confiscatory" taxation, but sponsors of drastic film-revenue measures heard the threats with broad grins.

"They are hollering 'wolf!'" said Assemblyman Frank D. Laughlin as bills awaited legislative consideration here.

"The 'threats' should be taken with more than the usual grains of salt," said Assemblyman Geoffrey Morgan.

Laughlin is the author of two bills which would extract revenue from the industry. The bills are in skeleton form, with rates to be fixed later when he has obtained facts on production and has determined what would be "a fair tax."

Would Tax Film Footage.

Morgan is sponsor of a bill that would tax all finished film at 1 cent a foot. A lobbyist was quoted as saying this tax would raise $46,000,000 a year, but Morgan expressed doubt the return would be that large. He said if that rate proved to be excessive he would agree to a reduction.

"If the movies can pay huge salaries to artists they can stand a footage tax and relieve the little man of some of the big tax burden already laid down upon his shoulders," Laughlin argued, adding:

"It seems to me the industry is lacking the right spirit for these trying times when it protests against a just tax and yet pays out such tremendous salaries to actors, directors and writers."

Florida Seeks Industry.

By way of contrast, Florida at the same time today was making hay in its own sunshine. In Miami, a conference was arranged between Joseph M. Schenck, president of United Artists, and Gov. Dave Sholtz, to discuss the possibility of the industry moving to that State.

Florida previously had granted the industry a property tax exemption until 1945. Schenck has advocated that the State raise $10,000,000 to erect buildings to be rented to film-production concerns there.

U. S. Families Soon to Settle Alaskan Valley

'Sample Migration' to Start From Drought Areas in Northwest.

By the Associated Press.

Reviving pioneer days, the Federal Government yesterday completed plans for a simple migration from the drought-blighted Northwest to Manatusca Valley, under Alaska's Northern Lights.

Two hundred families and 400 unmarried laborers are to be transferred this spring—their travel and preliminary expenses advanced them under the Relief Administration's rural rehabilitation program.

They will be selected immediately after a conference next week of State officials with Lawrence Westbrook, head of the rural rehabilitation division. Claims will be staked out on 8,000 acres of public land in the valley.

Shipload Starts May 1.

The first shipload will leave Seattle or San Francisco around May 1. The remainder will follow later in the month.

Landing at Seward, the settlers will be moved with their baggage to Anchorage, 50 miles from the valley, then will be sheltered under tents.

Officials said the summer would be devoted to clearing a part of the 40-acre homestead tracts allotted each family, building cabins and a school, and preparing for the first crop next spring.

Some of the 400 unmarried men will operate land-clearing machinery supplied by the Rural Rehabilitation Corporation. Others will work at a cooperative creamery to supply Anchorage, the Willow Creek gold field and nearby coal mine communities.

Grains and peas are expected to be the chief products from the 100-day growing season. Clearing the remainder of the land, officials said, will give the settlers plenty to do in the long winter months.

Settlers "Hand Picked."

The climate of the valley is similar to that of the northwestern drought States, and no settlers will be chosen from other areas, officials said.

David Williams, an assistant to Westbrook, said some of the settlers would be moved from unproductive farms retired from cultivation under the relief administration's 5,000,000 to 7,000,000 acre land purchase program.

All will be "hand picked" for qualities conducive to success, he added.

Williams said an initial outlay of $500,000, already available, would be used to demonstrate the possibilities of the settlement. Later, if it proves successful, more families will be sent out.

The unmarried men are not expected to remain indefinitely.

Noted Type Designer Loses Use of One Eye

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 8.—Frederic W. Goudy, who has spent the last 40 years designing new type faces so that others might read with less eyestrain, has lost the sight of his right eye.

Despite the loss, however, the noted type designer revealed today, on his seventieth birthday, he is working on his ninety-fourth design and hopes to complete 100 type face designs before he dies.

His sight was impaired, he said, when he began learning all the technical work of type engraving and casting after his sixtieth birthday.

U. S. Hunts Briber In 'Numbers' Game

Letter Making Offer to Treasury Officer Traced.

By the Associated Press.

A search was on yesterday by the Secret Service for a man who sought to beat the "numbers" racket by attempting to bribe a high Treasury official.

The official, whose name was not disclosed, was offered $1,500 if he would make yesterday's Treasury balance end with 55,329; the balance actually ended with 43,918.

The letter, mailed from New York State, was turned over to the Secret Service. The writer's identity was not disclosed, but it was said he had made several bribe offers in the past.

'Junior' Insull Defends Father In State Action

Says $66,000 Transfer Was Made to Save Giant Utilities Concern.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 8.—"Junior" Insull defended his father against the State's embezzlement charge today with the assertion that the $66,000 tapped from one Insull treasury was poured in where it was needed to stave off collapse of the family giant—their $1,000,000,000 Middle West Utilities Co.

Samuel, jr., was the first defense witness in criminal court after the State concluded its swift presentation of its case.

Judge Cornelius J. Harrington had refused, as the prosecution concluded this afternoon, to grant Defense Attorney Floyd Thompson's petition for a directed verdict of acquittal. In three days the prosecutors had built their charge that Samuel Insull, sr., approved the transfer of $66,000 from Middle West Utilities' exchequer to prop up the imperiled collateral of his brother, Martin Insull, in a brokerage account. Martin was president of Middle West.

Insull, senior, is expected to testify tomorrow.

His son in his testimony today, tied up the peril of Martin Insull's situation with the dreaded fall of his company.

"The refinancing of Middle West hinged on the ability to sell securities to the public and on public confidence," said Insull, jr. "I thought that any sell-out of any officer would produce a situation so widespread that it could not be controlled.

"If there was a leak anywhere along the line, the whole boat might sink."

Young Insull told of his efforts in late 1931 to negotiate agreements with creditors to stave off a breakdown. He said he had discussed with his father the danger of Martin Insull being sold out by his broker.

"Father explained Martin was ill," he said, "and had to go away and that his account might require cash or collateral. Father told me he had asked Fred Scheel (vice president of Insull Utility Investments, Inc.) to look after the account.

"I advised him that close attention should be paid to all accounts, either corporate or individual, because, although I had the banks tentatively committed to the plan to refinance I. U. I. and corporation securities, the whole refinancing structure rested on Middle West."

Plan to Change Route of Buses Here Opposed

400 Sign Petition Asking Line Be Continued on M Street.

Patrons of the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co. yesterday appealed to the Public Utilities Commission not to change the route of the line from the Key Bridge to the Arlington Memorial Bridge.

A petition, signed by 400 patrons on a single afternoon, asked that the present route be retained along M street in the Georgetown business section.

The patrons were joined in their plea by the Citizens Association of Arlington County and the Citizens Association of Georgetown.

Cost of Terminals.

Under examination by Robert E. Lynch, counsel for the bus line, Leon Arnold, the operator, insisted that the cost of erecting an off-street terminal for the line would be prohibitive.

Cross-examined by People's Counsel William A. Roberts, Arnold admitted that he had no estimate of the cost of an off-street terminal, "but any cost would be prohibitive at this time," he said.

The hearing is on a proposal to compel all intra-District and Metropolitan area buses to establish off-street terminals rather than use the public streets for layovers.

The patrons of the line also urged the retention of the present terminal at Twelfth and F streets northwest. Arnold insisted that the traffic congestion in the vicinity of the bus lines is attributable more to a concentration of taxicabs in that area than to the bus terminal.

Murky Skies Spray D. C. With Drizzle, Fine Snow

Glowering skies sprayed fine snow and sleet on Washington yesterday as the mercury fell to a minimum of 33 degrees at 3 p. m., and achieved a maximum of only 40 at 9 a. m.

Throughout the day a chilling drizzle made most District residents unaware of the thin, fine, occasional snowfall.

Today will be cloudy, with about the same temperature, the Weather Bureau predicted last night. Rain will fall tomorrow night, with rising temperature Sunday.

MORE THAN 7,000 WASHINGTON HOMES HAVE AUTOMATIC GAS HEAT... Why

Call DIstrict 8500 for a FREE and accurate estimate of what Automatic Gas Heating will cost in your home

. . . . ALL IN ALL GAS HEATING IN WASHINGTON COSTS LITTLE OR NOTHING MORE THAN OTHER FUELS! All over Washington hundreds and thousands of families have banished furnace tending forever in favor of this only completely automatic method of heating. More than 1,200 homes turned to GAS HEATING last year. Yet there are still people who think automatic gas heating is too expensive.

Plans have been prepared for a special sale of AUTOMATIC GAS HEATING units to be announced March 15th. In case you are one of those who think gas heating expensive, we are anxious to tell you definitely, without obligation, just what it will cost in YOUR home.

In the brief period that the special low gas rate for home-heating has been in effect Washington home-owners have been quick to take advantage of it. Average Washington homes can be heated with gas at a much lower cost than in most other cities.

Whether you have considered GAS HEATING or not, let us give you an individual estimate of the cost and tell you why, ALL IN ALL, GAS HEATING IN WASHINGTON COSTS LITTLE OR NOTHING MORE THAN OTHER FUELS!

Kennamer Case Opened Anew; Bullets Studied

Theory Fatal Shots Fired From Different Pistols Brings Inquiry.

By the Associated Press.

Tulsa, Okla., March 8.—Tulsa's "society murder case" was opened anew tonight.

A theory that two bullets which killed John F. Gorrell, jr., 23, last fall came from different weapons brought a surprise investigation of the slaying for which 19-year-old Phil Kennamer has just started a 25-year term at State Penitentiary.

W. F. Gilmer, jr., assistant Tulsa County attorney, reopened the case by requesting that pistols owned by two witnesses in young Kennamer's recent trial be produced for examination.

A telegram from J. Edgar Hoover, director of the division of investigation of the Federal Department of Justice, also figured in the day's developments.

Wilcox Is Called.

One of the witnesses called upon is Homer Wilcox, jr., son of a wealthy oil man and brother of blonde Virginia Wilcox, 19, whom Phil swore he was trying to protect from a kidnap-extortion plot the night Gorrell was shot.

Young Wilcox was fined for shooting out street lights near where Gorrell was slain in an exclusive Tulsa residential section last Thanksgiving night.

Mrs. Wilcox conferred briefly with Gilmer today and announced her husband, who was on his way home from a business trip to New Mexico, would be "glad" to surrender the weapon.

The other witness was Jack Snedden, who testified of his friend Kennamer's long infatuation for Miss Wilcox. George Snedden, brother of the witness, brought a pistol to Gilmer, saying it was the only weapon Jack owned.

Kennamer testified at his trial in Pawnee, near here, that he fired both from the same weapon, a small pistol Gorrell had in his automobile.

Gilmer said he had taken the two bullets to Oklahoma City recently and had them compared under a microscope. He said he found them "sufficiently marked" to make him believe they were not fired from the same pistol.

Sends Bullets to Capital.

He sent the bullets to the division of investigation of the Department of Justice in Washington for still another comparison. In reply, Gilmer said he received a telegram from Hoover, which was "confusing."

"I asked him to be more specific," said Gilmer. "From his telegram I don't know what he means."

The telegram read:

"No identification bullets with test bullet or each other. Fatal shell identical with test shell."

Referring to rumors of unsolved ramifications in the slaying, he declared:

"We want to clear up these rumors completely. If there is nothing to them, the boys have a right to be exonerated before the public."

Kennamer, son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer, insisted he was alone with Gorrell at the time of the shooting, and that the two shots were fired in quick succession.

First Mrs. Reynolds' Father Seeks to Deny Money to Libby

Daughter Swore to Depositions While Under Influence of Morphine, Motion Says; Nurse Declares She 'Cried Out for Her Husband.'

By the United Press.

Winston-Salem, N. C., March 8. Validity of Libby Holman's marriage to Smith Reynolds and legitimacy of her baby were the object of another major attack today.

Joe F. Cannon, father of young Reynolds' first wife, Anne Cannon Reynolds, denied legality of his daughter's divorce from Reynolds, asserting that she was under the influence of morphine and running a temperature of 104 degress when she agreed to the separation.

Cannon, millionaire Concord, N. C., towel manufacturer, filed a motion in Forsyth County Superior Court opposing a proposed family agreement which would divide the $25,000,000 inherited estate of Smith Reynolds.

His main objections to the agreement were that it would award portions of the estate to Libby Holman and her baby, and that it would probably subject the estate to a Federal tax of $13,000,000. He believed invalidity of his daughter's first divorce rendered Libby's marriage illegal and voided her right, and her baby's, to share in the estate.

"Upset by Love Letters."

He failed to mention Anne's second marriage, to F. Brandon Smith, Charlotte, N. C., which Libby has claimed proves that Anne thought her divorce from Reynolds legal. Anne has divorced Smith also.

Filed in connection with Cannon's motion was an affidavit signed by Anna R. Reilly, registered nurse, who attended Anne in Reno, Nev., while the divorce in question was being arranged.

When the young wife made a deposition which secured her divorce, the affidavit stated, she was so sick that morphine was administered to her every four hours. Words were put into her mouth by a lawyer, it continued, and Anne did not know what she was doing.

She "cried for her husband and said she loved him" during her entire stay at Reno, Cannon claimed, adding that "her physical condition was in the meantime being continually upset by affectionate love letters" from young Reynolds.

"She was not physically or mentally capable," the father said, "of testifying or making the depositions."

Review Begins Monday.

A few days after the divorce was granted, Reynolds married Libby Holman, while Anne went to Battle Creek, Mich., to recuperate.

In regard to Federal tax on the estate which Smith Reynolds would have inherited, had he lived, from the late tobacco magnate, R. J. Reynolds, Cannon said under present schedules "and assuming the estate is worth $25,000,000," the tax would be more than $13,000,000. Added to that, he continued, would be $2,000,000 tax for the State of North Carolina, leaving heirs less than $10,000,000.

The entire case will be reviewed in a special court term beginning here Monday.

Under the proposed settlement, Libby would receive $750,000; her baby, Christopher Smith Reynolds, $6,000,000; his half-sister, Anne Cannon Reynolds 2d, $9,000,000. The rest would go for a charitable trust fund and for inheritance tax.

Suit Asks $10,000 In Horseplay Death

Father Petitions Court to Overrule U. S. Board.

Because the United States Employes Compensation Commission held that Howard B. Cook was not engaged in the line of duty when he was killed as a result of an accident suffered while "horseplaying" with another employe, the District Supreme Court was requested yesterday to order the commission to grant compensation for his death.

The court was told that Cook, whose father, John Christopher Cook, 750 Third street northwest, brought the suit, was working at the time of the accident, but that he stopped to indulge in a playful wrestling match with a co-worker.

The commission has ruled that Cook had not performed any work after receiving his fatal injuries and was not for that reason entitled to the $10,000 benefit that would accrue to his heirs if his death had occurred in line of duty.

Shank Electrocuted For Poison Murders

Tucker Prison Farm, Ark., March 8 (AP).—Mark H. Shank died today in the electric chair for the poison murder of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Colley and two of their children.

The one-time attorney and magistrate of Akron and Kenmore, Ohio, rode half a mile across the Arkansas penal farm to a little house, where he sat down in the chair without saying a word. He was dead nine minutes after the first charge.

The Colleys died shortly after drinking poisoned grape juice. One child survived and pointed to Shank as the man who "put something in it."

Subject To Discount.

The revolt in Greece, which has so rapidly assumed the aspects of protracted civil war, naturally gives rise to anticipations of more widespread disorder. Bulgaria's unrelinquished ambitions to regain an outlet on the Adriatic are recalled, and mobilization of both Bulgar and Turkish troops are interpreted as foreshadowing serious international complications. After all, the upheaval is in the Balkans, traditionally the cockpit of Europe.

Such gloomy predictions, like many others during the past few years concerning "the next war" in Europe, are subject to heavy discount. Much has been done to stabilize Balkan conditions during the past few years and even under the provocation of the Grecian upheaval it is probable that the stability attained will be maintained. Bulgaria is too isolated, too weak, and too temperately governed to risk the incalculable consequences of intervention in Greek civil strife. And Turkish policy was a strong factor for peace in this area, even before its fortification by the Balkan pact last year.

Of course the situation may alter if neither side can gain a speedy triumph in the Greek conflict, with the result of an increasing anarchy difficult to isolate between narrow national frontiers. At present, however, the evident desire in southeastern Europe is to let Greek meet Greek until they weary of it. It is not the first time, after all, that the large capacities for intrigue of the aged Venizelos have brought temporary catastrophe to a country which is not big enough to sustain his excessive ambitions.

Financing Ahead?

The $43,000,000 refunding bond issue which Swift & Co. intend shortly to offer to the public can not be regarded as a certain forerunner of a series of new issues. The volume of refinancing, and especially the amount of new capital issues, depends upon too many uncertain factors.

Nevertheless, the members of the Securities and Exchange Commission have good reason to infer that the liberalization of registration requirements under the Securities Act of 1933 has greatly mitigated purely legislative obstacles to a revival of the capital issues market. The Swift bond issue is not only the first one announced under the recently promulgated simplified registration requirements. It is also the largest single issue registered so far under the Securities Act.

The SEC believes, therefore, that the Swift issue is a convincing refutation of the charge that new financing is still prevented by the fear of liabilities incurred by officers of issuing companies and by the time and expense involved in meeting registration requirements. Indeed, a vice president of Swift & Co. states that the expense and time expended in preparing registration statements have been no greater than they would have been ten years ago.

Chairman Kennedy and his colleagues have tried valiantly to make the Securities Act workable by substituting liberal and reasonable interpretations of the law for prohibitive rules and regulations. They have also tried to reduce the expense of meeting regulatory requirements to the minimum consistent with observance of the law. The Swift bond issue is an initial testimonial to the effectiveness of their endeavors. All will hope that it will not prove an isolated testimonial.

Aid For China.

Acting Secretary of State Phillips has expressed, on behalf of the United States, a friendly interest in the proposal of an international loan to China. Whether such a loan will actually be made is quite a different matter. At present it does not appear that any machinery has been set in motion to raise foreign funds for Nanking.

The candor of Mr. Phillips' announcement lifts a part of the cloud of mystery from conversations recently held in London, Nanking, Washington and Tokyo in regard to China's financial status. If China urgently requires funds from abroad for reconstruction purposes, Great Britain and the United States propose to interest themselves in the problem. In other words, they will not encourage the Chinese government to pawn itself to any single power, even though Chiang Kai-shek might be willing to make extensive concessions for a loan in Tokyo.

What passed between the Chinese and Japanese negotiators at Nanking remains obscure. If any understanding was reached it was doubtless far less sweeping than many western observers have supposed. Nevertheless, the swing toward international cooperation to aid China comes as a timely safeguard against any regional agreement that might impinge upon Chinese independence. And it is particularly appropriate that the United States should be willing to cooperate, since our silver-purchase policy has done much to intensify China's difficulties.

Reforming The NRA.

Reversing his earlier practice of asking Congress for rubber-stamp approval of a detailed legislative program, the President has gone to the opposite extreme in recommending prolongation of the Recovery Act in any form that may seem suitable on the Hill.

It may be hoped that this method of procedure will tend to disarm those opponents of the recovery administration who talk as if they desire destruction, not reform, of the existing machinery. Certainly the Senate Finance Committee, which is investigating the record of the NRA, does not seem inclined to waste time listening to complaints of familiar and admitted abuses and inadequacies.

In this task, Congress should of course give great weight to the advice of the responsible administrative officials. The Finance Committee has, therefore, begun wisely by calling upon Donald R. Richberg to state what modifications of the Recovery Act seem desirable to the Administration in the light of past experience. Congress may of course reject his recommendations. But it must realize that they offer the basis for revisions which would propitiate critics of the Recovery Act without making concessions destructive to the essential flexibility of the administrative machinery.

Charges that Mr. Richberg's suggestions are vague are doubtless due to the extreme difficulty of meeting legitimate criticism without approving legislative prohibitions that unduly fetter the executive agency. Certainly there is nothing indefinite about a recommendation that the Recovery Act should be extended for two years in substantially its present form, until further experiment has provided a solution of various difficult administrative problems.

It is evident, also, that Mr. Richberg desires to eliminate from the scope of the act service codes covering thousands of small intrastate industrial units. The Federal authorities have found it impossible to enforce compliance with the provisions of such codes and much of the harsh criticism of NRA practices is traceable to abortive attempts to discipline recalcitrants.

In urging that Section 7 (a) be left in its present form Mr. Richberg is also specific. This proposal is in line with his eminently reasonable request for a legislative statement of general principles which can be interpreted to fit the circumstances of particular cases.

A similar aim is manifest in Mr. Richberg's desire to define the anti-trust laws with a view to legalizing certain code agreements that are undoubtedly in restraint of trade, while banning anti-social monopolistic practices. The line of demarcation can not be skillfully drawn except by an examination of the facts of each individual case. Certain types of price-fixing and production control may be socially beneficial, given continuous public supervision. And if the law undertakes to define competition in liberal terms, there need be no conflict with prohibitions against monopoly.

Again, the suggestion that Congress set standards of minimum wages and maximum hours, for administrative application, is accompanied by a demand for flexibility which will not narrowly circumscribe executive discretion. In the cases mentioned, and in other important recommendations, the aims of Mr. Richberg are those of a responsible, thoughtful and careful administrator. The part of Congress should be to provide this official with a clear statement of the general principles and policies which he should follow. It is not the function of the legislature to fetter him with detailed instructions.

What Is The Objective?

In spite of the time which has been spent upon it, the final character of the work-relief resolution is yet to be determined. While the Administration has been working to make its program more promising as an employment-provision measure, sponsors of the prevailing wage amendment have likewise been tightening their lines. Another major clash on this issue is forecast.

It may seem strange that the fate of this tremendous undertaking should twice hang upon senatorial votes on a single amendment. The proper issue, of course, is whether any commensurate reduction of unemployment can be made by the expenditure of $4,000,000,000 on public works. Yet the McCarran amendment has become a sort of battle front for two conflicting theories of recovery. It draws a line between those who believe in the pump-priming theory of recovery and those who wish to provide as much immediate employment as possible through governmental expenditure.

In reality, therefore, the issue which the Senate will fight out during the next few days runs much deeper than the difference between $50 per month and prevailing wages. The President has asked Congress for funds to create stop-gap employment. He is anxious to free jobless men from the demoralizing influence of the dole, without luring more people from private employment. Obviously this objective is basically sound.

Sponsors of the McCarran amendment are working from a totally different viewpoint. They regard the proposed $4,880,000,000 outlay as a means of forcing money into circulation. High wage scales are favored, not merely because they are demanded by organized labor, but also because they would enable the Government to spend its money faster. Some members of this group are urging Congress to appropriate ten billion dollars instead of four, under the delightful theory that the Government can squander its way out of the depression.

The dangers of compromising with this viewpoint must be fully recognized by the Senate. To embark upon such a course is to sponsor an enormous additional increase in the public debt, with further impetus toward currency inflation. It is gratifying to note that the President is aware of this danger, as shown by his threat to veto any bill that carries the McCarran amendment.

Surprises May Be Unpleasant.

Congressman Randolph's promise of a report on the local airport bill early next week, after several years of delay, is gratifying to a city which keenly realizes the makeshift condition of its present facilities in this field. Members of the sub-committee headed by Mr. Randolph are said to have agreed unanimously that the District should have a municipal airport. Satisfactory arrangements to finance such an enterprise appear to have been worked out. Only on the question of selecting a site does the attitude of the committee seem to be dubious.

In this connection the statement of Chairman Randolph that his committee may bring forth a "surprise report" carries ominous implications. Active study of sites available for a municipal airport has been under way here for at least ten years. During that time virtually every plot of open ground large enough to serve as a landing field within reasonable distance of Washington has been investigated. By a process of elimination all of these proposed sites have been discarded, except Gravelly Point and the existing Washington Airport.

If the sub-committee should be inclined to throw overboard all of this preparatory work and recommend the improvement of an entirely new site that would be less suitable as a permanent airport, its report had better be withheld. The amended Smith bill, calling for the development of Gravelly Point, has the approval of the District Commissioners, the National Park and Planning Commission, the Board of Trade and various civic and aviation groups. As an alternative to Gravelly Point, an improved Washington Airport has numerous advocates. To sponsor a third proposition would solve nothing, but only protract the controversy.

Large projects of this kind simply can not spring full-fledged from a Congressional committee meeting. It would be a waste of time even to consider a plan that would not elicit active cooperation from District authorities and the Park and Planning Commission. As a matter of general principle, therefore, the committee ought to steer clear of "surprises" and concentrate upon the relative merits of plans already worked out, unless there is some unrevealed and highly compelling reason for beginning the study of airport sites all over again.

September Morn.

Although the artist who painted "September Morn" has no idea where the original is, he does know the whereabouts of his model for the famous painting. Refusing to give her name for fear it will embarrass her, he states that she is the wife of a French industrialist and the mother of three children. He also adds that she is considerably plumper than in the days when she posed in the nude.

It isn't really so many years since a reproduction of the slim, unclad, early bather was to be found in nearly every home. In those rococo days, pictures on the wall were as necessary as wallpaper. "The Lone Wolf," that desolate, blue-and-silver baying masterpiece, was usually reserved for the parlor. In father's den, a glimpse of "The Doctor" with his beard and a child's life in his hands invariably brought a tear to the eye. In the dining room were the "still life" pictures, bunches of overripe fruit buried under a dead game bird, its head hanging over the edge of the platter. And in the kitchen or in milady's room "September Morn" bathed, regardless of the stares of maid or mistress.

The popularity of these pictures went out with beaded portieres, horsehair chairs, and the tinkle of Japanese wind-chimes. But the memory of them evokes a certain nostalgia for "the good old days" of homely bromides and fireside circles. And, no matter what dispatches from Paris say about the plump and domestic original, the majority of us will continue from preference to think of her as the slender and exciting "September Morn."

A naturalist has just learned that fish have no method of communication. We found that out years ago. They never have responded to lines we drop them.

It's useless to address advice to "the average man." No man will consider such advice applicable in his case.

Islands Of America.

From the Chicago Daily Tribune.

The Argentine government has raised a rather uncomfortable issue for Downing street to handle. The Falkland Islands are one of those stepping stones on which British naval power marches around the globe. It was in a Falkland harbor that a British squadron laid in wait for Von Spree, fresh from Coronal, and sent his victorious squadron to its watery grave.

But the Falklands, according to Argentina, belong to her, and the minister of the interior has just canceled two police certificates of identification issued to individuals born in the Falklands and described as British subjects. The minister has informed them that when application is made to his authority the certificates will be reissued to them as Argentine citizens.

Whatever happens, it is occasion to say again that the islands off the continents of North and South America ought to belong to its nations and not to Europe.

Letters To The Editor

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications must be signed with the writer's name and address. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters are subject to condensation, and in no case should they exceed 250 words.

Why Six Per Cent?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a veteran, and borrower of money from the Government on my converted insurance policy to save my Maryland home from foreclosure, the recent letters regarding injustice of Uncle Sam charging veterans 6 per cent interested me.

I understand that the premiums paid by holders of converted insurance go into a fund from which loans on bonuses are paid and that bonus borrowers pay the Veterans Bureau 4 per cent interest for the money they get. In other words, veterans who have by stint and saving sustained their Government insurance policies pay 6 per cent interest on money they borrow on their policies from the Government and the bonus borrowers get the same money for 4 per cent.

This week the Government borrowed money from the country at the lowest rate since the war, namely 2⅞ per cent. If it can borrow money at that rate to finance relief agencies top heavy with high-salaried executives and attorneys, why not provide the funds it loans war veterans on their converted insurance policies at the same rate?

The Veterans Bureau has had a lot to say in the newspapers about the cost of veterans' insurance. My understanding is that it has a public relations office that takes cognizance of criticism directed at it and if such is the case I wish Director Hines would direct an explanation as to why 6 per cent interest is exacted of converted insurance borrowers when the Government can get all the money it wants at half that rate.

GEORGE DAWSON.

Washington, March 5.

So Many Men, So Many Views.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to indorse the pioneering and courageous spirit of Gen. Hugh Johnson in his attempt to show the people of this country why they would make a grave mistake to ever give any serious consideration to the principles and doctrines of the Honorable Senator from Louisiana and the Rev. Father Coughlin.

The great and honorable men who have represented us in the halls of Congress, and given their best thought and strength to the perpetuation of our democratic form of government, are having their memories disgraced by the loud-mouthed and blatant Senator from Louisiana.

For me, religion and politics are like gasoline and whisky—they do not and never will mix. Nobody will deny Father Coughlin the right to fight for what he thinks right and just, but he can and should do it in a manner that becomes the church he represents and the robes he wears.

I am to be classed among the poor and working men, but under no circumstances would I ever cast my lot under any banner that carries me so far away from real democracy. Their promises can never be fulfilled, even by the greatest stretch of imagination.

M. C. JENKINS.

Chaptico, Md., March 5.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The trouble with the opponents of Huey Long seems to center in the fact that they live in glass houses. Take Senator Robinson, for example. Then take Jim Farley. Long called him "an ordinary crook." He should either clear himself quickly or be gracious enough to relieve the President of the embarrassment incurred.

All of which reminds me that when I was a New York reporter in the nifty nineties I wrote a story which seemed to pin a few hard ones on Dick Croker, boss of Tammany. A crony asked him why he didn't sue for libel. "Sue, hell," Croker replied, "he might prove it."

Huey Long seems to be the Walter Winchell of politics. Maybe he has the goods on a lot of people—one can never tell. Plenty of people believe implicitly in Senator Long—make no mistake about it.

EUGENE HUDGINS.

Brooklyn, N. Y., March 7.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your paper of March 7 you quote a telegram of Mr. Tumulty, of Washington, to Mr. Johnson, in reference to the latter's recent broadcast.

Would you kindly ask Mr. Tumulty when and by whom he was elected or appointed to represent "every Roman Catholic in the country?" FAIR PLAY.

Washington, March 7.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The readers of your paper and other papers have a picture placed before them. Example one. Two members of that august body referred to as our Senate—Senator Robinson versus Senator Long. Example two. A priest versus a general. Sad, but awfully silly.

So far as I am concerned the feud between the two Senators is a personal one. The difference between Father Coughlin and Gen. Johnson is embittered because both are fighting for lost causes.

We have a wonderful leader and if we can't follow him let us have one we can willingly follow. We want to follow in his footsteps, but with these demagogues trailing at his heels how can he accomplish anything? The people of this country are wholeheartedly for President Roosevelt. J. V. HEALY.

Washington, March 7.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Allow me a small space in which to show my appreciation of your splendid tribute to Gen. Johnson in your editorial of The Post March 6.

It takes a doubly courageous man to speak out fearlessly of his sincere convictions, especially when urged by some of his friends not to do so.

It is a pity that the two blatant demagogues to whom you refer could not step off into space somewhere.

Washington, March 6.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I deeply resent Tumulty's effrontery in assuming the right to speak for me as a Roman Catholic, in his telegram congratulating Hugh Johnson on his recent speech attacking Huey Long and Father Charles Coughlin.

CONNECTICUT YANKEE.

Norwich, Conn., March 7.

A Bit Too Simple.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The old saying, "There are none so blind as those who will not see," seems strangely apt in describing the present set-up at the Nation's Capital, with a President and a host of alphabetical advisers frantically seeking a way out of the economic labyrinth through which the country has been floundering for half a decade, but with their eyes obstinately closed to the trail so plainly blazed if they would but look.

Why are so many people out of work? Because so many factories are closed or working part time. Why are so many factories closed or working part time? Because so many people are out of work, and therefore unable to buy what the factories produce.

Let the Government supply every manufacturer throughout the country with money sufficient to overhaul his plant, lay in a stock of raw material and meet his pay roll until such time as the industrial pump can provide its own water and wealth gushes forth in a golden stream.

With every factory wheel turning, every worker back on his job and earning good wages, every family able and eager to buy the things they have been forced to do without all these years, the old law of supply and demand would quickly take care of any initial oversupply. The farmer, too, would find a ready market for his crops and in turn join the army of buyers.

Not only this, but once business is back on its own feet and prosperity has rounded that seemingly endless corner, the Government could reimburse itself for the money used in "priming the pump" by levying a tax on manufacturing profits over and above a fair return. W. F. HAMMOND.

Catfish Whiskers.

There always is something to be learned from the news. Note Nevada for instance, where the Legislature is struggling over the question of the number of whiskers on a catfish and how many whiskers a catfish should have before it is legal prey for an angler.

The surprising information disclosed is that Nevada has catfish or any other type of fish. Persons had gathered from the geographies, the road maps and even from hurried trips through the blasting heat of Nevada, that it would be one of the last places a smart fish would seek. And catfish, especially those grandfathers with whiskers, are notoriously wise.

But Nevada must have catfish, otherwise the furor in the Legislature would be pointless. And it must have mature fish also, since the row is over the question of requiring the angler to know that a catfish has at least 12 whiskers before it may be hooked. Any fisherman knows there must be several generations behind a catfish before he acquires a full beard.

The wonders of this land of ours never cease and it is foolish to get behind with the news.

The Post Impressionist

The Science Of Homicide.

Post Office, Saturday.

WAR, all the warriors tell us, is a progressive science. The question arises, however, whether its leading scientists are progressive-minded.

If they were—argues expert James Edwin Hogg, again writing to the Column from California—they would tell the Federal Forest Service how to fight forest fires successfully. Thus would they save the United States some $100,000,000 a year.

To check the American Revolution, England sent her soldiers over here in scarlet coats — thereby creating the best sort of human targets for "the embattled farmers'" squirrel-rifles.

The balloon had proved its observation-value at the Battle of Gosseliers; but, in 1794, Napoleon abolished the French Balloon Corps —an action that cost him Waterloo.

Mankind wasn't ignorant of the principles of camouflage before the Spanish-American unpleasantness. Yet how did America paint her fleets for that conflict? White! It wasn't until the end of the affair that Guy Wetmore Carroll could compose his stirring poem about how

"The great gray ships come in."

The wooden horse of Troy was a tank. Hannibal's elephants were tanks. There were a lot of tank-designs on file at the British War Office in 1914: there wasn't one tank at the front until, in 1916, trench warfare had weltered into a sanguine stalemate.

"Flying is a fine sport, but for the army the airplane is useless."

So said the great Foch when, in 1910, he looked at the Circuit de l'est. When the World War was a year old, many a commander was still married to the idea that contact with the enemy could be better made by men on horses than by men with wings.

"The machine gun is the concentrated essence of infantry!"

Thus exclaimed a great authority on ballistics in 1884. By 1915 he had certainly been justified. Nevertheless, Haig pronounced this arm "a much over-rated weapon"—said three machine guns were enough for one battalion. Kitchener raised the allowance to four. It was civilian Lloyd George who insisted upon 16.

Examples of this sort Mr. Hogg cites in replying to the Federal Forest Service, which told the Post-Impressionist that experiments had been made with military aircraft for forest-fire fighting and that the result wasn't satisfactory.

He happens, he says, to know something about the tests: "They were really no tests at all. A miniature forest fire was started in some dry grass, then some small carbon tetrachloride bombs were set off in it. The quantity of chemical released had little or no effect, simply because it was too inadequate."

Whether or not he remembers the incendiary bombs of the World War we don't know. Anyhow, he generalizes:

"About the time the Chinese are alleged to have discovered roast pork through the destruction of Ho Ti's house, some wise son of the Celestial Empire took his brush and inscribed the proverb, 'Fire is man's best friend and his worst enemy.' This happened 5,000 years ago. The military use of fire antedates bows-and-arrows. Doubtless the first person to feel its wrath was some son of the species Homo neanderthalensis, a disapproved suitor for the hand of a caveman's daughter, who was sent howling upon his way (like the wild beasts that trespassed on the family's open hearth) with a brand snatched up by Papa Stonehatchet. But, as soon as man learned to control fire for the detonation of firearms, the military mind apparently forgot all about the other warlike possibilities of this element."

Now, however, Mr. Hogg sees a reawakening. He hopes that, when fire from the air is realized as an offensive weapon, there will come some consideration of air-defense against such a danger—and that this will lead to the development of aircraft methods for fighting peacetime forest-fires:

"Your 300-mile per hour combat-plane flies fast and high, safe from all ground-attacks, with a light chemical equipment. Operating for an hour over our westernmost watersheds, a squadron of 25 such planes, if only 10 per cent successful, would turn the Pacific Coast into an Occidental Desert of Gobi."

You see, Mr. Hogg argues that what planes can start they can stop—and that they can stop it even when planes haven't started it. The plane can get to a fire quicker than any other fire-fighting apparatus, can operate from a more advantageous position, can accomplish its purpose by dropping fire-extinguishing chemicals from almost any height.

But Mr. Hogg also argues that the Army, the air-corps of which should be used for such a service in peacetime, won't be interested enough to offer itself unless it is first shown that there is a military forest-fire danger as well as a natural one.

So there's his argument!

Flemington Reaction Still Stirs New York

Nerves Jangled By Headlines And Radio Account For Sympathy Rallies.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

New York.

NO nation can go on such a mental debauch as America made of the Hauptmann trial without waking up with a headache. With nightly "Hauptmann rallies" going on in this vicinity, and almost daily applications for vicarious atonement pouring in on Trenton, the by-product of emotional insanity, both individual and international, is beginning to appear. If the country doesn't watch itself it is going to find a new and completely cock-eyed Sacco-Vanzetti case in its lap.

It is easy enough to dismiss the people who want to die in Hauptmann's place as nuts of the ripest crop. The original applicants, it is true, sought to call attention to their need of money by putting a price on what those who fear it most, horribly describe as "the hot squat." But now the price has been lowered by successive bids until individuals are stepping up who are willing to replace the stoic kidnaper for nothing at all. It is safe to predict that it will become a popular pastime. The last gentleman to make an offer had $100,000 he didn't know what to do with. Probably the next will try to pay for the privilege.

What is it about this strange criminal which excites that sort of thing? Nobody ever offered to die for dear, old Dillinger. There was no rush to take Ruth Snyder's seat in the electric chair. The Hopewell crime was perhaps the meanest on record. And yet in New Jersey this vacuous procession forms and moves steadily on the death house.

The likeliest explanation is echoes in the air. Nerves, upset by too much talk, too many radio broadcasts, too many headlines, are jangled into a last shiver of excitement. Indeed, there is some evidence that the Hauptmann case has even stimulated people set in high places to talk out of turn.

• • • •

THE Hauptmann rallies have a more sinister meaning. The meetings, packed and jammed, are called for the ostensible purpose of adding to Hauptmann's defense fund. Contributions are pouring in from German settlements as far away as the West Indies. But Hauptmann's appeal is being paid for, as it should be, by the State of New Jersey. At this stage of the proceedings all the money in the world couldn't buy him more than an appeal.

The answer is that Hauptmann is a German. The pretense that an alien German can not get justice in America gives our local Nazi a toe-hold on Hauptmann's ladder. From that elevation they are able to fling propaganda with a free hand. They are trying their best to make the trial an international incident, though to what purpose is somewhat beyond the average intelligence. But the Germans have never been fortunate with their propaganda abroad.

Spokesmen at these rallies deny that they are either political or racial. Yet uniformed Nazis have acted as ushers for some of them. The attorney general of New Jersey is referred to as "Wilensky." And pamphlets bearing the Nazi insignia and titled "The Gentile Front" are briskly sold.

The ineffable Mr. Reilly, who made such a mess of Hauptmann's defense that he is now supposed to be out of it, adds his bit by announcing that "The jury consisted of 12 sterling citizens on whom nothing registered except the lunch hour." Mrs. Hauptmann gets up and pleads for "mein Mann," and that is rather pitiful. But there is too much goose-stepping up and down the aisles to make the occasions spontaneous.

• • • •

PERHAPS the most entertaining left-over from the trial is the proposal to establish a museum of horrors in the Hauptmann cottage in the Bronx. Landlord Rausch, who has been pestered almost to death by itinerant sightseers and importunate tourists, is considering the matter.

The capitalist backing the enterprise proposes to take over the rental of the Hauptmann flat from New Jersey, which will retain it until the appeal is decided. Thereafter he will line the walls with enlarged photographs of the trial, the murdered baby and the principal witnesses. For the small sum of a quarter visitors will be allowed to look in the closet where Isador Fisch's shoebox wasn't hidden and prowl around to their hearts' content.

After all, America hasn't got many ruins, except the Republican Party and the Roosevelt Recovery, and this shrine for prying noses might serve just as well as some of Europe's torture chambers.

DO you know how to meet the head waiter? Have you an impressive social manner? Can you push him over with a pat French phrase? No? Then just slip him a tip. It will be oakie-doak by him.

A metropolitan symposium of maitres d'hotel recently reviewed the whole subject of tips and revealed some startling information. For example, Americans are by no means the most liberal tippers. This dubious distinction is the sole property of the rich Japanese. Next in line is the "cultivated Englishman," properly mellowed by cheddar and port. Americans merely nose into third place and are followed by such selling platers as the French, Germans and Russians.

Florida climate in the dear, dead days beyond recall seems to have induced the most dazzling tips. But after the collapse down there New York nudged ahead and remained first in the hearts of the head waiters until the national boom bursted in '29. Then for a while everybody turned stingy. Now tips are coming back a little and are regarded by their recipients as the urst harbingers of a returning prosperity.

The biggest dinner tip which anybody could remember was $1,000. This proved to be the benefaction of an insane guest but nobody bothered to trace him back to his padded cell and leave the change. Five hundred dollars was bestowed by a Wall street man believed to be in full possession of his faculties. Tips of $100 or $50 were not uncommon before prohibition but repeal has not brought them back to that figure.

Charlie Schwab, Caruso, Jules and Stanley Mastbaum, and George Kessler, the champagne agent, were named as some of the men who dined in the grand manner. Of course Diamond Jim Brady was not forgotten on the score of his taste, liberality or capacity. His stomach was six times as large as that of the ordinary man and correspondingly clamorous.

After the departure of the captains and headwaiters, the hat-check girl was asked how they, themselves, ranked as tippers. "Not so hot" was her comment.

Al Smith, in his capacity as night superintendent of the Central Park Zoo, comes forth with a nugget of Gotham etymology. He says the expression, "I'll be the goat," originated on New York's East Side when the stablemen there invariably kept goats among their own stock. The goats, it appears, were always first to contract any animal epidemic which happened to be around. A dead goat therefore was the warning for a call on the veterinary. Other philologists than Mr. Smith, however, trace the expression back to Biblical times and the scapegoat.

Anyway, Al gave the zoo a fox, a wild cat and a raccoon, told a lot of animal stories and went away munching animal crackers.

It wouldn't seem possible in these times that anybody would give up making money for fun. That's just what George Jean Nathan and the other editors of the severely intellectual Spectator have done, however. They started it several years ago and announced that they would carry it along until it bored them. Now its sale has increased to the point where it is knocking out about a thousand a month profit. This proved, too, too utterly boring and so they have chucked it overboard.

This farewell to profits, though, is only a strategic retreat of the editors. They expect to make a lot more out of plays, scenarios, novels and what-do-you-read.

The Municipal Art Commission has come out with a solemn pronouncement that The Rough Guy, or Civic Virtue to you, shall not be moved. If the relations between Mayor LaGuardia are still as cordial as ever, that probably means that the Mayor is going to slip out some dark night and smash it to pieces with a sledge.

Archbishop Hanna Resigns on Coast

San Francisco Prelate to Be 75 in July.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, March 8.—Edward J. Hanna, archbishop of San Francisco since June 1, 1915, announced his resignation today because of advancing age. He will be 75 July 21.

John Joseph Mitty, coadjutor archbishop of the diocese and former Bishop of Salt Lake, will be Archbishop Hanna's successor, it was understood. Today's announcement said the Pope had accepted the prelate's resignation.

Last year Archbishop Hanna headed the National Longshoremen's board named by President Roosevelt to mediate the coast-wide strike of marine workers, and held that post until the main issues of the strike were settled in the fall. He is a past president of the National Catholic Welfare Council.

Andrews in U. S. to Plan Two New Expeditions

San Diego, Calif., March 8 (AP).—Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, explorer, is planning new expeditions into Africa and Russian Turkestan, he said today upon his arrival here aboard the Panama Pacific liner Pennsylvania from New York.

Andrews was accompanied by his bride, the former Mrs. Wilhelmina A. Christmas. She will accompany him on the expeditions, he said. The trek into Africa will be to obtain specimens for a new $2,500,000 African hall at the American Museum of Natural History.

"See something?"

Along The Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

Self-Conscious

IT'S becoming difficult to escape the belief that they've got Huey on the run. His radio auditors perhaps wouldn't think this. Over the air they hear the same old bellicosity and in their imaginations undoubtedly is the picture of a man unworried by the chase.

BARGERON.

But to those who have the opportunity of observing Huey, the study is mounting up on the opposite side. There was, of course, the matter of his humility, already mentioned. When, in citing his need for bodyguards and saying the President and Jim Farley had them, he confined himself to saying he was only as big as Farley he was confessing a weakness. This, to my mind, showed either a lack of or a waning confidence in himself. It must have disappointed a lot of his followers, too, to realize that Huey himself did not consider he was as big as the President.

• • • •

Added to this, however, now comes the very evident fact that Huey is becoming self-conscious. The galleries were fairly crowded yesterday and the NRA was being discussed. Suddenly Huey came rushing back to the clerk's desk again. It was obvious Huey didn't know what to do with himself. Instead of its being a case of a man not knowing what to do with his hands when facing a crowd or when dancing that conversational walk with a flapper, it was a case of Huey not knowing what to do with his feet.

After a bit more conversation with the clerk Huey turned around three times again and then rushed out a side entrance as if he had somewhere quickly to go. In that outward stride was self-consciousness. He wabbled and one foot would lag behind the other. There was weight in his legs.

There is not the slightest doubt in the world that Huey thought the galleries were all looking at him. And they were.

Not a Senator paid any attention to him, but those in the galleries nudged each other and said, "There he is."

They kept a close watch on him, too, during his by-play with the clerk, and when he finally strutted out with that feeling of one leg being longer than the other, they giggled.

Now, of course, the stare of the galleries is nothing new to Huey. He plays to them. He is one of the best performers the Senate has ever known. He basks in their twitters and their laughs.

But the point is that heretofore he has been at home before them. He was as much at home as any actor on a stage.

• • • •

He was not at home on this occasion. He was self-conscious. And to be self-conscious means to be ill at ease. A good actor, as Huey well knows, must have the faculty of knowing the audience is there and of hearing the applause, but when he swings into his song and dance of being utterly oblivious to everything else. He can't do his stuff if running through his mind at the same time is the thought that someone or a group is watching him.

If he permits himself to think of this, then he must divide his mind with the question of whether he is coming up to expectations, whether he is pleasing, whether he is making good. With his mind cluttered with extraneous thoughts, he is bound to lose his lines.

The other actors up there in the Senate become so lost in their performance that it is with difficulty they are interrupted, and then frequently they do not hear or understand the interpolation. Frequently I have heard them heatedly deny a statement agreeing with them from a very friendly interpolator. They are, in fact, usually blind to the identity of the person interrupting them.

• • • •

If Huey has lost these qualities—and they are particularly essential to a clown—he is on the decline. He will always be harassed by doubts of himself, by inner questionings of "How I'm doing." For a fellow like Huey to remain in the limelight, he must always be convinced that he's doing fine.

Lenten Season Colors Service For Cathedral

Other Episcopal Churches of City Announce Annual Rituals.

The observances of the Lenten season will be marked this year with impressive ceremonies planned for the beginning of the season tomorrow in many Washington churches. Especially colorful programs have been arranged at Washington Cathedral, where several services will take place throughout the day.

Holy Communion will be celebrated in Bethlehem Chapel at the Cathedral tomorrow at 7:30 a. m., when church officials have invited all Washington residents not otherwise attached to a local church to attend. Bishop James E. Freeman will deliver the sermon at the 11 a. m. service in the great choir, with morning prayer, Litany, and the penetential office.

The Sacrament of Confirmation will be administered by Bishop Freeman in the great choir at 4 p. m., when a class of young men from St. Alban's School will be presented for confirmation by Canon Albert H. Lucas.

The day has been set aside by the Cathedral as "Minnesota Day," when public officials and people of the State will be remembered in prayers at the choral evensong service at 4. The flag of that State, presented by Gov. Floyd B. Olson, will be carried in procession with the national colors. Special invitations have been sent to members of Congress from Minnesota and those local residents who have been affiliated with the Minnesota State Society. Mrs. George C. Christian, of Minneapolis, arrived here yesterday to present an offering from friends of the Cathedral living in her State.

The rector will speak on "Worship" at the 11 a. m. service. There will be Holy Communion at 7:30 a. m. Special Lenten services have been planned for each Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoon during Lent at 5 o'clock. Each Tuesday evening at 8 the pastor will speak on "The Life of Our Lord" before a special Bible study group.

Old Age Physiology

By Wm. Lyon Phelps

IN the New York papers this morning I have just seen the portrait of a lady, 110 years old, with a half-smoked cigarette in her hand. And once more I am led to reflect on the difference between the human organism and the mechanical invention. An automobile factory, turning out 7,000 cars a day, has them all standardized; the general run is superior to the production of babies, since so many of the latter are born into the world with a variety of imperfections.

• • • •

Yet in one respect the human child is strikingly superior to any machine. No automobile has ever yet been made that would run without a moment's cessation or pause for 100 years. How astonishing that this baby entered the world 110 years ago with a heart that has never once stopped beating!

• • • •

Dr. Francis G. Benedict and Dr. Howard F. Root have just published two pamphlets under their combined names called, respectively, "The Physiology of Extreme Old Age" and "The Potentialities of Extreme Old Age."

These two pamphlets not only contain many general remarks about longevity, but three extraordinary instances are given—Seth W. Lincoln, Sir James Crichton-Browne and the late Dr. W. W. Keen, a surgeon whom I knew very well indeed.

Two of them physicians and Mr. Lincoln a publisher. Both Mr. Lincoln and Dr. Keen devoted Christians and church members. I don't know anything about the religious faith of the other, but he has spent his entire life doing good.

• • • •

All three celebrated their ninetieth birthdays. I took luncheon with Dr. Keen when he was well over 90 and he ate mince pie for dessert. All three men showed not the slighest falling off in vigor and alertness of mind. Dr. Benedict and Dr. Root are performing a great service in collecting information on special cases of extreme old age, as their results will prove to be of practical value to many persons of middle life and older.

Mr. Seth W. Lincoln has written the following verses:

Growing Old.

In Sacred Writ the age of men
Is fixed at threescore years and ten;
Yet by increase of strength once more
They may attain unto fourscore.

Now I, sustained by Hope that cheers,
Have passed fourscore by full ten years.
And ask: like him at 60-fold,
"When is it that a man growa old?"

Dr. Miller Lists Sermon Topics For Tomorrow

'What Does God Do All Day Long?' Is Subject for Morning Talk.

"What Does God Do All Day Long?" will be the topic of the sermon tomorrow at 10:50 a. m. by Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller, pastor of the National City Christian Church on Thomas Circle. At the service at 7:45 p. m. he will continue a series of popular Bible stories, begun some time ago, with a talk on "The Man Who Was All Eyes." Bible school will be at 9:45 a. m. and Christian Endeavor at 6:30 p. m.

Circles of the Women's Council will meet Tuesday at the following places: Circle, No. 1, at the home of Mrs. R. L. Scheffler, 2400 Rhode Island avenue northwest; Circle, No. 2, at the home of Mrs. Guy Withers, 1735 New Hampshire avenue northwest; Circle, No. 4, at the home of Mrs. Leonard Lohr, 1348 Randolph street northwest; Circle, No. 5, with Mrs. Robert Hughes, 316 Montgomery street, Friendship Heights, Md.; Circle, No. 6, with Mrs. G. Henderson Sweet, 6805 Meadow lane, Chevy Chase, Md. The Business Women's Guild will meet at 5:30 p. m., Tuesday, in the social hall for dinner. Circle, No. 3, will meet on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Lillian Manville, 1514 Seventeenth street northwest.

The pastor will preach on "The Pure Religion" at 11 a. m. and on "Dressing Up the Doctrine" at 7:45 p. m. Bible school will be held at 10 a. m.

Twelfth Street Christian Church, Twelfth street between S and T streets northwest. The Rev. J. F. Whitfield, pastor.

At 11 a. m. the pastor will have as his subject "Religious Freedom." At 8 p. m. Mrs. Izola Irwin, famous woman evangelist, will preach.

The morning service at 11 a. m. tomorrow will be by the pastor, speaking on "A Religion That Lifts." Sacrament will be administered. The ordinance of baptism will be administered at 8 p. m., when the sermon will be "The Meanest Man I Ever Knew." There will be special music by the male chorus.

Ninth Street Christian Church, Ninth and D streets northeast, the Rev. Clifford H. Jope, pastor.

Evangelistic services which have been held during the past two weeks will be closed today with a sermon at 11 a. m., by the Rev. Floyd Allan Bash, D. D. At the service tomorrow evening at 7:45 p. m. Dr. Bash will speak on "Obeying the Heavenly Vision." Junior church at 11 a. m., Alpa and Forum Christian Endeavor Societies at 6:30 p. m. Bible school at 9:30 a. m.

'School Boy' Strike Is Serious For Cuba

By Paul Vanorden Shaw.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

WHEN thousands of students leave their academic halls, are supported by their teachers and instructors, receive the sympathetic spiritual support of many labor organizations and the active backing, expressed in a number of strikes, of government employes, any nation must feel the repercussions throughout its whole body politic and social. Everywhere in Cuba today are evidences, despite heroic repressive measures, of surface and subsurface boiling.

The official manifesto of the University Assembly, issued on February 19, contains the demands and the complaints of Cuba's university students. In the paragraphs which precede the specific demands are found the follow statements:

The present government, which came into power under special circumstances, should have taken measures to better and stabilize our economy, safeguard and promote the elementary postulates of the revolution. But far from this, and in natural consequence of the American paternity which gave it life, it has scorned these principles, betraying the hopes and the trust which a great part of the public placed in it. • • •

Today, overlooking all pretty phrases at Montevideo, the embassy (the American) determines new directions for the government (the Cuban). • • • Yesterday a civil government upheld by an army was supported; today it is an army covered by the wavering and ridiculous cloak of a Mendieta.

The full manifesto, which is too long to be reproduced, explains somewhat in detail the reasons for the 11 specific demands which these embattled youths have addressed to their government. Many are self-explanatory.

1. The abrogation of the military fuero (military privileges), the abolition of the office of military supervisor, and the demilitarization of the police forces.

2. The reestablishment of democratic principles, respect for the life of the citizen and for the rights of man.

3. The freedom of the political prisoners.

4. The suppression of the emergency tribunals.

5. Immediate attention to the needs of the primary schools and especially to those of the rural schools.

6. Agreement with the demands of the teaching faculties (institutes, normal schools, etc.).

7. Adoption of by-laws for the engineering, architectural, public accountant and consular professions.

8. The endowment of the School of Agricultural Engineers with an experimental station.

• • • •

IN other manifestos the demands have been summarized more succinctly into petitions for the ending of military rule, for the cessation of foreign intervention, and for the ending of the provisional regime, which it is claimed, has failed in the hour of Cuba's needs.

Against these "communistic," "radical" and "subversive" demands of the students, of Cuba the Cuban army has now been mobilized and set at strategic points to preserve, in the words of Col. Fulencio Batista, the Cuban nationality."

The uprising of the students has two major significances. In the first place it will be recalled that when Machado closed the schools of Cuba one generation of Cuban students had its education interrupted altogether or found means of continuing it only in schools abroad or on the revolutionary battlefields of Cuba itself. This generation, which has now gone on strike, inclined after the fall of Machado to return to its studies, not to play politics and to confine its social activity to cleaning up and modernizing the universities. Therefore their decision to enter the field again and "grimly pump machine guns," used figuratively, is indicative of student interpretation of the underlying situation.

IN the second place, these students are, to a large extent, disinterested observers of the political evolution of Cuba, so their recent strike can not be interpreted as a maneuver of disgruntled outs to become ins. Naturally they have not escaped being, nor could they fail to be, impressed by much of the opposition and radical propaganda so prevalent in the island. Yet one looks in vain for evidences of that influence in the demands which they have presented. In fact, the eight demands, which have been translated from the official manifesto, reveal not only a moderation which is unique under the circumstances, but fully as much concern with the future and present conditions of teaching establishments as with the general political situation.

Back of the recent difficulties is the situation which has been recently described by the Foreign Policy Association report on Cuba. A government apparently incapable of constructive measures, dominated by an army which resents, of course, the first demands of these students, is now threatened by the defection of trusted cronies of the President who have seen the handwriting on the wall. Yet demands for the resignation of the President on patriotic and other grounds have been received with scornful allusions to a "schoolboy" strike of radicals and Communists.

Recent announcements of our State Department, in recognition of the present state of affairs, must be applauded, especially if they mean a reversal of certain practices, which in reality or in appearance, have spurred the students on. The State Department says that it "will not intervene directly or indirectly in the political concerns of the Cuban people." But it is difficult to understand the Administration's optimism with respect to the "rapid strides which Cuba has made toward economic and social rehabilitation."

• • • •

IT would seem, in view of the promise of the State Department, that the immediate future of Cuba lies in the lap of the Cuban Army, whose energetic activity already is apparent. Col. Batista has spoken in behalf of President Mendieta and is apparently determined that his government shall not be overthrown.

The colonel, however, defies the most dangerous group in any Latin-American country when he defies the students. They have a position in the hearts of the Cuban people, in this particular instance, which is unique. And surely no one can be gratified by the culmination of a trend which seats an army in power. Neither the Cubans nor the friends of Cuba will look on this denouement as the final solution of a thorny question.

The Halfway Mark Examination.

Dr. Roosevelt—Well, you've been under treatment two years now, Sam.

Sam—Yes, and it doesn't seem a day less.

Dr. Roosevelt—How's your appetite?

Sam—It's good but I'm afraid to open my mouth to eat much.

Dr. Roosevelt—Why?

Sam—Every time I do it the nurses throw some more pills into it.

Dr. Roosevelt—You're not as sick as you were when I took over your case, my boy.

Sam—Maybe I'm just getting used to it.

Dr. Roosevelt—You have more color in your cheeks than you've had in years.

Sam—You're still wearing those pink glasses, doctor!

Dr. Roosevelt—I think your improvement is very real. For one thing, you have pep and are more interested in what's going on around you.

Sam—With so much going on around me, how could I help being interested. Say, are you satisfied with my progress?

Dr. Roosevelt—Well to tell the truth, I had expected you would be up by this time.

Sam—Every time I start to get up the internes rush in and begin working on me again!

Dr. Roosevelt—They're trying to make a new man of you, Sam.

Sam—The newer they make me, the older I feel. Why don't they give me a few old-fashioned remedies and leave me alone?

Dr. Roosevelt—I don't believe in old-fashioned remedies. What we are trying to do is to get at the root of things.

Sam—Now I understand why the staff is working on me with everything from a spade to an hydraulic drill!

• • • •

Dr. Roosevelt—It isn't fair to criticize me when I am doing all I can.

Sam—You mean well, doctor, but you are covering too much territory in treating one case. Would you like to have me explain?

Dr. Roosevelt—By all means.

Sam—Well, it's like this: I have a sudden collapse and have to take to my bed. If you were satisfied to get me on my feet it would be fine, but you call in a flock of young internes and start trying to make me immune from everything from falling hair and astigmatism to hookworm and yellow fever. It is as if I had a bad attack of influenza and the entire hospital staff concentrated on giving me serums to cure snake bite, hay fever and gallstones.

Dr. Roosevelt—Yes, but——

Sam—Don't interrupt. The way I feel about it is that I've had a bad attack of gout, complicated by jitters, and that the doctors have decided to amputate both legs and remove all my teeth so I won't get around and be guilty of overeating again.

Dr. Roosevelt—But if I ease up, think of all the patent medicine men and wild-eyed herb doctors who are waiting for a chance to rush in and take over your case!

Sam—Once I began to feel healthy, I'd slam the door in their faces. It's the fact that I'm a little weak that gives those birds encouragement.

• • • •

Dr. Roosevelt—Maybe there is something in what you say, Sam. May I tell you something confidentially?

Sam—Sure.

Dr. Roosevelt—I'm beginning to think you're right. I'm thinking seriously of trusting your recovery more to nature and less to new medicines.

Sam—That's fine. Say, doc, do you think I'll be out of bed in another two years?

Dr. Roosevelt—I dunno, but if you're not I'll have to get in with you!

The Opportunity of Lent

By Bishop E. Freeman.

"Lent comes to us this year at a time when its appeal is more urgent than in any recent period. The very fact that these days are so full of confusion, trial, widespread suffering and privation makes such a season intensely valuable and practically useful. Did it but afford us a brief space for more of quiet and reverent contemplation, for getting a clearer view of life's purpose and its real values, it would be amply compensating.

"We are immersed in so much that contributes little or nothing to character building, to the strengthening of those qualities that are indispensible to wholesome, satisfying living, that we need a fresh opportunity for more of quiet and reflection. All of us, in every walk of life, are living at such a pace that we give little consideration to the vital concerns of our better nature. Even our private devotions, as well as our public worship in our churches, are affected by the swiftly changing events and crowding occupations of our daily life. The many services provided during Lent afford us an opportunity for both reflection and worship. It is our privilege and our duty to avail ourselves of this opportunity, and in company with our fellow pilgrims to resort to the House of God that we may share in the worship of the church and receive His blessing.

"Beyond this, in our personal lives, Lent should be to us the occasion for bringing order into our harassed lives. It should be a season for putting aside, so far as may be, the petty and unworthy things that claim so large a share of our time and efforts. 'In quietness and in confidence shall be your strength,' said the prophet of old. The call of Lent is a call to achieve that quietness and confidence which can come only from deepening and strengthening our communion with God.

"May God abundantly bless you this Lent, and give you a new vision which shall strengthen you for the tasks that lie ahead."

Bid Arrives in Morning, Miss Stapleton on Way by Midnight.

Joins Miss Martineau, Also to Curtsey at London Court.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Imagine the excitement which reigned yesterday in the home of Mrs. Daniel C. Stapleton on Massachusetts avenue when word arrived by the morning mail that Miss Stellita Stapleton, debutante daughter of Mrs. Stapleton, had received her "command" for the first drawing room of the season to be held in Buckingham Palace March 28, when she will be presented to their Majesties, King George and Queen Mary.

The real cause of the excitement, aside from that generally aroused by such an invitation, was the fact that Mrs. Stapleton and her daughter were obliged to sail at midnight aboard the Berengaria in order to be in London in time for the required tutoring in court etiquette, and for the ordering of the gown, with its long train, and the three feathers for the hair, which court ruling prescribes.

Made Debut Thanksgiving Day.

Miss Stapleton was presented to Capital society Thanksgiving Day at a large reception given by her mother, and was also entertained at a brilliant ball on December 27, at the Sulgrave Club. She is one of the most popular debutantes of the season, possessing rare poise for one so young. Many summers she has spent in Europe with her mother.

The trip to England will be most pleasant for Miss Stapleton, for on the same ship will be Miss Jean Martineau, with her mother, Mrs. Cyril Martineau, also bound for London where Miss Martineau will be presented at the drawing March 28. Miss Martineau and Miss Stapleton will have much to talk about on the voyage, for not only are they to be two of the four American girls to be presented at the first drawing room, which is the one at which British debutantes made their bow, but Miss Martineau will want to hear about her Washington friends whom she has not seen since she left the Capital two months ago.

Met at Many Parties.

Miss Stapleton and Miss Martineau met at many parties during the Christmas holidays when the latter was a guest of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, who gave a ball at the White House in her honor, and also spent some time with the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. William Phillips, who entertained at a small dance for her.

Miss Stapleton is the first of this season's debutantes to receive her "court command" this year, but perhaps there will be others later in the season for Miss Martha Davidge, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Washington Davidge, and Miss Marianna Dunn, daughter of the Special Assistant to the Secretary of State and Mrs. James Clement Dunn, are both visiting in Europe. Though nothing has been said of their plans, it is possible that both may make their bows at a later drawing, for the date of their return to this country is late in the spring after the court presentations are finished. They are both guests of the United States Ambassador to Italy and Mrs. Breckinridge Long, and their daughter, Miss Christine Long, who made her debut in the Capital this winter. Miss Long and her mother were presented at the Court of St. James last season.

Russian Basso Will Be Heard Here Tonight

Brilliant Audience to Greet Chaliapin in National Theater.

Among the prominent Washingtonians who will attend the concert of Feodor Chaliapin, Russian basso, tonight are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. William K. Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Christian Heurich, Miss Laura Harlan, Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Kitt, Dr. and Mrs. Roul d' Eca, Mr. Leander McCormick-Goodheart, Miss Mary Cryder, Dr. and Mrs. George F. Goetzman, Mrs. George M. Eckles, Mrs. John Howland, Maj. and Mrs. Richard La Garde, Mrs. Frank P. Reeside, Mr. Joseph Cherner, Mr. and Mme. Emanuel H. Dimitriu, Mrs. Gilbank Twigg and Dr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Groover. The concert will be given in the National Theater.

Chaliapin's interest in opera is said to make him wonder why America has not established a national opera house and a department of arts long ago.

"There is not even the beginning of a concentrated attempt here in America to lay down the foundations of your own art, your own artists, in your own language," he said recently. "It is obvious," he continued, "that national opera houses in Europe have done an immense amount of good not only from the point of view of audiences, but in the development of artists, composers, stage craftsmen, and laboratory workers."

Chaliapin's program will include the Rimsky-Korsakoff "Prophet," Glinka's "Midnight Review" and Darjominsky's "The Old Corporal."

Mary McNinch Selects Seven As Attendants

Wedding to J. M. Hunter, Jr., to Take Place Here on March 20.

Miss Mary Groome McNinch, daughter of the chairman of the Federal Power Commission and Mrs. Frank Ramsay McNinch, whose wedding to Mr. John Merritt Hunter, jr., will take place March 20 at 8 o'clock in the New York avenue Presbyterian Church, will have her sister, Miss Ariel McNinch, as her maid of honor. Her other attendants will be Miss Huldah McNinch, another sister; Mrs. Stephen van Rensselaer Spitler, Mrs. Roy Arthur Gezelius, Mrs. Ben Cole Norton, all of Washington; Miss Marion Virginia Hunter, sister of the bridegroom, of Lakewood, N. J., and Mrs. Frank McNinch, jr., of Charlotte, N. C., Robert McNinch, brother of the bride, will be the ring bearer.

Mr. De Wayne Greenwood Hunter, of New York and Lakewood, will act as best man for his brother and the ushers will be Mr. Frank McNinch, Mr. Charles Jenkins, of New York; Mr. Stephen van Rensselaer Spitler, Mr. Ben Cole Norton, Mr. Robert C. Lisk and Mr. Daniel L. Jones, of Washington.

Following the ceremony there will be a reception at the home of the bride's parents in Bethesda for the members of the two families and out-of-town guests.

The bridegroom's father, the Rev. John Merritt Hunter, pastor of Saint's Church in Lakewood, will perform the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, D.D., pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Miss Mary White Bingley, who was maid of honor at the wedding of the bride's parents, will play the wedding music. Miss Bingley is a well-known organist of Baltimore.

Russians Hold Gala Festival Here Tonight

Into the jaws of the "Wicked Dragon" will march a throng of guests at the Shoreham Hotel tonight when the White Russian colony will stage its "Maslenitza" festival. Clever artists have converted the doorway of the ballroom into a mask of this famous legendary monster of old Russian folklore.

Headed by Gen. Vladimir Levandowsky, members of the men's floor committee will then introduce the guests to fairy tale folk. And dominating the whole scene will be the great panel depicting Czar Sultan, hero of Puskin's poem, "Ruslan and Ludmile." The costumes of the floor committee members will be the traditional green blouses, red breeches and black boots of the famous Hussars, imperial guard to the Czar in monarchistic days.

Members of the debutante committee will also be in costume. Masks will be the order of the evening until after the costumes are judged and prizes awarded by Mr. Boris Timchenko, chairman of the ball committee.

Entertainment features, all typically Russian, are in charge of Miss Tatiana de Blumenthal, assisted by Mr. Peter Rouzitsky and Dr. Paul Galtsoff. Famous Gypsy ballads, so dear to the hearts of all Russians, gay songs of this high festival of old Russia, will be sung by Mr. Mischa Markoff, well-known Washington barytone. There will be whirling dances, famous "figures" of the old days, and other features.

Among those who will attend are Prince and Princess Ourosoff, Mrs. George T. Marye, Mrs. Charles McNary, Princess Boncompagni, Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, Representative and Mrs. Hamilton Fish, Mrs. Edwin Phillips Kohl and party, Mme. Cantacuzene Grant, Mrs. Sherman Miles and Dr. and Mrs. Macpherson Crichton, who will entertain at dinner before the ball.

There will be two Gypsy fortune tellers, special dances by Lisa Gardiner and a group of her star pupils.

All proceeds will go to the St. Nicholas Russian Orthodox Church.

Symphony Resumes 'Tour' Series Today

Student Concert to Be Given at Central High.

The National Symphony Orchestra will resume its "Musical Tour of Various Countries" this morning in Central High School, with Scandanavia, England and Ireland as countries to be visited. The concert will be the fifth in the series of six scheduled for alternate Saturdays.

Dr. Hans Kindler has selected a well-balanced and entertaining program for his young listeners, including music by Grieg, Sibelius, Grainger, Elgar and Purcell. A side-trip will be made to the woodwind section of the orchestra. As a special feature Sara Holman, soprano, will be heard in a group of Scandanavian folk songs.

More than 8,000 children have heard the students' concerts so far this season. The series has proved the most successful ever given by the orchestra.

Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Stern Kenmore Tea Hostesses

The hostesses for the tea this afternoon at Kenmore, the old home of Betty Washington Lewis, only sister of George Washington, in Fredericksburg, Va., will be Mrs. George Hamilton Scott and Mrs. Phillip Stern.

They will be assisted by Mrs. William Gibson and Mrs. Taylor Corbin. There was a large attendance at the tea last Saturday, including many from out of town.

Mrs. Raymond Francis Garrity was elected treasurer of the St. Gertrude's Guild at its meeting yesterday at 1901 Wyoming avenue northwest. Mrs. Garrity will replace Mrs. Milton Ailes, who has been treasurer of the guild for the last seven years. Mrs. Ailes will now serve as an adviser to the group.

The Washington branch, American Association of University Women, will hold a luncheon meeting at 1:15 o'clock today at the clubhouse, 1634 I street northwest.

Mrs. Georgette Ross Howard will be the guest speaker. Her subject will be "Keeping Up With the Times."

The junior group will hold a mixed dinner-bridge tonight at 6:30 o'clock with Miss Ellen Anderson as hostess.

Competence, Not Marital Status, Should Decide Whether Women Teach, D. C. Educators Contend

Pressure of Taxpayers Blamed for Fight on Matron in School.

"Dismiss married teachers and employ only single women!" Within the last five years this has become the slogan of numerous school boards faced with the problem of cutting personnel. Is it fair? This is the last of three articles on this subject.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

MOTHERHOOD is the first duty of woman.'

The marriad woman has a husband to support her, whereas the single woman must depend on her own earnings. Schools, therefore, should employ single women, in preference to married ones, so long as the supply of competent ones lasts.

These are the contentions of persons opposing the married woman teacher. And these arguments appeal strongly to many laymen, particularly in times of business depression.

Dr. Willard E. Givens, secretary of the National Education Association, feels, however, that from a professional point of view, a teacher's marital status should have no bearing on her employment in a school system.

Competence Held Prime Factor.

"In employing teachers, qualifications — training, experience, and personality — should constitute the prime requisites," he said. "Marital status has no effect on ability. If economics comes into the question, the administrator certainly should consider which of the candidates, the married or the unmarried, really needs the salary more than the other. In many cases, the woman with the husband has more dependents than the spinster who has only herself to support."

Dr. Givens feels many administrators have been too hasty in ruling against the employment of married teachers.

"This was the result of a tremendous pressure brought about by taxpayers who, in many cases, had unmarried daughters who wanted teaching positions," he said.

Cites Other Vocations.

"But so long as married women are competent teachers and so long as there are wives in many other types of gainful employment, they should certainly not be excluded from the schoolroom."

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, vice president of the District of Columbia Board of Education, also believes married women should be allowed to teach just as they are allowed to work in offices, stores and factories.

"There are three principal reasons a married woman would want to teach," said Mrs. Doyle. "First, because she needs the money. And certainly, it seems, no woman of ability should be deprived of employment simply because she has a husband.

"Then, too, she may be a born teacher. If she is, there is no other line of work where she can find so much satisfaction and be so inspiring to those with whom she comes in contact. Surely no right-thinking administrator would exclude the born teacher, simply because she happened to be married.

May Wish to Continue.

"Another reason is that a woman might want to continue teaching because she has planned her life that way. Her training and her experience have prepared her for teaching, and she will probably feel this is the only medium through which she can keep abreast of the world."

"But what of the teacher who deliberately continues teaching in order to escape motherhood?" Mrs. Doyle was asked.

"I think there are few, if any, women of teaching caliber who keep their positions at the expense of motherhood," she said. "I know a number of women who have large families and continue successfully in their school work. If they are happier teaching, or if they feel they need the salary to help educate those children, they certainly should not be prohibited. Personally, I see no reason why a wife and mother wouldn't be even a better teacher than a single woman."

May Have "More Tact."

"So long as a teacher is competent, what difference does it make whether she is married or not?" Mrs. Smith asked. "And if she is, she probably has more tact and more knowledge in managing persons than she would have otherwise."

The number of excellent married teachers in the District of Columbia schools indicates many women are doing two jobs and doing them well, in Mrs. Smith's opinion. "So far as has been observed—and you know a strict check on teachers is kept in our schools — married teachers are not inferior to single women," she said. "Their home duties, their children and their husbands have not interfered with their work."

Belmont Farley, of the National Education Association, pointed out that married teachers were often more stable than unmarried ones.

"A married woman usually settles where her husband is employed and plans to make that place her permanent home," he said. "A single woman, on the other hand, is frequently continually looking for another position."

Good of Pupil Held Foremost.

Mr. Farley also stressed the point that the good of the pupil should be of the first concern of a school administrator.

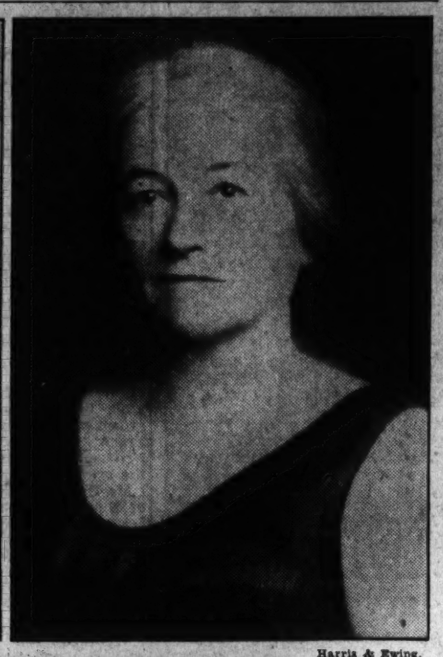
"A teacher's qualifications should certainly be considered in preference to her marital status," he said.

Stephen Ewing, in an article called "Blue Laws for School Teachers," in Harpers Magazine, sees the married-teacher question as part of a larger one involving the traditional restriction of personal freedom among teachers.

"It is surprising so little has been said in defense of the school teacher and her right to live her own life," he wrote. "In any number of communities the teacher no more dares call her soul her own out of the schoolroom than she does in it. If she dresses too youthful, if she has too many "dates," in short, if her social behavior is at all out of the ordinary, she lays herself open to censure, or perhaps even dismissal when her year's contract expires. And finally, if she commits the indiscretion of marrying, she is more than like to become an unacceptable person."

Judging from the opinions of these authorities, it would seem there is much more logical reasoning in favor of the married woman teacher than against her. For even the most forceful argument against her—that the single woman should have the position because she has greater need of the salary—is blasted by this statement in Lewis' book, "Personal Problems of the Teaching Staff": "To prefer an unmarried woman because she 'needs the work' is almost as poor a reason as to prefer her because she is the niece of the mayor."

Harris & Ewing.



Harris & Ewing.

These authorities agree that married women should not be barred from teaching. Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle (above), vice president of the D. C. Board of Education, and Dr. Willard E. Givens (right), secretary of the N. E. A.

Mrs. Sidney Smith (above), another member of the D. C. Board of Education, believes the good of the pupil should be considered first, and that the competence of the teacher, rather than her marital status, deserves consideration.

Brain Trusters Hailed for Art Of Persiflage

Hostesses Owe Them Vote of Thanks, Bargeron Tells G. O. P. Women.

THE ADMINISTRATION'S coterie of college professors has saved the day for discouraged Washington hostesses. Just when the art of conversation had sunk to a new low, along came the brain truster and introduced the element of shock into dinner table talk. Provocative speeches have become the accepted order of a socialite's day. After-dinner fag and teatime indifference have given way to a revival of vivacity and alert attention in higher social circles.

"And for this contribution, the college professor should receive an undying vote of thanks," declared Carlisle Bargeron, Washington Post columnist in his address before the League of Republican Women at the league headquarters yesterday. "He has painfully mastered this enviable technique in the classroom and college laboratory during the last 10 years. He had to in order to challenge the attention of his pupils.

The talk, one of the league's educational series, was a satirical summary of the New Deal accomplishments, and was delivered before an audience of more than 200. Mr. Bargeron cited examples from speeches made by Undersecretary of Agriculture Tugwell and Secretary Wallace that had at first startled and shocked their hearers, and which, he said, were "not only harmless but meaningless" upon closer analysis.

That recovery would break its way through "in spite of the Administration," and that the Republican Party could thank Huey Long for clearing the way for its future return were other points humorously developed by Mr. Bargeron. Conservatives of neither party would ever get under President Roosevelt's banner, the speaker declared.

The program was arranged and presented by Mrs. John Otto Johnson. Other numbers included a brief talk on business matters by Mrs. William Fitch Kelley, president of the league. The program was followed by luncheon in the headquarters dining room.

What Today Means

"Pisces."

IF MARCH 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 to 11:45 a. m., from 1:45 to 3:45 p. m. and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:45 to 8:45 a. m., from 3:45 to 5:45 p. m. and from 9:45 to 11:45 p. m.

A rather intriguing proposal may be made to you on this date and it will be wise to analyze the motive which has inspired it before definitely deciding to accept the suggestion. Cooperation on your part may help simplify a vexing social problem. You very likely will discover it to be good judgment if you do not try to force the acceptance of your individual preferences in place of those proposed by someone else.

Modesty of demeanor will create a far better impression, than if forwardness is indulged in. Married and engaged couples, as well as those ready to set siege to a heart walled in by doubt, will find gentleness of manners will prove a wonderful help for the winning of affection.

If a woman, and March 9 is your birthday, the commonplace things of life probably do not appeal to you, but it may be through them your greatest accomplishment will come. Nature has an unusually strong appeal for you. Fields and gardens have not only a restful but cheering reaction on you, if weary mentally or physically.

Your fanciful imagination will very likely keep you from ever suffering from loneliness, and should be a great asset if you take up writing as a profession. If you refrain from finding, as well as pointing out the faults of others, your popularity should be enviable. Work of an educational or scientific research character, as well as secretarial, should develop into a lucrative means of livelihood. Matrimony should come up to your expectations in every respect.

If a man, and March 9 is your natal day, the out-of-doors and the soil possibly will exert the most beneficial influence over your future progress. Exploration, chemistry, mining, engineering, journalism, as well as the stage, may have a great deal to offer you.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: What could be the matter with a fellow that all the other fellows like, but who can't get across with the women? I am 17 years old, pretty good in my studies, something of an athlete, belong to a first-class social fraternity, am the kind of a guy who had a nickname hung on him in the grades—and it still sticks—but with the girls I'm no go.

* * * *

I met a girl recently I'd like to date. I don't know how to go about it, I guess, for she's turned down two bids. Last time I asked her she laughed and told me to "skip it." That hurt my feelings and told me nothing. I don't want to talk it over with the other fellows, because they hold the idea I don't care about women; they're always kidding me about being a woman hater and offering to fix me up with a date.

* * * *

The truth is, I'm scared of women and I don't want to make a fool of myself on a double date. I prefer to choose my own, and I never saw a girl I was interested enough in to take a chance on, until this one. What do you think is my trouble, Miss Haworth, and why did this girl laugh at me? SPURNED.

DEAR SPURNED: Judging from the crisp and colorful tone of your letter, I'd say you are something of a personality in your own right and demand a pretty high standard of perfection in a best girl.

* * * *

Perhaps, for a beginner, you aimed too high to expect instantaneous success. Probably the girl with sufficient attractiveness to arrest your cool, discriminating eye has already found sufficient favor in other masculine eyes to occupy her full time. Maybe she recognized you as a novice in the game of hearts, and is herself already aiming her arrow at an older, more sophisticated and more difficult mark.

* * * *

Since women of any age are reputedly older than men of the same age, perhaps she regards you as her junior and her laughing suggestion to "skip it" was intended only as a pleasant warning not to waste time or thought on her. It is your very inexperience at exchanging social pleasantries with the opposite sex which causes you to be mystified and hurt over her light and seemingly meaningless remark. Another boy might have answered in the same spirit, with a flip of his hand, "Sister, I'm on my way" and thereby arrested her piqued attention.

* * * *

The thing a man can never afford to be is "scared of women." It's his business, as a conquering male, to take the attitude that conquest in courtship is inevitable and of negligible importance. It's every woman's passionate hope that some day she will meet some man who'll drag her to the altar by the hair of her head, despite her struggles and protests. Alas, it seldom happens. Which is why the average woman wouldn't tell for worlds the actual circumstances surrounding the proposal of marriage she finally elicited.

* * * *

My advice to you, "Spurned," is to try again, but ask some girl who looks at you with a wistful gleam in her eye. Learn about women from her and then go after the one you really want. M. H.

Expert Flays Imitative Note In Hairdress

By Frances Mangum.

TO MONSIEUR NOEL LOUIS a woman's personality is expressed by her coiffeur.

And Monsieur Louis says women aren't expressing their personality very well these days, because hairdressing isn't what is used to be.

"It used to be an art," he said. "It's too mechanical now."

Heavy browed, solemn and sporting not only a mustache but a bit of a goatee, too, he stood in one of the modernistic booths at Pierre, the hairdresser's on Connecticut avenue. With a comb in one hand and shears in the other, he made sweeping, expressive gestures as he talked.

Deplores Imitation.

"Women for the most part don't want you to arrange their hair to suit them," he declared. "They want it curled or cut like that of someone else."

Monsieur Louis' plea is for more individuality in hairdressing.

"Why should women want to look alike?" he asked. "They aren't alike. Some are fiery, some breezy, some calm, lovely creatures, others high-pitched, exotic. Why should they want the same coiffeur? It is wrong, wrong!"

Forebears Were Hairdressers.

Louis has been a student of hairdressing since he was a child in Marseilles, France. His father was a hairdresser; so was his grandfather. It was natural that he should be one, too, and that he should take his business seriously. He was brought up to see it as an art, and now he laments that his art is fast slipping into a stereotype process of cutting, clipping and curling.

He served once as apprentice to M. Marcel, inventor of the marcel curling irons. That, of course, was when he was a mere boy. Since then he has traveled from Paris to Cairo, to Leningrad, to London, to New York, and now to Washington, always studying and practcing his art.

He believes that no woman should be unduly influenced by hair styles but should first of all insist on a coiffeur which expresses herself.

"Inevitably such a coiffeur can be adapted to the mode," he explained, "so it isn't a question of a woman having to look like another to look well."

Roman Bridge in Wales.

A relic of the days when Roman legions fought against Welshmen has been found near Cardiff, Wales. It is an old Roman footbridge consisting of a slender stone arch which rises high in the center.

Child Chats

By Alice Fox Pitts.

A MOTHER is disturbed because her 15-year-old daughter covers the walls of her room with pictures of handsome film stars cut from movie magazines. Of all the celebrities the world offers, these are her idols. When she goes to the movies, she wants to see only the most romantic films and when she reads her choice of books shows the same trend. Alarmed, her mother would like to know how she should handle the situation.

The first thing to do is to recall your own youth. Remember the "Graustark" novels and how you lived for years in the realm they created? Then don't deny the daughter of this generation the same thrill that romantic motion pictures and their stars, provide for her.

Of course, you want her to outgrow that stage, but to display any disapproval of her interests does no good. The thing to do is to help to wean her away from them by presenting a different kind of mental and emotional fare.

Motion picture producers these days are offering a wealth of worthwhile entertainment, beautifully done, adventure and animal pictures and dramatizations of literary masterpieces. See that the adolescent includes these in her recreational programs. Ask the librarian to give you a list of books that are good literature and at the same time exciting reading and call them to the attention of the 15-year-old. The right ones are certain to appeal to her.

Now and then there is a youngster who intuitively likes the best, but for the most part culture and good taste are developed gradually.

Remain Single, Advice to Grads In $1,500 Jobs

SHOULD a college graduate with a salary of $1,500 a year get married?

He should not, an audience recently decided, after hearing a debate at Pennsylvania State College. Participants were men from the college and women students from the University of Pittsburgh. A man and a woman debated on each side of the question.

Each team set up a budget. The affirmative sought to demonstrate that a young couple could live comfortably on $1,500. The negative contended for a minimum nearer $2,000, insisting that the difference represented the escape from constant irritations caused by penny pinching.

The affirmative insisted the modern college woman was a capable manager and that cooperation would mean a happy home on $1,500 a year.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

WE depend on the retina of the eye to convey the sense of sight to the brain. This structure, a delicate white membrane, is an expansion of the optic nerve and lines a considerable portion of the eyeball. The retina tells us that we see, just as the olfactory nerve transmits the sense of smell and the auditory nerve conveys sound.

Accident or disease that causes displacement or detachment of the retina may mean loss of sight. Fortunately the condition is not very common. It usually affects persons past middle age and is more frequent in those with myopia or nearsightedness. It sometimes follows an injury in which the eye itself is struck with a blunt instrument. When there is no history of injury the cause is usually a degeneration of the retina itself with the formation of small holes through which fluid is able to pass behind the structure, loosening it from its support.

Within the last few years, following the work of Prof. Gonin, of Lausanne, Switzerland, the importance of the holes in the retina previously mentioned has been recognized, and it has been found possible to close these holes by various surgical means. When such holes are closed the retina usually returns to its proper place and vision in the affected portion is restored unless the detachment has existed for too long a time.

CULBERTSON on BRIDGE

I can not feel as sorry for the declarer on the hand below as he did for himself. He went down at a final contract of four spades. He complained bitterly to his partner it was his luck that the trumps never broke fo r him. His partner either missed the point, or was too polite to point out the fact that he had lost the hand through nobody's fault but his own. A simple little safety play would have assured the contract, even against bad trump division.

North, dealer.

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

North	East	South	West
1◇	Pass	Pass	2♣(1)
Dbl.	Pass	2♠	Pass
4♠(2)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—West can not be particularly criticized for reopening. He assumes on the bidding his partner must hold some strength.

2—A rather optimistic bid with a partner who has passed to an opening one-bid but a gamble which looks reasonably safe.

The Play.

The opening lead was the club King, and the Ace in dummy captured the trick. A low spade was led from dummy and when East ducked, South, not knowing the distribution, naturally went up with his Queen. This card held the trick, and South, with a complete lack of foresight, returned the suit, hoggishly hoping to get rid of all the trumps at one lead and then work on making five-odd. Of course, West showed out and East won the trick with the Jack and laid down the Ace. South had to go down one at his contract as he could not muster ten winning tricks.

After the spade Queen held the second trick, South can make four-odd by merely playing safe for that contract and mentally conceding to the opponents two spade tricks and a club. South should abandon the trump suit and start taking in tricks as fast as he can, ruffing diamonds in his own hand at every opportunity. Dummy can be entered with the diamond Ace and a diamond led and ruffed. Two heart leads to dummy allows two more diamonds to be ruffed in dummy, and now the good thirteenth diamond is led. West is completely helpless and nothing he can do will enable him to take more than his two trumps and a club trick.

Happiest Wives Are Japanese, Writer Finds

ALTHOUGH many modern Japanese women wear tailor-made clothes and dye their hair platinum color, they still undo their husbands' shoestrings and kneel in front of the door before entering a room where men are gathered. They not only make the finest wives but are considered the happiest women in the world.

A great deal of this happiness comes from the esteem with which women are held in Japan. There, in contrast to other Oriental countries, they are loved and spoiled. For centuries Japanese men have taught the women that their only duty is to make the life of men more agreeable, more peaceful, more refined and more comfortable. Thus Japanese wives are regarded as precious toys. Yet they have their own ideas and are encouraged in the expression of them.

Experience Recalled.

At least that is the way life in Japan impressed Claude Izabert, who wrote a description of it for Paris Vu. The article was translated by the Milwaukee Journal.

Izabert recalled an experience he had at luncheon with two "mogas" or westernized Japanese women.

"When coffee was served after dinner I offered cigarettes to my girl guests," he wrote. "When they had accepted them I lit my lighter and held it before them. At that they burst into laughter and when I asked the reason for such hilarity they said, 'You see with us in Japan it's always the woman waiting on the man.'"

Talked French Fluently.

Both of the Japanese girls were wearing dresses and hats copied from the latest Paris fashions. They talked French fluently and conversed brilliantly on politics, French literature and motion pictures, according to the writer.

Braid Retains Its Popularity As Hair Style

Self-Adjustable Ones Are on Sale for as Little as 95 Cents.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

IT WAS EVERY bit of three years ago that Norma Shearer appeared at one of Hollywood's famous premieres wearing a halo braid. She made such a lovely picture that other movie queens were quick to follow her example. From Hollywood the fad sped Eastward and in no time at all a new fashion was born—or, at least, reborn.

Unlike the usual fashion, however, halo braids did not die in a season, or even two or three. Just look around and see how many well dressed women adhere to the flattering coronet coiffure. And on the screen, too, notice how nearly all the stars wear braids at some time or other in their new pictures.

The reason for the lasting popularity of the halo braid is not hard to understand. It is a versatile little hairpiece than can almost miraculously transform a simple, ordinary hairdress into a glamorous coiffure. For instance, you can wear it in a triple braid, Roman fashion, or coiled, rosettelike and pinned to the side, or like a diadem.

The cleverest, most snug-fitting braid of all is the self-adjustable one. It features an invisible elastic which slips under your hair and holds the braid in place without a single pin. If you'd like to give yourself a brand-new look and a grand new personality this self-adjustable braid is sure to do the trick. You may buy it for as little as 95 cents or as much as $5.95 in the beauty salon of a downtown store.

A Chance Discovery.

There is a certain attractive young woman who has a veritable genius for compounding creams. In fact, working away with simple compounds and making something out of them has been her indoor sport for years. And it might have remained a sport and never reached the category of business if it hadn't been for a chance discovery. One day after the young woman had been working assiduously on one of her concoctions, she suddenly noticed how soft, smooth and white her hands were. Not daring to believe, she called her mother and she in turn rubbed some of the cream over her hands. When it was removed the skin was less dry and much smoother. The dishpan look had gone completely.

Straightway the young woman set about commercializing on her product. Now it may be found on the counters of an F street store. It comes in a large 1-pound jar and costs only 39 cents. You'll be a wise woman if you keep some of it by your kitchen sink and use it regularly.

Spring Collection of Gowns.

A certain charming woman and clever designer is in Washington showing her spring collection of gowns. She says her feature models were inspired by the diplomatic and residential hostesses of the National Capital.

Virtually all of her dresses are designed for older women whose clothes must be dignified and at the same time smart and modish. Among those she is showing are several models revealingly named, "Ambassadoress," "Diplomacy," "Embassy," "Cabinet Dinner," "Cherry Blossom" and "Madame America."

The visiting designer is the widow of a former commander in the former Russian Imperial Navy, who was killed in the revolution. Her fashion background is Paris, and dates back to the time she designed a dress to wear to a garden party at the Russian summer palace. The Tsar himself remarked on the beauty of the simple summery frock which stood out in contrast tot the ornate costumes then in fashion.

Among her friends she is known as the "commuting designer" because she divides her time between Washington, New York and Boston, has clients in all three—and even along the way.

Varicolored Scarfs.

Scarfs, striped like Joseph's coat of many colors, are going to be a rage this season. There's no need to explain why. See them and you'll understand!

They have that certain something that gives sprightliness to a costume. They're such a perfect combination of colors that they go with anything. They're vivid, gay, smart and sure to be the personality plus of your spring wardrobe.

Guest Soap Featured.

The successful hostess is the one who takes pleasure in providing her guests with every convenience and extending every courtesy. She is the one who does not feel that any detail is too small to be attended to if it will contribute to the comfort and pleasure of her guests.

She would delight in the guest soap featured in a downtown store. This comes in small oval cakes scarcely larger than a guinea egg. It has a delicate rose fragrance, sweet and haunting.

Two-Piece Cotton Frock Appropriate Now or Later

Pattern No. 810.

STEAM HEAT has made the light cotton or silk dress a year 'round house fashion. This little two-piece frock, so very easy to slip into, is quite appropriate for indoor wear now—and it gives you a start on your warm weather clothes.

Notice how easy it is to make. The soft collar is dart tucked, with a ribbon tie. The sleeves are simple. The two-piece skirt is straight and quickly made. It is economical of fabric, too. The sizes are 12 to 20; 30 to 38. Size 16 (34) requires only 3¾ yards of 35-inch fabric.

Recipes for Meat Substitutes Win Prizes in Weekly Contest

By Dorothea Duncan.

TRY THESE prize-winning recipes for the meat substitutes during the Lenten season.

First prize, $3, in this week's Post recipe contest, is awarded Mrs. J. D. Hudgins, 101 Archwood avenue, Annapolis, for her recipe for Cape Cod fricassee of scallops with mushrooms; second prize, $2, goes to Miss Olive Wingo, 610 F street northwest, for her recipe for molded rice with shrimp sauce, and third prize, $1, to Mrs. Elizabeth McNeal, 1505 Harvard street northwest, for her recipe for noodle ring.

Honorable mention is awarded Mrs. M. L. Rushlow, 1803 Biltmore street, for her recipe for Welsh rabbit; to Miss Margaret Pressley, 4759 Reservoir road northwest, for her recipe for cheese cutlets, and to Mrs. T. J. Hewitt, 1717 Vermont avenue, for her recipe for fish roe cakes.

The recipes follow in the order mentioned.

Cape Cod Fricassee of Scallops With Mushrooms.

1 pound of scallops
½ pound fresh mushrooms
1 small onion
3 tablespoons butter
¼ cup cooking sherry
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup whole milk
Salt and pepper
¾ cup scallop liquor

Parboil scallops, drain and cut into medium-sized pieces. Fry sliced onion in butter. Add mushrooms cut up and saute 5 minutes. Blend in flour. Add the scallop liquor, sherry and the milk gradually, and stir until it thickens. Season. Add diced scallops. Pour into buttered baking dish or scallop shells. Cover with buttered bread crumbs and bits of butter. Bake in a moderate oven until brown. Serves six.

Molded Rice With Shrimp Sauce.

One cup rice, 3 tablespoons butter, ½ cup cream, 2 egg yolks, 2 cups rich milk, 3 tablespoons flour, 3 tablespoons butter, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1 cup grated cheese, 2 cups cooked shrimp. Cook rice until tender and flaky, mix lightly while still hot with the butter, cream and slightly beaten egg yolks. Pour into an oiled mold and bake in a pan of hot water in a moderate oven about 20 minutes, or until firm. Meanwhile, cook the butter, flour and salt together until frothy; add the milk slowly and stir until thick. Mix with the shrimp and cheese and let stand over boiling water until well heated. When ready to serve pour over the rice, turned out on a platter.

Noodle Ring.

1¾ cups uncooked noodles
2 eggs, separated
¾ cup scalded milk
1 cup grated cheese
Salt and pepper
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
3 tablespoons chili sauce

Cook noodles in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Beat egg yolks slightly and gradually. Pour over them the milk, in which cheese has been melted. Season with salt, pepper, Worcestershire sauce and chili sauce. Add noodles. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into greased ring mold. Set mold in pan of warm water and bake in slow oven (345 degrees F.) until firm. About 50 minutes. Serves six.

Welsh Rabbit.

½ tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
⅛ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash cayenne
½ cup beer
1 egg
½ pound Old English cheese

Mix all seasonings to a smooth paste. Add the beer, put into a saucepan and place over a pan of hot water. Put over the fire and let stand until the beer is hot. Add the cheese, which has been cut into pieces. Stir in the same direction until the cheese is melted. Beat the egg, add a small amount of the hot mixture to it, then add the egg to remaining hot rabbit. Cook a moment, stirring constantly. Serve on crisp, fresh toast.

Fish Roe Cakes.

1 can fish roe (large size)
1 tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon minced parsley
3 eggs
Salt and pepper to taste

Drain 1 can fish roe and mix in the 3 eggs well beaten. Then add the flour and salt and pepper. Fry in hot bacon drippings or butter by dropping good-sized spoonfuls of the fish roe batter in the hot drippings. Fry to a golden brown and garnish with minced parsley and slices of lemon.

Recipe Prizes Are Offered For Potatoes

WE AMERICANS depend upon potatoes at least once a day. How do you housewives keep them from becoming monotonous? Next week The Post's recipe contest will be devoted entirely to ways of serving potatoes.

There are so many women in Washington from every corner of the United States that these recipes should be very interesting. You women of the South will know how to cook sweet potatoes to perfection. Ways of serving both sweet and Irish potatoes will be eligible for a prize next week.

Three prizes will be awarded—$3 for the best recipe, $2 for the second best and $1 for the third best. Send your recipes to Dorothea Duncan, Home Economic Editor of The Washington Post. Only one recipe from each contestant will be considered for the prizes.

All recipes should be typed, if possible. If not, write them neatly in ink. Recipes should be checked carefully for omissions.

The name and address of the sender should appear on each sheet submitted. All recipes should be received by Thursday.

Three Men and Diana

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

Diana Carmichael's grandmother kept a boarding house down at the end of Mason avenue, where the town trailed out into empty lots and railway fences. Diana slept with her grandmother in the back parlor, and papa's cot was shoved under the sink, in the big closet, which had once been a dressing room. Diana suffered at being poor. She could not dress as the other girls dressed. She longed, too, to go to college. That ambition was so strong that Diana had no thought left for boys. For the first time her wealthy friend, Joan, asked Diana to spend the night at her home. She was introduced to Bruce Palmer, Joan's cousin. Afterward Joan told her Bruce had fallen in love with a "perfectly terrible woman," cautioning her not to tell.

THERE was a long silence. The two girls were motionless in the warm spring night, while the moon climbed steadily over a dark blue sky thickest with stars.

"Bruce didn't want to go tonight," Joan began, after a while, in her amused, indulgent voice.

"Didn't?"

"No. He gets himself all dated up, and then he hates it."

A College Affair.

"Does he—does he go back to Harvard?"

"Oh, no. He's graduated! He had to take two extra terms to finish up. But he actually graduated with his class last June."

"And is he going to be here, in Bayhead, now?"

"Well, we don't know. Bruce," Joan said, lowering her tone, glancing cautiously back toward the dimly lighted windows of the house as she spoke, "is just over a—a terrible affair, you know."

"At college?"

"Well, he was at college, but it had nothing to do with college. He——" Joan jerked her long chair a little nearer to Diana's chair in the shadows—"he fell in love with a perfectly terrible woman," she added.

"Oh?"

"Now, don't ever breathe that I told you this, Di!"

"I won't, of course."

"Because, honestly, he'd never forgive me. It was really terrible. Aunt Emily nearly died over it, and Uncle Chase went east and talked to Bruce, and all that!"

"Goodness!"

"She was a Broadway chorus girl, and she was mixed up in that Steelman scandal."

"Goodness!" Diana could only breathe again.

"Imagine it. Bruce! You see, they wanted to get her out of the way, and she slipped, away to Cambridge, and stayed with a woman who pretended to be her sister, and changed her name. Bruce met her—how on earth was he to imagine anything wrong? They fell madly in love with each other. He wrote Aunt Emily about it—oh, last Christmas—and she just thought it was an ordinary nice girl, you know, one of Bruce's crushes. And all the time it was this Lily Brugiere."

"I remember that name, but I don't remember the case."

A Scandalous Affair.

"My dear, this girl—with practically nothing on—ran around an apartment house screaming that a man—a very rich man, too—had killed himself."

"Oh, horror!" Diana murmured.

"Horror, I should say so. And this is the girl," Joan ended dramatically, "who has to come up to Harvard and carry on with Bruce!"

"Well, but was she—I mean, did she do it? Were the police after her?"

"No, she was just a witness. She just got out of the way."

"Did he——" Diana asked rather timidly, after a pause—"did he take it hard?"

"Well, it almost killed him, of course," Joan answered readily; "but he knew it was—simply—out of the question! He told my uncle he wanted to have one talk with her, and I guess they settled it all then. Anyway, in April, when Aunt Emily was on there, she—this girl—was playing again, and Aunt Emily asked Bruce if he would like to see the show, and he sort of yawned and said he would, and then said he would not, anyway, they didn't go."

"I wonder," Di began dreamily, "if he still loves her."

"Oh, no, he's all over it. But it certainly," Joan said earnestly—"It certainly has made an older man of Bruce. Mother sees it; we all do. I don't think he'll ever marry now."

"Does he—does he talk about it?"

"Oh, heavens, no! Not to anyone. He shuts up like a clam, if you even mention the stage, or murders, or anything."

She Felt Depressed.

Over with no pleasant result, too—no "We'll do this again next week," from Joan, no "We'll see you soon again, Diana," from Joan's mother.

No. Joan's mother had been asleep when the girls had breakfasted and started for school in the big car; Bruce had not come home at all. Everything had been flat, stale, depressing.

Joan and Connie had evidently made it up, whtever their difference had been. They were together all through the recreation period, and Connie carried Joan off for lunch. Diana usually brought her lunch, for Rutherford was 11 long blocks away from home; but of late Miss Benchley had asked her to sit with the smallest girls at noon and encourage their first shy efforts at French conversation, so she had her hot good lunch now with the rest.

She did not happen to see Joan or Patsy after school. Elinor always stayed for gym, and Connie had coaching in geometry. Today Diana walked home alone with her books and suitcase.

It was very hot; a sultry spring day. Bayhead smelled like a hothouse; lilacs and roses and low garden flowers scented the still moist air. Suddenly Diana felt tired and jaded; her head ached, she wanted to cry.

Newspapers had blown across the front yard; yesterday's hot sun had burned them yellow. A flock of little Coggleses, fluffing in the dust like chickens, were under the backyard willow. The kitchen door sagged open; nobody was in sight.

Diana went on into the back parlor, threw down her suitcase and books. She tossed off her hat, pushed the hair back from her wet forehead. Her heart was lead.

Back in the kitchen again she buttered herself a large, cold biscuit, selected prunes from a bowl and filled the saucer up with their pale, thin juice. She sat down to the feast at the kitchen table, but for a while she did not eat. She remained motionless, staring into space.

On all sides of Diana were the distempered dirty walls of the kitchen; the windows with their dangling strips of lifeless gray net curtains; the chipped and grease-darkened floor.

Diana Reported.

Her grandmother came in, with her face dark and wet from the heat. She had been shopping and lowered from a cramped arm the various paper bags she carried.

"Asparagus, six pounds for two bits," she panted, accepting Diana's kiss. "I said to him, 'That's 'most as cheap as carrots!' Well, did you have a good time?"

Diana reported everything with false animation and enthusiasm; Joan was such a darling, and their place was simply marvelous! She followed her grandmother into their dark room.

"I believe I'll lie down for a few minutes and put those things away later. Di, did you see the shoes at Philliber's?"

"No, and there was a sale today, wasn't there? Some of us said last week we'd be there, and then I forgot."

Mrs. Chamberlain, relaxed against her sodden pillow, with her shabby old feet among Diana's books, stretched her lean hands for her purse. She extracted a $5 bill.

Could Not Stay Home.

"They're selling those sandals at four sixty-nine," she said. "I got this money for you at the bank and you walk right over and get your graduation shoes. You'll wear 'em all summer—my gracious, it feels good to lie down for a minute!"

"Gram, stay there. I'll get supper, and I'll be right back and clear up!" But Di had snatched her hat again. Anything to get out into College avenue in the late afternoon, see who was there and perhaps join the crowd at Sticky's!

She could not stay home and think of Bruce, and feed only with dreams and hopes the gnawing need to see him—hear his voice—again.

Uptown, next to Philliber's Shoe Store, was the Nosegay. The Nosegay was a smart little flower shop, which several gentlewomen were running for the Junior League. Joan went in there sometimes and helped them sell things; lots of the Junior League girls did.

Their window today had Sicilian jars in it, and a long-legged Negro doll, and only one great burst of banksia roses as flowers.

Diana, in no hurry, was struck with a sudden inspiration as she passed it; she turned back.

There had been talk of Mrs. Rowley's birthday at the Rowley house. Sunday would be mother's birthday. Why not send her a little birthday reminder in the shape of a nosegay, and also as an acknowledgment of her hospitality? Diana's blood began to dance, and her eyes sparkled. She went into the Nosegay.

Five minutes later she was out in College avenue again, feeling a little flat. The potted pink rose was handsome; but already Diana had an uneasy sense that it might be too handsome. She had written on the card: "With wishes for a happy birthday and thanks for a wonderful visit, lovingly, Diana," and now that began to seem a little extreme, too. She wished she had left out the "lovingly."

No shoes, now, but she could wear her old ones—have them cleaned by the colored man in the Medico-Dental Building doorway.

Then Misgivings Seized Her.

"She'll have lots of flowers, she won't pay any attention to my card, she'll just think it was a nice thing to do! I wish I'd sent her just a few marigolds or something, but—oh, what of it!"

She must deceive her grandmother, too; tell her the shoes were "coming." Diana thought of the lean, old hand reaching for the $5 bill, and her soul was sick within her.

Before ever the asparagus and the meat cakes and the doughnuts for dinner were on the table her whole spirit was in a blaze of shamed protest against what she had done; she could not bear the thought of it. Sending a rich woman like Mrs. Rowley, who lived in a very garden of flowers, a $4 rosebush!

Diana lay awake again that night, but tonight there were no moon-washed dreams; she was writhing in an agony of shame. They would know that she did not know how to do graceful social things, they would laugh at her!

But the next day she remembered that Mrs. Palmer had said that she wanted to see her. That was surely an excuse to telephone; that meant something. Perhaps it meant help. "Diana, I've been watching you. Of course, I hear of you in school through Patsy and Joan. Now if $200 would help you——"

Or perhaps it would be: "Diana, we want someone to be with Patsy and Noni this summer, to help them with their school work. Mr. Palmer and I were wondering if you could come with us to the lake and just keep them in touch?"

No, she would not run away until she had at least responded to Mrs. Palmer's invitation. There must be some reason for it, and it was probably a nice reason.

U. S. Airway Lists 135 Stewardesses

Service Now Provided From Coast to Coast.

The total number of flying girls on the New York-Chicago-Pacific Coast midcontinent route has now increased to 135, with the placing of stewardesses aboard planes on the Los Angeles-Salt Lake route of Western Air Express, which connects with United Air Lines' coast-to-coast service at Salt Lake City. This provides stewardess service all the way from New York to Southern California as well as other Pacific Coast points.

Employment of a corps of stewardesses on this airway marks the use of air hostesses on planes operated by three air transport companies in the United States. This newest profession for women was created in 1930, when United Air Lines placed stewardesses on the Chicago-San Francisco division of its coast-to-coast route and subsequently on all of its planes. United has received 15,000 applications for air stewardess positions.

Vitamin D Averts Tooth Decay.

An important factor in keeping teeth from decay is Vitamin D according to studies made recently at Columbia University by Dr. E. C. McBeath. Child feeding experiments proved the efficacy of a daily amount of Vitamin D in warding off tooth decay.

Legislators Map State's Aid Program

Joint Committee, Nice Seek Way to Meet $14,000,000 Need.

Prescott Bill Proposes Governor Name ABC in Montgomery.

By Francis O. White, Jr.,
A Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., March 8.—On the heels of conclusions reached by the joint relief committee of the Maryland General Assembly and State Relief Administrator Harry Greenstein, that Maryland will need close to $14,000,000 for general relief, another joint group was named today with the view of determining a definite State program.

The committee immediately went into conference with Gov. Nice, and after protracted discussion adjourned to meet again Monday.

Named from the Senate by President Lansdale G. Sasscer, Prince Georges County, in addition to him are Senators Prescott, Montgomery County, who headed the original group; Dodson, of Talbot; Hofferbert, Wyatt and Every, Baltimore City; Veasey, Worcester; Baile, Carroll; Melvin, Anne Arundel, and Coad, St. Marys.

Speaker Emanuel Gorfine appointed the following from the House: Mulliken, Prince Georges; Popp, Allegany; Friedel, Conley, Baker and Lehnert, Baltimore City; Hanley, Baltimore County; Hayden, St. Marys, and Evans, Somerset.

$4,000,000 Held Limit.

The original committee fixed $4,000,000 as the maximum amount the State could raise in any year, and suggested that the program when finally shaped be submitted to a group of representative citizens of the State for "constructive criticism," before being incorporated in a bill for submission to the Legislature.

The committee prepared a schedule of estimated revenue from the several tax proposals now pending before the General Assembly.

Transferring power of appointing the liquor control board of Montgomery County from the county commissioners and placing it in the hands of the Governor, and providing for a purchasing agent of the board, are salient features of a bill presented in the Senate today by Senator Stedman Prescott.

Senator Prescott sponsored another measure authorizing the Montgomery County treasurer to appoint his own attorney or attorneys at an aggregate annual stipend of $1,200, and a stenographer at $1,300.

Proposes School Holidays.

Delegate John S. White, of Prince Georges County, offered a bill to make Memorial and Armistice Days school holidays, and a measure by Ernest Tingley, also of Prince Georges, provides for the election of a mayor and treasurer of the Town of Edmonston in the current year and thereafter. The bill also would change the date of the municipal election from the first Monday in July to the first Monday in May, and would prohibit the mayor, councilmen and treasurer from having any interest in contracts made by the municipality.

Three administration bills to amend the workmen's compensation law were introduced in the Senate by Senator Baile (Republican), Carroll County, minority floor leader. One measure is designed to prohibit the Industrial Accident Commission from making any modification of claim awards, within three years of the last final award, but no award shall be considered final unless designated by the commission as such. A second bill fixes 60 days instead of 30, during which an employe is required to file claim for compensation, and bars any claim if a year should elapse, unless the delay is occasioned by fraud or other circumstances amounting to an estoppel, while the third proposal deals with certain technicalities regarding awards in hernia cases.

Utilities' Revaluation Asked.

A resolution presented by Senator Phoebus, Somerset County, directs the Public Service Commission to revalue properties of utilities companies of the Eastern Shore by August 1 of this year, unless the corporations should provide a 10 per cent reduction in rates, or the commission should order such reduction in the interim.

The Senate passed and sent to the House the bill by Senator Kimble, Allegany, providing for a nonprofit hospital association in Allegany County. The organization would be required to have the approval of the State insurance commissioner, the State tax commission, and the State board of aids and charities; and rates would be submitted to the insurance commission for approval. The measure directs that the association shall invest only in securities approved for investments of life insurance companies, and the association would be exempt from all taxes.

Other Senate bills to pass third reading were:

Bill for distribution of liquor license fees in St Marys County.

Bill Sent to Governor.

House bill, by the Dorchester, Somerset, Wicomico and Worcester delegations, providing increased pay for the court stenographer of the first judicial circuit (upper Eastern Shore). This bill now goes to the Governor for approval.

New proposals in the Senate included the following:

Empowering the Governor to fill vacancies in the General Assembly caused by death, requiring the supervisors of elections of Washington County to advertise for bids on all printing and publishing contracts involving $500 or more. The former bill requires a constitutional amendment and, therefore, carries a referendum clause.

In the House new introductions included these:

Relieving the tax collector of Frostburg from furnishing bond, and that the compensation of that official be fixed by city ordinance.

Direct the mayor and council of Frostburg to close two alleys, and award compensation to property owners thereon. One alley is between Park avenue and Oak street, and the other runs from Oak street to Park avenue.

Authorizing Kent County commissioners to borrow up to $50,000 during 1935 and 1936.

Requiring description of property before deeds are filed for record in Charles County and providing for audit of county books also of Charles County.

Requiring the Governor to name a commission to study the advisability of extending Patapsco avenue, Brooklyn, to the Washington boulevard.

Prohibiting defense of State's immunity be'ng used in cases brought as a result of negligence or wrongful conduct of State departments, commissions or employes.

Prohibiting transfer of deeds in city clerk's records of Crisfield until property is recorded in county court clerk's office.

Amending the Dorchester County liquor laws to permit sale of alcoholic beverages from 6 a. m. to 1 a. m. (midnight is closing hour under present law); requiring that signers of applications for license shall have resided 365 days in the community where a place is to be opened; prohibiting the sale of beer on Sundays, and requiring hotels, restaurants and taverns to post four notices.

Request bill requiring automobile and motorcycle drivers to renew operator's licenses annually; June 1 is fixed as time for renewal and the commissioner of motor vehicles would be empowered to refuse licenses in cases where he deems applicants unqualified. The requirement for special chauffeur's license is eliminated. Provision for appeal is included in the bill.

Guy K. Motter Recommended As Postmaster

Urged for Frederick Post by Democratic State Central Committee.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., March 8.—Guy K. Motter, for a number of years justice of the peace, was recommended for postmaster of Frederick by the Democratic State central committee, William J. Grove, chairman, announced today.

The selection was made after 37 ballots had been taken in a secret session, the other candidates being W. Jarboe Grove and Hammond Clary.

The committee took 37 ballots yesterday without a choice.

The final ballot was 5 to 1 in favor of Motter. The recommendation will be sent to Representative David J. Lewis, who will present it to the President.

Mr. Motter is a well-known attorney and has been active in politics for a number of years. He was a supporter of Gov. Ritchie in the recent election. The salary is $3,400 per annum.

Allen Jones Selected As Best Boy Orator

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., March 8.—Allen Jones, of the Crozet High School, whose subject was "Boy Scouts of America," was declared the best boy public speaker in the Albemarle public schools at a contest held in the auditorium of the First Baptist Church in this city.

Hanford Hall, of Earlysville, and Carroll Beasley, of Stony Point, tied for second place. The judges were Henry Johnson, John B. May and C. D. Bennett, of the University.

16 Millions Works' Cost In Maryland

School, Highway Project Listed; Direct Aid Avoided.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, March 8.—Approximately $16,000,000 was spent in Maryland on work relief projects in 21 months ending with January. This included all funds spent for the purpose in the State.

Francis H. Dryden, State engineer for the Maryland Emergency Relief Administration, in making the figure known, said approximately $9,500,000 was spent by the Civil Works Administration; $3,500,000 in the original works program and $3,000,000 by the MERA.

The CWA at one time had 51,000 persons employed and initiated 1,186 projects. The MERA has initiated 800 projects and has employed an average of 10,000 persons since its formation, Dryden said.

Dole Avoided.

The funds have been spent on works projects rather than dispensing them as dole, the engineer asserted. Numerous permanent improvements have resulted from this policy.

All counties have participated. Carroll and Harford counties did not take part in the relief program, but did in the CWA activities, Dryden said.

Among the works jobs now under way are pest control, principally regarding the Japanese beetle and mosquitoes; building of roads, streets, sidewalks and gutters; landscaping and grading; erosion control and such other activities as woodcutting, canning, mattress-making and sewing.

Schools Erected.

Many schools have been erected, said Dryden, often the material being taken from abandoned buildings. Reservoirs have been built in a number of communities. A stadium was constructed for a Negro college near Baltimore.

"One of our most important jobs has been to construct sidewalks along busy roads," Dryden stated. "We have built miles of them. It keeps school children off the roads."

At present 84 men are working under the direction of the Baltimore Park Department in an attempt to control elm disease, which is threatening Maryland's elm and beech trees. These men, including 54 laborers, 8 tree climbers, 16 tree trimmers and 6 foremen, are removing affected trees and burning them.

250 Attend Parley On Virginia Relief

Meeting Held to Clarify Aims of Program.

By the Associated Press.

Fredericksburg, Va., March 8.—General objectives of the emergency relief program in Virginia were stressed here today at a meeting attended by 250 VERA officials and employes from counties and towns in the Tidewater and Piedmont sections.

No effort was made to anticipate future development in the relief program such as may result from congressional action on the President's relief bill.

"Our sole purpose is to explain and clarify for our workers and the public the program that has already been mapped out," Administrator William A. Smith said. Particular emphasis was put on rural rehabilitation and the all-work program.

Jobs for Transients Urged in Virginia

Aid of Idle in Charitable Work Suggested.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., March 8.—Use of transient unemployed in the manufacture of articles needed in public welfare work was recommended today by the transient labor committee of the State advisory counsel, Virginia State employment service, in a report filed by Dr. Louis Loeb, Newport News, with the counsel chairman, Col. LeRoy Hodges.

A study of the problem of employing the unemployed men and women collected in camps established by the Government in Virginia is worth further study, the committee reported, especially with a view to using their services to supply welfare and social agencies with needed equipment and supplies, such as mattresses, furniture and, possibly, clothing.

"Transients from other States should not be used in normal employment of the State, except as there is a scarcity of skilled or technically trained workers," the report said.

Marburg Given Credit For Origin of League

Former Ambassador to Belgium Gave World Peace Idea to Taft and Wilson, Speaker Says at Meeting of 150 Delegates at Chestertown.

By the Associated Press.

Chestertown, Md., March 8.—Theodore Marburg, former United States Ambassador to Belgium, was credited today by Miss Jessie Snow, of Baltimore, as one of the originators of the idea which developed into the League of Nations.

Miss Snow, who is secretary of the Maryland Branch of the League of Nations Association, was the principal speaker on the final program of the two-day annual peace conference at Washington College. Approximately 150 delegates from colleges and universities of Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia attended.

In urging "organized action" to promote peace and its continuance "in the face of future wars and discouragement," Miss Snow asserted that the world peace movement was started by Theodore Marburg, who "later enlisted the interest of William Howard Taft and Woodrow Wilson."

She said the diplomat was one of the organizers of the original League to Enforce Peace. This idea, she added, later spread to England, France and Germany and was the genesis of the League of Nations. The speaker related the history of the league.

"The covenant of the League of Nations," Miss Snow asserted, "is the most remarkable document written by human hands since the Bible, and the 26 articles of the preamble stand as a bulwark around which we may rally in years to come in our efforts to make the world peace-conscious."

Peace Sought In Labor Row

Staunton Clothing Plants Announce Normal Schedule Monday.

By the Associated Press.

Staunton, Va., March 8.—Conferences have been called over the week-end in an attempt to eliminate differences between union and nonunion laborers that have given rise to mild disturbances at the L. Grief clothing factories here the last few days.

An official of the company said tonight that the plants will resume operations Monday on the normal schedule, after the customary off day, Saturday. Rumors were current today that the plants might shut, down pending settlement of the difficulties.

A. P. Anderson, manager of the Pump street plant, was picked up bodily and carried out of the plant this morning by women workers, but their act was termed here as a "friendly gesture."

A crowd of nonunion employes yesterday prevented several women they called union "agitators" from entering the plants.

Salem Will Get New Postmaster

Postoffice Department Asks Recommendation From Woodrum.

By the Associated Press.

Representative Woodrum, of Roanoke, had before him yesterday a request to recommend a new postmaster for Salem, Va.

The Postoffice Department, in asking for the recommendation, informed Woodrum that Walter H. Oakey, postmaster there since January 18, 1932, had been removed for "irregularities."

The nature of the irregularities were not explained in the letter to Woodrum but Postoffice Department officials said nothing blamed against Oakey involved his personal honesty. It was explained that "irregularities" as used by the department covers "any infraction of postal regulations," such as failure to spend enough time on the job and failure to answer correspondence promptly.

Woodrum referred the request for a recommendation to the Roanoke County Democratic committee. Oakey was appointed by President Hoover for four years from January, 1932.

Shepherdstown Election Will Be Held Monday

By a Special Correspondent.

Shepherdstown, W. Va., March 8. Shepherdstown is to have a corporate election Monday, March 11, with only one ticket in the field. Technically, there are two tickets, the People's and Taxpayers', but the Taxpayers' ticket has no candidates.

Candidates are: For mayor, J. L. Waldeck; for recorder, A. S. Lucas; for councilmen, W. H. S. White, W. W. Waddy, A. E. Boswell, D. H. Tabler and J. H. Robinson.

Editors Choose Shanahan Head

New By-Laws Adopted at Meeting of Maryland Press Association.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., March 8.—Samuel E. Shanahan, editor of the Easton Star-Democrat, today was elevated to the presidency of the Maryland Press Association to succeed John Worthington, of the Bel Air Argus.

David S. Jenkins, publisher of the Evening Capital and the Maryland Gazette, of Annapolis, was elected secretary and treasurer, the position Shanahan held before today's annual meeting of the association.

In the absence of the retiring president, P. Watson Webb, publisher and editor of the Cambridge Banner, presided. The association adopted a new set of by-laws.

A luncheon was served at 1 p. m., at which the special guests included Gov. Harry W. Nice, State Senators Mary E. W. Risteau, of Sharon; J. Allan Coad, of Leonardtown; Lansdale G. Sasscer, of Upper Marlboro; Ridgely P. Melvin, of Annapolis; Joseph L. Donovan, of Ellicott City, and John D. C. Duncan, of Lutherville, and Emanuel Gorfine, of Baltimore, speaker of the House of Delegates.

Threatening Bees Retreat in the Cold, Relieving the Law

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., March 8.—The thermometer dropped, snow fell and cold March winds howled here today, bringing happiness to at least one man—Deputy Sheriff A. J. Wigginton.

Several days ago, Deputy Wigginton was handed a warrant to levy on about 40 hives of bees as part of an attachment suit. Then the weather was spring-like, the bees had started to break from their winter lethargy and show signs of activity. So active were they that Wigginton thought it best not to attempt to make the levy.

Today, the cold weather drove the bees back into their hives and Deputy Wigginton began making plans for carrying out the order of the court at an early date.

Top Prices Are Paid In Farm Stock Sale

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., March 8.—Top prices for farm stock were realized at the general sale conducted in Jefferson County this week by John W. Irwin on his farm near Charles Town.

A 10-year-old mare brought $227, while the highest price for a horse was $225. The average for six horses sold was $200. Twenty-four dollars was paid for a 3-month-old calf, and a year-old registered bull brought $71. Hogs sold equally well, one sow with nine pigs bringing $55 and another with a litter of six, $46.

Women Urge Social Security Be Kept Free From Politics

Speakers Issue Warnings As Democratic Women's Regional Conference on Government Comes to an End at Williamsburg, Va.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., March 8.—Representatives of six Southern States today closed their Democratic women's regional conference by going to Williamsburg for a luncheon.

The final session in Richmond of the two-day meeting was featured by warnings by speakers to keep social security, which the gathering indorsed, from becoming a "political football."

Miss Lavinia Engle, former Maryland legislator, asserted old age pension and unemployment insurance funds should be protected and used conscientiously. She also denounced subsidies to new industries which often "pay less than a living wage" in the communities that welcome them.

Mrs. Olin D. Johnson, wife of South Carolina's Governor, discussed the Negro problem as it affects unemployment relief in the South. She said employes should contribute voluntarily to work insurance.

Other speakers today were Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, head of the woman's department of the FERA; Mrs. Caspar Whitney, of Washington, and Mrs. J. K. Parkman.

State's Right To Fix Prices Of Milk Argued

Control Act Goes Before Virginia Supreme Court for Second Time.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., March 8.—The State Supreme Court today was called upon for the second time to decide the constitutionality of the controversial milk control act.

Several months ago the court held the law invalid but later nullified its decision and ordered a rehearing.

Attorney General Abram P. Staples personally argued the case today for the State, while S. D. Timberlake appeared for the appellants, who are dairymen of the Staunton area.

Attorney General Staples argued that the State had the authority under its police power to regulate the milk industry. He cited precedents intended to show that the police power embraces the establishment of regulations designed to promote "the general prosperity" of the people.

Says Majority Favor Law.

He contended that the control act was necessary to protect the dairy industry, comprising one-quarter of the State agricultural business, from destructive competition, and said the great majority of dairymen favor the law.

Timberlake argued that the milk business is not "affected with a public interest" and that the price-fixing sections of the control act were unconstitutional.

Arguments were completed and the case submitted, as was that of the Commonwealth versus Imperial Coal Sales Co., a tax case from Lynchburg Circuit Court which has been before the Supreme Court several times.

Bond Issue Fought.

The next cases on the docket are Scott versus Lichford, from Lynchburg Corporation Court, in which Scott, a taxpayer, seeks to enjoin the Lynchburg City Council from issuing $320,000 in bonds to fund a floating debt, and the case of Dobie versus Sears, Roebuck & Co., appealed from Alexandria Corporation Court, in which Dobie sued the mail order firm for rescission of a contract to build a house for him, which he contends was built unsatisfactorily.

Randall Expected To Be G.O.P. Choice

Due to Be Candidate for Mayor of Baltimore.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, March 8.—Blanchard Randall, jr., was reported to have been tentatively selected as the Republican candidate for Mayor of Baltimore today in a conference in Annapolis attended by Gov. Nice and William P. Lawson, Republican State chairman.

A final decision on the party's choice to contest the May election with the Democratic nominee was said to have been put off until Sunday to enable supporters of former Mayor William F. Broening to be heard in his behalf.

Several candidates have announced for the Democratic mayoralty nomination.

Parry Freed, Court Flays His Accusers

Detective Miller Told Prosecution Was 'Ill-Advised.'

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Va., March 8.—James Parry and Ernest Carter were acquitted late today of charges that they fatally clubbed Pauline Parry, sister of the former.

Augusta Trial Justice W. Herrell Sheehan, in granting a motion made by Attorney Louis F. Jordan, of the defense counsel, that the charges be dismissed, added "Not one iota of evidence has been presented in prosecution of the case, and the defendants are completely exonerated." He termed the prosecution of the men as the most "ill-advised" ever brought to his attention.

Detective Guy Miller, who obtained the warrants against Parry and Carter, which have resulted in their spending the past four days in jail, was the principal prosecution witness, and when he left the stand Justice Sheehan remarked that he had been "thoroughly discredited."

Attorney Felix E. Edmonds appealed to the court to order a warrant issued charging Miller with perjury, but was refused.

Both Parry and Carter pleaded not guilty to committing the attack on Miss Parry last August which resulted in her death three months later. Clarence Meadows, local merchant, and Wilbur Wright, barber, who Miller claimed had "valuable" information, testified that they knew nothing about the case. Wright testified that the detective had told him, "I am going to get some money out of this case and if you tell me what you know I'll make it worth your while."

City Manager I. G. Vass denied the detective's statement that he had advised Miller to obtain warrants against Parry and Carter, saying that he had suggested the evidence be first referred to Commonwealth's Attorney John D. White before making any arrests. Mr. White, who was conducting the prosecution, stated at this point that the detective obtained the warrants without his knowledge or sanction.

The removal of Parry and Carter from the Augusta Jail to Waynesboro for trial this afternoon came as a surprise, since a bail hearing had been set for Saturday at 10 a. m. before Judge Joseph A. Glasgow, of circuit court. Only court attaches and newspapermen were in the courtroom when the hearing began, but as word circulated on the street the courtroom quickly became jammed with spectators.

Girl of 20 Fires Shot Into Heart

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., March 8.—Despondent over poor health, Miss Ira Dale Chandler, 20, daughter of Charles H. Chandler, superintendent of the Rockingham County Farm, returned from a church supper late last night and ended her life by firing a bullet through her heart.

Coroner F. L. Byers said it was a clear case of suicide. Miss Chandler had suffered from bronchial asthma for years and was in a depressed mood during these attacks. She leaves six brothers and two sisters. Funeral services will be held Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson Will Begin a Week of Personal Appearances Today

ColumbiaStage Has Felt Tread Of Stage Great

By Nelson B. Bell.

For the first time in many, many months dressing rooms are being made habitable in the Columbia Theater. The task presumably has been completed by this time, but for the past few days Manager Frank Taylor has been busily occupied putting the back stage quarters in readiness for the arrival this morning of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, for a week of personal appearances in conjunction with the showing of their latest picture of African wild life, "Baboona."

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will make four daily appearances at the Columbia throughout the engagement of "Baboona." The precise hours at which they will appear will be found in the "Film Time Tables" elsewhere on this page.

The Johnsons, weather permitting, will arrive in the Capital this morning in one of the giant Sikorsky planes used in the aerial safari that flew over 60,000 miles of African jungles to film this unique epic of the wilds.

Two of these huge planes were used in making the picture—one painted with zebra stripes was called "Osa's Ark," in compliment to Mrs. Johnson; the other, painted in giraffe spots, was known as "The Spirit of Africa." Both have been undergoing thorough overhauling. The Johnsons will arrive here in whichever one the mechanics got properly tuned up first.

Russian Ace Is Pilot.

Because the Department of Commerce has altered flying regulations since the Johnsons' last visit to the States from Africa, where they make their permanent home, and since they must be reexamined before their pilot licenses can be renewed, their plane will be flown here by Boris Sergievsky, famous Russian ace, who also piloted the African expedition. Sergievsky was decorated no longer than a fortnight ago for his outstanding areonautical achievements.

The tread of human feet once more upon the ancient boards of the Columbia's stage will recall to more than one veteran of the theater that it was in this house that many interesting chapters were written into the annals of the Washington theater.

It is within my own warm recollection that it was here that I saw twice in one day—a holiday matinee and night—that most tuneful of old-time musical comedies, "The Prince of Pilsen," with Jess Dandy in the stellar role; Frank Daniels and Blanche Ring in "Sergeant Brue," one of the best of the late comedian's later vehicles, in which Miss Ring introduced two of her most famous song hits, "On a Saturday Afternoon" and "Rings on My Fingers and Bells on My Toes."

Cohan's First Musical.

It was on this stage, too, that George M. Cohan began his ascent to the foremost place in the American theater by launching "Little Johnny Jones," the first of a long succession of musical hits, although "Johnny" didn't start out by being one from the first jump. The "Yankee Doodle Boy" had to borrow $10,000 to get it into New York. His father and mother, Jerry and Helen, his sister Josephine and the first Mrs. George M., Ethel Levy, all were in it.

My first glimpse of Julia Sanderson, likewise, was on the Columbia stage, 'way back yonder when in private life she was still Mrs. Tod Sloan, wife of the famous jockey.

And it was here that Andreef brought his famous Balalaika Orchestra, to give Washington its first taste of the hauntingly lovely music that can be coaxed from these Slavic mandolins under musicianly conductorship; here, also that Eugene Ysaye, violin virtuoso, was accustomed to give his recitals and on the same stage that Fritzi Scheff made musical comedy history in Victor Herbert's "Mlle. Modiste," with William Pruette and Claude Gillingwater in the supporting cast, the former thundering forth that admirable challenge of the bassos, "I Want What I Want When I Want It."

Ambisextrous Star.

When Julian Eltinge ventured out of vaudeville to enact the title role in a full-length musical comedy, "The Fascinating Widow," of which the company manager was the late Jake Rosenthal, husband of Kathryn Osterman, a noted actress of her day, and father of the contemporaneous Jack Osterman, it was at the Columbia that he premiered. And speaking of Eltinge—whose real name, of course, was Bill Dalton—he came back later on to the same boards the Johnsons will tread this week as a featured member of the cast of the Cohan & Harris minstrels, with "Gentleman Jim" Corbett, former heavyweight champion, as interlocutor and George "Honeyboy" Evans one of the ends—a place subsequently occupied with unique distinction by Raymond Hitchcock as pinch-hitter for the "Honeyboy" when appendicitis laid him low.

The first theatrical performance your reporter ever covered in Washington, by the way, was Jim Corbett's "The Burglar and the Lady," at the old Academy of Music, now the Strand, the company manager being one Charles Warren McClintock, occasionally celebrated in this space as avant courier for Cornelia Otis Skinner's peculiarly stylized character sketches and dramatic sequences, written by herself for solo performance.

Our first bout with George Bernard Shaw brings us back to the Columbia. The play was his cryptic "Man and Superman," with Robert Loraine, Frank Craven and Blou Fernandez in the cast. Mr. Loraine and Mr. Craven both went on to glory in the theater and Miss Fernandez became a successful play broker.

Any sketchy exploration of the old days of the Columbia, before the late Marcus Loew and his astute associates took the house over for their magic lantern shows, would be incomplete without some mention of the Columbia Players, the summer stock company with which Helen Hayes and Ruth Chatterton both made their debuts and with which through the years were associated such "names" in the theater as Guy Standing—now Sir Guy Standing devoting his talents to Hollywood and the cinema and recently seen with Gary Cooper and Franchot Tone in "Lives of a Bengal Lancer"—Wilton Lackaye, Hilda Spong, Charlotte Walker, Julia Dean, A. H. Van Buren, Dorothy Bernard, Paul McAllister, Jessie Glendenning, former wife of Gilbert Miller; Everett Butterfield, a casualty of the Great War; Izetta Jewell, who became a political figure of some note; George Barbier, famous for his screen impersonations, and his wife, Carrie Thatcher, and scores more still fresh in the memories of the faithful among Washington theatergoers.

And how, pray, did all this get started? Oh, yes, the Johnsons.

Well, there will be ghosts of something more than lions, giraffes, elephants, leaping impallas, monkeys and boa constrictors hovering about them when they set foot on that Columbia stage today.

They may not see them, but others will.

Senator Huey Long's own composition, a song bearing the title of "Every Man a King," played by Ina Ray Hutton and Her Melodears, is being screened at both the Earle and Metropolitan Theaters, beginning today, as an item in the new issue of the Paramount Sound News. Both the Kingfish and the dynamic and platinum Miss Hutton are shown in the reel, which was made during the recent engagement of Miss Hutton and her orchestra at the Earle.

The film was made by the local crew of Paramount News, headed by Robert Denton, Paramount's local representative. Walter Swenson was in charge of the local sound recording and, by one of those odd perversities of fate, the cameraman was one "Hu" Johnson!

Probably the only reason Mr. Johnson is still living is that his first name really is "Hugo" and not "Hugh." Or perhaps that is the only reason the Senator is still living!

$40,000 Worth of Envy!

Crowds of women that literally jammed the second floor of the Hecht Co. establishment yesterday witnessed two fashion shows, featuring the $40,000 worth of gowns worn by Irene Dunne, Ginger Rogers and others in the RKO-Radio picturization of Jerome Kern's musical comedy, "Roberta," which today begins its engagement at the RKO-Keith Theater.

Eleven gowns, loaned by the producers to the Hecht Co., were on display. They were brought to the Capital from Baltimore by armored truck and were heavily guarded even during yesterday afternoon's displays at 2:30 and 4:30. The style show was in charge of Miss Frances Goodacre, who described each gown as it was paraded by on a mannequin and then displayed stock gowns to illustrate the pronounced effect of the "Roberta" costumes on smart spring fashions.

The models participtaing in the style revue were the Misses Joan Asher, Mary Jane Semmes, Marian Somerville, Florence Harris, Suzanne Shepherd, Dorothy Nicholson, Marian Clear, Bernice Bidely, Helen Harbaugh and Mrs. Nan Wiley.

The completed cast for "The Field of Honor," the new three-act play by Mrs. James M. Souby, which the Pierce Hall Players will present on Wednesday and Thursday, March 27 and 28, is now in rehearsal under the direction of Ina Hawes and includes several newcomers to the group, notably T. C. Gardner, who formerly played in a Toledo stock company; Dixie Diket, formerly of the Little Theater in New Orleans; Clarence Moore and Howard Wentworth, both of whom have appeared in the local productions of the Drama Guild of Washington. Others in the cast include Frank Jamison, Elinor Cox Karsten, Helen Shields, William Austin Davis, Clifford Harris, George Farrington, John Sikken, Paul Alexander, Larry Hart and two child actors, Mina and Stuart Hackstaff.

While "The Field of Honor" has never been given a professional production, its performance here will not represent a first time on any stage. It already has been successfully presented, so Mrs. Souby tells me, in Des Moines, Iowa.

Listening in on Legit.

One with a sensitive antenna wound around in the top of his hat might pluck out of the circumambient these days certain surreptitious changes that are being made in the plans for the final weeks of the 1934-35 season of the living drama.

For example, it might be possible to listen in on the sorry news that "Hollywood Holiday," the new play starring Bebe Daniels, Ben Lyon and "Skeets" Gallagher, of the film colony, with Kathryn Givney in support, will not, after all, be presented as one of the late season bookings at the National.

It might be similarly learned that "Accent on Youth," tentatively announced as one of the National Theater Players' ostensible vehicles, is out by reason of its requirement of a cast longer than Panjandrum Stephen E. Cochran has been in town—which is plenty long.

Others to Come.

There is a faint ripple, of which reception, as yet, is not too good, that, instead of one of these, will come a new Crosby Gaige piece bearing the strange title of "Ceiling Zero," or "Sealing Zero," or "Stealing Zero," or "Seething Zero," or something that falls upon the ear in vibrations of about that frequency.

Then there is the item concerning the last of the Theater Guild's subscription plays, which would be "Rain from Heaven," with Jane Cowl and John Halliday. This is coming along as the last of the season's touring road attractions and is coming pretty late. Just how late would surprise you.

So to get all these matters straightened out and his National Theater Players gathered in, Panjandrum Cochran, accompanied by "Dutch," his favorite stooge, is shaking the mud of the Potomac from his Silvertowns, come Saturday morning, and Packarding to New York for another week of cajoling, coaxing and conciliation.

Keep-Your-Left-High Note.

Just because this column, by some fluke, was made one of the vice presidents of the newly organized Washington Post Club is no reason why everybody has to begin calling him "Alexander Throttlebottom"!

Or is it?

In New Films Opening Today

When he comes to the screen of Warner Brothers Earle Theater today, Edward G. Robinson will be seen in the sort of picture that made him famous as a star of the cinema—"The Whole Town's Talking" is the title. In this subject Mr. Robinson appears in a dual capacity as a timid little clerk and "Killer" Mannion, who makes things a little tough for him. It is Mr. Robinson above at left. At right is that vivacious young woman, Ginger Rogers, as she appears with Irene Dunne and Fred Astaire in "Roberta" at RKO-Keith's, beginning today.

Postlude

Concert by the Philadelphia Orchestra in Constitution Hall; Eugene Ormandy, conductor. Program: Chorale and Fugue in D minor (Arnold Zemachson), Symphony No. 2 in D major (Brahms), "Navarra" (Albeniz-Arbos), "Moto Perpetuo" (Paganini), Suite from "El Sombrero de Tres Picos" (De Falla).

In the cordiality of the welcome extended Eugene Ormandy on his annual visit, the young conductor of the Minneapolis Orchestra must have felt he was the guest not only of the musicians he directed but of Washington's music lovers as well. Recalls were numerous and the approval of the auditors burst forth on occasions other than those appointed for demonstrations. The program was one of intrinsic merits and of continuous interest in matters of interpretation.

Arnold Zemachson's Chorale and Fugue is an admirable work, soundly constructed in every contrapuntal detail, richly harmonized and ingenious in instrumentation. The chorale section is particularly impressive in its dignity and its sonorous eloquence, which rises to a splendid climactic effect. The fugue, with its bustling and energetic principal theme, is excellently worked out to a powerful conclusion.

Mr. Ormandy's reading of the Brahms symphony revealed his conviction that the work is not entirely compact of sunshine, joy and vernal emotions. There was considerable soberness in his accents and tempi, although none of the vitality of the music was suppressed. It was an interpretation tempered by an evident sympathy with and understanding of the complex character of Brahms, in whom reticence and outspokenness were continually at war.

Once accused of obscurity and even of confusion in his musical thought, Brahms is becoming for later generations increasingly intelligible and illuminating. The sheer magic of which he was capable, in such passages as the coda of the first movement of this symphony, by mere changes in speed and rhythm, is exercising more charm with each passing year.

The latter half of the program provided rhythmic excitement and flashing colors, with a predominance of Spanish atmosphere. The urgency, the fire and abandon of the "Navarra," as orchestrated by Fernandez Arboz, and the rhythmic subtleties and rough humor of the three dances from Manuel de Falla's ballet were conveyed in irresistible fashion.

Into this mood of urgency fitted very neatly Mr. Ormandy's arrangement of the Paganini "Perpetual Motion," in which 18 members of the first violin section were soloists in unison against a lightly sketched background of accompaniment. When he planned this tour de force, Mr. Ormandy must have had in mind just such a virtuoso orchestra as sat before him. The violinists accomplished the feat with such remarkable unity of phrasing and tempo that the house broke into applause that lasted until they had risen three times in acknowledgement.

Mrs. Neville Left Estate of $219,062

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leesburg, Va., March 8.—The will of Mrs. Mary Dulaney Neville, widow of Robert Neville, who died on Monday at her home, Pelham, near Upperville, has been probated in Loudoun County Court.

This document discloses an estate valued at $219,062, including real estate amounting to $25,000 and tangible and intangible personal property amounting to approximately $194,000.

Her home, Pelham, containing 298 acres, is given to a niece, Mary D. White, and after certain other legacies, amounting to approximately $4,000, and outstanding debts are taken care of, the residue of the estate is bequeathed equally to her nieces and nephews as follows: Fanny L. Morison, Grace L. Tayloe, Mary D. White, Ethel L. Gaither, Neville L. Atkinson, Elizabeth H. Lemmon, the children of Eva D. Randolph, two-thirds of which is subject to the life interest of Dr. A. C. Randolph, and trust funds for Janet L. Rozzel and Isabel L. Gardner.

Daniel Will Seek Office in Loudoun

Announces Candidacy as Revenue Commissioner.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leesburg, Va., March 8.—Harry C. Daniel, son of J. O. Daniel, former member of the Virginia House of Delegates from Loudoun County, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for commissioner of revenue in Loudoun County, in the August primary. Mr. Daniel is a graduate of the Lincoln High School and attended the State Normal School in Harrisonburg for three years.

It is generally understood that Reginald L. Nixon, incumbent commissioner of revenue, will be a candidate to succeed himself, although no formal announcement has been made.

Others who have announced their candidacies for various positions subject to the Democratic primary are Mayor Charles F. Harrison, for Commonwealth's attorney in opposition to John Galleher, incumbent, and H. C. Thompson and P. J. Coleman, for the House of Delegates.

Richmond Aid Cost Less.

Richmond, Va., March 8 (AP).—Total city and Federal unemployment relief expenses in Richmond in February were $90,135.87, a decline of a little more than $100 as compared with the amount spent in January, the City Social Service Bureau reported today.

Steamer Passenger Saved by Captain of Tug.

Norfolk, Va., March 8.—A. W. Stanton, 29, of Elizabeth City, N. C., was saved from drowning today by Capt. A. W. Davis, of the tug Peerless, a few minutes after he had dropped from the deck of the Old Bay Line steamer State of Maryland. The incident occurred as the steamer passed the Army base just before 7 a. m.

Stanton was taken to the United States Marine Hospital, where he is resting comfortably. He refused to make any statement, hospital authorities said.

W. J. Stanton, of Norfolk, a brother, said Stanton was returning on the steamer from Baltimore, where he had been under treatment at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

STEIN on SUNDAYS

● GERTRUDE STEIN'S curious juggling of the King's English has created the most controversial literature of this era. Everyone who reads has an opinion of Miss Stein's work—either violently pro or violently con. There's no such thing as a luke-warm sentiment on this question.

● AT ANY RATE, Gertrude Stein knows her audiences—whatever her audiences may think of her. She also knows her subjects, and if her sentences are as long as her hair is short, her words are as alive as Prohibition is dead.

● WHETHER you've been following the amazing growth of this literary light since its first feeble glimmer in the "Tender Buttons" days or whether you were first left blinking by the brilliance of "Four Saints in Three Acts," you'll want to read the series of five articles Miss Stein has just completed for The Post. John Marshall Trims Eastern; Staunton Defeats Bethesda

Guyon Team Is Beaten, 27 to 24

Is Ousted From Tourney After Leading, 15-11, at End of Half.

Chevy Chase Is Downed by Score of 47-33 in Quarter-Finals.

Massanutten (Va.) Academy, 30; Asheville (N. C.) School for Boys, 25 (extra period).
Tech High School (Atlanta), 43; Virginia Presbyterian, 38.

By John R. Vosburgh.
A Staff Correspondent.

LEXINGTON, Va., March 8.—Washington basket ball fans and teams passed through a long, hard evening here tonight as the only two schools from the Capital area, Eastern's interhigh champions and Bethesda-Chevy Chase's Montgomery County champions, were forcefully ousted from the twelfth annual Washington and Lee interscholastic tournament.

It was one blow after another for the faithful from the banks of the Potomac River and Eastern Branch. First, Eastern, the favorite to win the championship, was tumbled out of the show by John Marshall High, of Richmond, 27 to 24, in the biggest upset of the tournament, and then the Marylanders from Bethesda collapsed before Staunton Military Academy, 47 to 33.

Eastern Dream Ends.

This, then, was the end, not only of the rosy past of this once all-powerful Eastern combination but also of the rosy future which had been predicted for it in this and other championship classics of 1935.

This was the humble niche which had been reserved for it—defeat at the hands of a team it had brushed aside like a puff of smoke, 34 to 24, earlier in the year on John Marshall's home floor at Richmond.

Chief consolation salvaged out of this rather deplorable state of affairs into which Washington basket ball fortunes ran tonight, was the game fight which the younger, lighter, more boyish kids from Bethesda put up against the grizzled, pugilistic-looking Cadets from Staunton.

The fight of Bethesda could well have been used to advantage by Eastern. Lacking tonight was the aggressiveness which the Guyon crew had produced all season when the going gets hot. Only occasionally was the battling instinct which pervades the make-up of a great schoolboy basket ball team apparent. Certainly, Eastern could not be said to have deserved to win.

Eastern Leads, 21-19.

The Lincoln Parkers ran into trouble from the start. They were trailing, 7 to 5, at the end of the first quarter. Then in the second period, they looked like Eastern used to look and led, 15 to 11, at half-time. They were ahead, 21 to 19, going into the last quarter but folded up completely before the smooth-working offensive of the Justices in the final ten minutes.

From a technical angle, Eastern lost the old ball game from the foul shot line. Eleven times Eastern players were given the gratis attempts and only four times did they make good on them. John Marshall, on the other hand, was making good five out of nine attempts. For another standpoint, Eastern lost because Lavelle (Dope) Dean, its great guard, was not as great as he usually is. He scored 8 points but it was not the Dean of old—his long-shot talent was stifled. In fact, it never came into sight.

Such complication of diseases paved the way for John Marshall to enter the semifinals, in which they will play Massanutten Military Academy tomorrow afternoon. Massanutten upset Asheville School for Boys, 30 to 25, and Tech High, of Atlanta, Ga., followed the Cadets into the semifinals with a 43-to-38 victory over Virginia Presbyterian. Atlanta meets Staunton tomorrow also. John Marshall holds a slight shade over the other three teams as favorite to win the title annexed last year by Charlotte (N. C.) High.

Eastern Off Form.

Eastern, overwhelming conqueror of Charlotte on Thursday, was but a semblance of its former self, and John Marshall contributed greatly in helping to change the identity. The Justices held Buddy Shaner and Fred Scheible, usually good for several points apiece, scoreless.

Chuck Hollidge carried much of the burden for the Light Blue. His three points, plus some by Dean and Edelen, kept the team in the running in the first quarter, but Russ Bolling and Rudy Boschen, of John Marshall, opened up in the second with a short flurry of scoring which had Eastern on the short end of the count at one time, 11 to 7. Hollidge, Edelin, Dean and Hollidge

Womer to Captain '36 Virginia Boxers

Undefeated Welter Elected Unanimously.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., March 8.—Maynard E. (Mutt) Womer, Virginias' brilliant welterweight boxer, was unanimously elected captain of the Cavaliers' 1936 ring team at a meeting of lettermen last night.

Womer, whose home is in Johnstown, Pa., has been undefeated in two years of dual competition. He retained the conference championship he won last year in the annual tournament here several weeks ago.

A third-year student, Womer had no boxing experience before entering Virginia, but has developed into the class of the conference field under the instruction of the Cavalier's ring master, Coach Johnny LaRowe.

Cruickshank And Armour Defeated

Picard, Revolta Shoot Record 61 to Turn Back Favorites.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, March 8.—The Miami Country Club course best-ball record fell today to the brilliant 61 posted by Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta on the morning round in their crushing 6-and-4 defeat of Tommy Armour and Bobby Cruickshank, heavy favorites in the International four-ball golf tournament.

The par-smashing round of Picard and Revolta clipped 11 strokes from "perfect" figures for the rolling links, and one stroke from the previous best-ball record, established last year by Denny Shute and Al Espinosa.

It was left to Gene Sarazen and Harold McSpaden, sensation of the winter golfing circuit, however, to provide the final thrill of a nerve-tingling day. Four down to Wiffy Cox and Billie Burke on the twenty-seventh hole of their quarter-final match, Sarazen and McSpaden overtook the pair of veterans on the thirty-sixth and went on to win, 1 up, on the thirty-ninth.

Card 29 on Home Nine.

But even such performances as these failed to dim the sparkling 29 turned in by Vic Ghezzi and Willie Klein on the home nine of the first 18 holes of their match with Willie Macfarlane and Harry Cooper. With the aid of that score, Ghezzi and Klein won on the fifteenth green in the afternoon, 4 and 3.

Meanwhile, Paul Runyan and Horton Smith, the team that was ranked second only to Armour and Cruickshank in pretourney clubhouse talk, entered the semifinals on a 5-and-4 win over Johnny Golden and Bill Mehlhorn.

Conference Track Meet Due Tonight

Capital Stars Will Vie at Chapel Hill.

By the Associated Press.

Chapel Hill, N. C., March 8.—The sixth renewal of the Southern Conference indoor games here tomorrow night has drawn leading collegiate and scholastic stars of the cinder path and field here from points as far north as Newark, N. J., and as far south as Atlanta by tonight.

The main show will start tomorrow night at 7:15 with some 46 educational institutions having their track, weight, jump or vault stars listed for the competition. Preliminaries to the big top will be staged in the afternoon, when some of the long-drawn-out events will be run through to completion.

Virginia and Maryland varsity teams were expected in tonight to join representatives of Clemson, South Carolina and other conference division schools already here. Duke and N. C. State entries will not come over until tomorrow. Most of the schools sent along some freshmen tracksters.

LaSalle Five Triumphs.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., March 8.—LaSalle Institute closed its 1934-35 basket ball session at SS. Peter and Paul gym by defeating Altoona Catholic High School in the return game, 38 to 28. Phil Fleming took scoring honors by accounting for 12 points. LaSalle won 15 and lost 7 during the season.

Season's First Run as Giants Blank A's

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

The 1935 baseball season got under way at Miami Beach yesterday afternoon and here's the first tally. Hughie Critz is crossing the plate for the New York Giants as Jimmy Foxx, in his new role as catcher for the Philadelphia Athletics, is far out of the play. Pinkie Higgins is at third for the Mackmen. The Giants won, 5-0, in the first interclub battle of the training campaign.

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich

Biloxi, Miss., March 8.

WITH a refreshing frankness almost heretical for a baseball manager, Bucky Harris sat down with your correspondent today and outlined the outfield situation on the Nats, with gestures. The gestures took the form of cutlass maneuvers with his knife and fork as Harris attacked a red-rare beefsteak built on the lines and general dimensions of home plate.

HARRIS.

Throughout it all I bravely remained on the fringe of No Man's Land as Bucky drove home his points with rapier-like thrusts of the hotel silverware that all but severed your humble servant's juglar vein. It started out as a discussion and developed into a monologue by Harris as I concentrated on preserving my physical well-being.

As he warmed to his subject—the Nats' outfield, not your correspondent—I learned to outsmart him. After a few providential escapes from the path of his weapons, I discovered that he invariably hooked with his fork and jabbed with his knife. By dint of incessant bobbing and weaving, I escaped with my life and a pretty fair idea of what Harris thought about his outfield and outfielders.

At that, I'm glad there's only one Heinie Manush in the Washington outfield. As Harris came to the subject of Manush, he lent emphasis to his esteem for the big outfielder by waving a worcestershire-stained knife full into my face so perilously close to the proboscis that I lost my carefully-acquired Biloxi tan almost immediately, if not sooner.

"THIS outfield of mine (Harris speaking) can stand some juggling and I can't tell yet how it's going to work out. It ought to be for the better, though. I'd like to get some more hitting power in there. And there's a fair chance that we will do it. There's two jobs open for a couple of fellows who can produce.

"I want to take a good look at this Powell and this Sington. They can have a job the minute they prove themselves. Heinie Manush is the only fixture in our outfield, right now. Johnny Stone and Fred Schulte will have to beat out these kids. If they do, we'll be no worse off than last year, and it wasn't a bad outfield then. But if either Sington or Powell land a regular job, they've beaten out a pretty good man and the team will be that much better off.

"Of course, as I understand it, one difficulty is that Sington can't play center field, so I'd have to do some juggling to get him in the line-up if he began busting the ball. It would be hard to shift Stone to center and let Sington play right. Stone is not a great center fielder. He doesn't get that quick start that a center fielder needs. He can't get the start that Schulte gets, for example, or like Sammy West does.

"Stone looks fast, like a lot of other ball players do, but the fans don't notice such important things as getting away at the crack of the bat. I'll bet that in a crowd of 20,000 at a ball game, no more than 50 fans notice how an outfielder breaks toward the ball. The fans' first impulse is to follow the ball as it leaves the bat, and then watch the outfielder. They never know what kind of a start he has taken.

"IF Sington can slam that ball like they tell me, nobody will be happier than I. I understand Joe Cronin didn't like the way the big fellow followed through his swing with only one hand on the bat last spring when he was in Biloxi. Well, I don't care if he carries the bat in his teeth, as long as he hits.

But there's no sense denying that young Powell figures to be a better bet than Sington. He's naturally a center fielder and faster on the bases than either Sington or Stone. Sington is fast for his size, but his size is against him as far as speed is concerned, and Stone never was able to get a decent lead off a base.

"From what I've seen of Powell, he ought to be a great help. The way he powdered the pill at Albany for that .346 average means something. It's Fred Schulte's job he's after and whether he gets it or not, we're gonna have a pretty swell center fielder. And with Heinie Manush in left field, we'll have an outfield that we won't have to apologize for. This Manush——"

AS he started to dwell upon Manush, Bucky's knife described an arc that all but decapitated your correspondent, who was happy to see a bellhop page Harris for a telephone call that I am sure was, as far as I was concerned, heaven-sent.

Giants Subdue A's, 5 to 0, In Opener

First Exhibition Game of Season Is Watched by 1,200 Fans.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, March 8.—The major league exhibition baseball season opened officially here today with the New York Giants defeating the Philadelphia Athletics, 5 to 0, before a crowd of 1,200. The Giants collected ten hits off three Philadelphia rookie hurlers while three New York pitchers held the American Leaguers to six safe blows.

The score by innings:

New Y. (N)...101 002 01x	5	10	0

Martin's Arm Like New.

Bradenton, Fla., March 8 (AP).—John Leonard (Pepper) Martin, the wild horse of the Osage, had his first baseball workout of 1935 at the St. Louis Cardinal camp today and said his left arm, sore spot of last season, was as good as new.

Pepper underwent an operation during the winter for removal of two chips of bone that had bothered him through last season and the World Series.

Strong Is Impressive.

Orlando, Fla., March 8 (AP).—Ken Strong, whose professional baseball career apparently was ended when he fractured a wrist a couple of years ago, provided the highlight of the Dodgers' workout today with his comeback efforts. Strong did some terrific hitting.

Alexandria Gains Final in Clash D

Charlottesville, Va., March 8 (Spl.).—Alexandria and South Norfolk High Schools will clash for the Class D basket ball championship at 11 a. m. tomorrow in the Memorial Gymnasium here. The two teams are survivors of a tournament of District winners held under the auspices of the Virginia High School Literary and Athletic League.

In the first round between District champions, Alexandria outscored Vinton High, 36 to 19, and South Norfolk swamped Fincastle, 42 to 22, while Harrisonburg encountered difficulty in nosing out South Boston, 30 to 24.

Alexandria drew a bye in the semifinal round, while South Norfolk finished going away in defeating Harrisonburg, 51 to 25. The Tidewater district champions went on a scoring spree at the start and were never headed.

Northern Va. League In Baseball Meeting

The Northern Virginia League, of The Washington Post Baseball Association, will hold its first meeting of the year next Thursday night at The Post Building at 8 o'clock. Teams which competed last season and other clubs seeking franchises are requested to have representatives present.

Junior Tourney Slated At Poolesville Tonight

The first annual Montgomery County Junior High School basket ball toruney is scheduled at 7:30 p. m. today at Poolesville High, with Rockville, Poolesville, Sherwood and Damascus competing for the trophy donated by the Athletic Association of Poolesville.

Manager Pins His Hopes on Hadley and Linke This Season.

By Shirley L. Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

BILOXI, Miss., March 8.—Like the patter of childish feet, the rain is beating down upon Biloxi again. Outside, the Gulf of Mexico extends into a misty nothingness only 200 yards away. Embarrassed chamber of commerce officials, whipped by the fourth consecutive day of rain, are hibernating downtown, far away from the Nats' hotel. There is no practice. The lobby is littered with ball players, poring over pinochle and rummy hands. Manager Bucky Harris is at lunch.

It was the setting for a rainy-day story, but there was nothing that smacked of drabness when Bucky Harris began to talk. The downpour dampened everything but Bucky Harris' regards for his ball team as the day gave him pause to reflect upon his line-up. He was figuratively on fire with enthusiasm.

"I'll never understand how this ball team finished in seventh place last year," he declared inquiringly, "even with all those injuries. We're no seventh-place ball club. This team doesn't belong in the second division. Not with the kind of ball players we have.

Will Be Tough Club.

"Why, this club shapes up as the best team I've managed since I left Washington in 1928. And I had some pretty fair ball clubs at Boston and Detroit during those six years. If we get a few breaks, we're going to be awful tough. We're going to be tough, any way."

The prime factor in Harris' profound respect for the team, he said, was the manner in which Bump Hadley and Ed Linke figured to bolster his pitching staff, which he admitted was the greatest question mark when he took over the management of the club last winter.

"Those two fellows can make our club," declared Bucky. "Look 'em over—Whitehill, Burke, Weaver, Hadley, Linke and Russell. There's pitchers enough to win the pennant, other things being equal. Either one of 'em, Hadley or Linke, could be the top pitcher in that gang. And the way they are both throwing the ball in training makes a manager feel pretty good.

Calls Linke Great.

There's no question in my mind but that Linke is positively recovered from that arm trouble he had. He couldn't be steaming the ball in there the way he is if he had the least bit of trouble with his wing. And when he's right I've seen enough of him to know he can be a great pitcher.

"If I had to lose any one pitcher, I'd prefer it would not be Hadley. That fellow means more to us than

His Arm Sore, Whitehill Is Cautioned

Harris Cites Lefty Grove's Effort to 'Work Out' Kink Last Year.

By a Staff Correspondent.

BILOXI, Miss., March 8.—The first untoward development of the Washington Club's training camp occurred today when Earl Whitehill, No. 1 pitcher of the Nats' staff, reported a painfully sore arm as the result of recent workouts.

Manager Bucky Harris tonight expressed himself as no little worried over Whitehill's ailment. During the four years that Whitehill had performed at Detroit, where Harris was manager, and during his two seasons with the Nats, the star southpaw never had complained of a sore arm in practice.

Recalls Grove's Trouble.

Fresh in Harris' memory is the experience of Lefty Grove with the Red Sox last year when Grove's arm went lame unaccountably. Grove, too, had never before experienced soreness in his pitching arm.

Harris today cautioned Whitehill about attempting to "pitch out" the soreness by constant work. When Harris was manager of the Red Sox last year, Grove's insistence that he could "work out" the kink in his arm resulted in aggravating the ailment and kept him out of a regular turn all season.

Ruth to Play 1st Base Against Reds Today

By Alan Gould.
Associated Press Sports Editor.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 8. Babe Ruth will make his debut at first base tomorrow when he puts on the uniform of the Boston Braves for the first time in competition.

The occasion will be the first of two games with the Cincinnati Reds at Tampa tomorrow and Sunday, opening the "Grapefruit League" season on the Florida west coast. It will put the turnstiles to the test for the first time since Ruth changed his allegiance from the American to the National League. The club owners in both leagues will watch closely.

Manager Bill McKechnie hasn't changed his mind about figuring Ruth as an outfielder for the championship season, but the Babe wants to try first base and Bill is willing. It will give the veteran more action, especially as he likely will play only portions of the first few exhibition games.

Legs Feel Better.

Ruth said today, after four days of training under as hot a sun as Florida has had all winter, that his legs felt better than at any time in the last five years.

"They say the first 20 years are the hardest," he grinned, "so maybe I'm getting a new lease on my baseball career. I've seen plenty of players come and go during my time, but I'm not through yet."

Babe's hands are sore from gripping the bat, but otherwise he hasn't had an ache or pain yet in his 235-pound frame. He has already reduced a couple of pounds from his grand total and tightened his belt one notch since reporting to the Braves.

Ruth thinks Dizzy Dean grabbed all the better of it by wagering he wouldn't yield a Ruthian home run within the first four official times at bat for the Babe this year against the ace Cardinal pitcher.

"I'd like to average one homer for every four times up during a season," laughed Ruth. "What a record I could set up on that basis. I don't know how many I'll collect this year, but I will be in there trying to tee off."

Then the big fellow chuckled: "They say you're always dangerous as long as you keep on swinging."

For years the Braves have batted against a background of palm trees, waving about the short center-field fence. The Babe squaked about it the first time he came to bat, and carpenters promptly were put to work to triple the height of the barrier, giving a solid and less distracting background. Evidently it has some weight, at that, for Ruth to have an executive's as well as player's influence in the club affairs.

Bicycle Racers Ride On and On, Nobody Knows What or Why!

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, March 8.—There is frequent complaint to this department during the football season that it is impossible for a stranger to the game to walk into a stadium where they are playing American football, and have the faintest notion what the game is about, or what is going on on the field.

But for sheer, complete, concrete, unmitigated chaos, I humbly offer a visit to the six-day bicycle race as it is run today. Last night I dropped into Madison Square Garden where the current race is going on. With me was a friend from the office who had never in his life seen a six-day bike race. We went in and sat down, and for about 10 minutes he watched the insane and pointless whirligig, and then with a completely baffled expression on his face turned to me and said, "What in the name of all

Myer Praises Youth to Skies; Quizzed, He Forgets His Name

By a Staff Correspondent.

BILOXI, Miss., March 8.—Buddy Myer's lapse of memory spoiled the effect of his glowing recommendation of a young Ellisville, Miss., outfielder whom he brought to camp for a trial today.

"You ought to see him," said Myer. "He can do everything—field, hit, throw and run. He's a home-town boy and the best-looking ball player you ever saw. He—"

Somebody interrupted to ask the name of the new protege. Myer stopped, scratched his head, and then showed a deep crimson under his tan. Eventually he broke down and admitted that he really didn't know him well enough to learn his name. The rookie's identity was eventually established as Harold Craft, a strapping young fellow who will be in uniform tomorrow.

The pitcher, Jack Russell, broke into the conversation. "I notice, Buddy, you're careful not to bring any infielders to camp—and you dam' sight better not bring any pitchers."

Furfiber Wins Fourth Straight by Taking Hialeah Feature

Meade Rides 3 Longshots On Card

By the Associated Press.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., March 8. Furfiber, 3-year-old gelded son of Carlaris from the W. A. Jones Stable, won his fourth straight purse in the 1-mile of the Titusville, for 3-year-olds, here this afternoon. With Wayne Wright up, the $5.40 for $2 favorite picked up 10 pounds off his last race and found it an easy matter to score by a length and a half despite his 120 pounds.

W. F. Axton's Paradisical barely lasted to save second money from Mrs. J. H. Whitney's Nice Talk, only the judges being able to separate them. Judge Blake and Foreign Legion completed the small field. Furfiber ran the eight furlongs in 1:38 3-5.

The next-to-closing day meeting brought out possibly the largest crowd of the meeting. This was partly explained by the fact that no complimentary tickets or badges are good for Derby Day and this was the last opportunity to make use of them.

Battle for the Race.

For six furlongs the race was a duel between Paradisical and Judge Blake, the pair battling head and head to the head of the stretch. The Judge cracked but Paradisical held on a bit farther, relinquishing her lead to Furfiber. The latter made up ground fast after the first three furlongs and once getting to the front upon entering the stretch, he won well in hand. Nice Talk would have been second in one more jump.

Field horses accounted for the first, third and fourth portions of the purse in the juvenile dash that opened today's program. Victorious Ann was easily best, beating the highly fancied Willow Wood by a length and a half after the pair had dominated the running from the start. Two Edged, always close up, was headed out of the place, while Seabiscuit, making up a lot of ground from a slow start, was a creditable fourth. The field paid $11.

Royal Duchess had the speed of the dozen sprinters that competed in the second. Breaking well from the inside under Don Meade, the aptly named daughter of Royal Minstrel—Grey Duchess, went to the front shortly after the start. Idle Victory, the choice, forced the pace and loomed dangerously close to the eventual winner around the bend, but Royal Duchess bounded clear again when straightened out for home, winning by 4 lengths and paying $11.80. Idle Victory was easily next best, with Lady Laura always third.

Meade Takes Another.

Meade made it two in a row when he lifted Nankin over the wire a winner by the shortest of margins in the third contest. Prince Comixa, the standout favorite under Coucci, tossed off a long lead in the last furlong and barely failed to stick it out. Airatrix closed fastest of all, losing the place by a head. Meade gradually improved Nankin's position and put up a strong ride to get the filly home at the lucrative odds of $31.10 for $2.

Meade, the small but husky lad, scored his third straight longshot victory in the fourth race, just by way of tuning up for his Florida Derby engagement on Black Helen tomorrow. Meade's third success came with the surprise score of Chief A., which moved up fast after an indifferent beginning and won the fourth event by a length and a half to return $19.20. Sun Cloister nosed out the well-backed Our David for the place.

Jockey Wright helped himself to two in a row in the sixth race, the Idaho boy merely sitting still while Newell, paying $8.70, breezed to the judges four lengths to the good. The gelding never was in danger once he opened up a substantial advantage in the first quarter mile. Jeanne S. and Jack Chevigny staged a hectic duel for the place, the filly prevailing right on the wire.

Luculent, the $9 choice, won the last race by three lengths from Stall Man, with True Sentiment third.

Dear Al: Hialeah Race Track, March 8.

This race track isn't offering any $100,000 added race tomorrow, but everybody and his cousin is all het up about the Florida Derby, $15,000 added, which features the closing day of this 45-day meeting here in the tropics. Every horse advertised as a choice or near choice for the mile and an eighth test is found among the 13 horses named in the overnight entries. All of the top-notch riders in this neck of the woods have mounts and there should be some real scrambling before a number is flashed in the win position on the results board. The totalisator is well oiled, for track officials expect a record in cash transactions on the morrow. Four tons of hot dogs in the raw were vanned onto the premises this afternoon in anticipation of the hungriest, if not the largest crowd ever to enjoy (?) the races in this State. I tried to put over the chalk in the Santa Anita Handicap and failed, so I'm taking a long shot to win the Florida Derby. I shall be operating out of Tropical Park on Monday.

BILL.

First race—Pass Up gets one more chance. Goes to the post with a 94-pound feather aboard, and I see no reason for mistakes. Cathop and Ride Mor have a class edge on the field, but they are burdened with stout imposts.

Second race—There should be no excuses for the Everglade entry in this juvenile dash. Deliberator is a classy youngster and will have Wise Duke as a running mate. The $2,500 purse makes it a shooting match. James City and Lemont to take care of the others.

Third race—Col. Greene, under Coucci's handling, may provide a jolt for the favorite players in this sprint. I'm rather inclined to believe the Colonel has been hiding some speed. Carries only steadying weight tomorrow. We shall see what we shall see. Mountain Elk and Scotch Gold for the place and show.

Fourth race—This should be a close race. Six fit and ready horses named. I believe Golden Fate can better that effort of the other day and take King Saxon and Hug Again into camp. However, I've been wrong before, and they may finish Civil War, Broad Meadows and Erebus.

Fifth race—Quel Jeu didn't run his race last out and neither did Sun Monk. They belong first and second in this company, however. Speedmore, another that hit a snag in a recent effort, to complete the money bracket.

Sixth race—I'm going to try to make Mantagna upset the apple cart in the Florida Derby. This has been a bad winter for favorites in big money races. This horse has made several moves that have stamped him in my mind as a bear at a mile and an eighth. No spot to plank down the family jewels, but we may get some fun out of a two-buck note. Roman Soldier and Morpluck for the place and show. Two longshots which may surprise are St. Moritz and Sun Fairplay. The last named broke his maiden in Maryland last year in Kentucky Derby fashion and has been kidding.

Seventh race—If Yellow Metal didn't leave his race on the track today, he will win this two-mile test as far as you can throw a stone. Tuffy G. and Brass Monkey for the rest.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL DUCHESS, $11.80, $5.80, $4.20; IDLE VICTORY, $3.70, $2.90; LADY LAURA, $3.90.

ROYAL DUCHESS, rushed into early lead, was eased back around turn, drew away entering stretch and won nicely in hand. IDLE VICTORY made a game effort. LADY LAURA was hard ridden all the way. BELLATOR, on the outside, held on well. JAKOVIA ran a fair race. OGLE is improving.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800. Claiming prices, $1,500 to $1,200. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:44. Off at 3:50½. Winner, Maemere Farm's ch. f. (3), by Mirafel—British Fleet. Trained by G. E. Phillips. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:13.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NANKIN, $31.10, $9.70, $6.30; PRINCE COMIXA, $3.00, $3.10; AIRATRIX, $18.50.

NANKIN, under a hustling ride, closed gamely in stretch and got up in final stride. PRINCE COMIXA ran very mean at the gate, finally broke running, opened wide gap, but tired suddenly in last 20 yards. AIRATRIX came from the rear gamely and was a fast-going third. She would have won in a few more strides. LAST TIME ran a fair race. TEDDY CARL closed a big gap. RIVER ROSE tired fast in final furlong. CHARMED EYES had speed for three furlongs and then quit.

FOURTH RACE—One mile (out of chute). Purse, $800. Claiming prices, $1,800 to $1,500 for 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:20. Off at 4:27. Winner, Mrs. A. Carfano's ch. c. (4), by Chatterfol—Aurora. Trained by L. Williams. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:38 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHIEF A., $19.20, $11.70, $5.80; SUN CLOISTER, $13.00, $7.00; OUR DAVID, $3.00.

CHIEF A. well ridden, worked his way up on the outside, came with a rush in stretch and won going away. SUN CLOISTER broke very slow, made up a world of ground, and finished gamely. OUR DAVID, well up, kept close to pace all the way and had no excuse. IDLE ALONG saved ground entering stretch, but weakened in last few yards. BLIND BROOK quit badly. XANDRA was in close quarters part of the way. COUSIN GEORGE was in close quarters part at the end or she might have won. She ran a good race. MEROVECH showed speed for half a mile.

FIFTH RACE—One mile (out of chute). Purse, $1,000. The Titusville. For 3-year-olds of B Division. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:57. Off at 4:59. Winner, W. A. Jones' b. g. (3), by Carlaris—Cap Kitty. Trained by G. L. Hamilton. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:38 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FURFIBER, $5.40, $2.90, $2.40; PARADISICAL, $3.00, $2.60; NICE TALK, $3.10.

FURFIBER handled his weight well, was rated along far back for the first half-mile, began to close ground around turn, came to the outside entering stretch, assumed lead and won nicely in hand. PARADISICAL, showing a world of speed, raced JUDGE BLAKE into defeat and held on gamely. NICE TALK moved up with a determined bid in stretch and just failed to gain the place. JUDGE BLAKE had plenty of speed, but stopped badly. FOREIGN LEGION is about ready to win a race.

SIXTH RACE—One mile (out of chute). Purse, $1,000. Claiming price, $1,500 for 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:28½. Off at 5:32. Winner, R. T. Runnels' ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—NEWELL, $8.70, $4.70, $3.70; JEANNE S., $4.10, $3.40; JACK CHEVIGNY, $4.80.

NEWELL, away fast, was sent to the front going into first turn, drew away in run down back stretch, was given a breathing spell around turn and came away easily at end. JEANNE S., slow to get into her stride, finished very fast in final quarter-mile and was second in last stride. JACK CHEVIGNY, well up all the way, held on gamely. LITTLE ARGO showed good early speed. MASTER LAD was hard ridden.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $900. Claiming price, $1,200. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 6:05. Off at 6:07. Winner, Starmount Stable's ch. c. (4), by Prince Pal—Maid of India. Trained by J. M. Milburn. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:51 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LUCULENT, $9.00, $5.10, $3.50; STALL MAN, $7.70, $4.90; TRUE SENTIMENT, $4.00.

LUCULENT circled field entering stretch, closed gamely, and was drawing away at end. STALL MAN was a keen factor from the start and ran good race. TRUE SENTIMENT was allowed to drop far back, but came with a rush in stretch. NOBLE SPIRIT had plenty of speed for a mile. YELLOW METAL closed a world of ground. DE VALERA tired badly.

Twenty Grand Sails to Race In Britain

Whitney Ace Has '36 Ascot Gold Cup as Special Objective.

NEW YORK, March 8.—Traveling in a manner befitting a thoroughbred champion, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Twenty Grand today sailed in quest of new laurels on the English turf, with the 1936 Ascot Gold Cup as his special objective.

Rated one of the greatest horses ever bred in America and winner of $261,790 in purses, the 7-year-old son of St. Germans shipped aboard the American Banker. He had as a traveling companion Cubist, a 3-year-old colt owned by John Hay Whitney, which occupied an adjoining stall. Cubist also will race in England.

Travels in Splendor.

No thoroughbred race horse ever traveled in more splendor and with greater care taken for his comfort. His padded stall is 8 by 10 feet, with 12 inches of peat moss on the bottom to protect the feet that carried the famous colt to the 3-year-old championship in 1931 when he ran the mile and one-quarter of the Kentucky Derby in 2:01 4-5 for a new record.

Twenty Grand was consigned to Capt. Cecil Boyd-Rochefort, well-known English trainer, at Freemason Lodge, near London. There he will be conditioned for a year with the possibility he will be entered in several overnight events later in the season when he has become acclimated.

Tailors Meet.

The Rinaldi Tailors baseball team will meet at 4206 Twelfth street northeast at 8 p. m. Monday. All players and candidates are requested to be present.

Florida Derby Today Draws 13 Horses

Black Helen, Morpluck to Lure Bulk of Betting; Hialeah Meet Ends.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, March 8. — Hialeah Park's 45-day racing season, one of the most successful in years, reaches a dramatic end tomorrow with a bang-up eight-race program topped with the sixth renewal of the $15,000 Florida Derby.

Thirteen crack 3-year-olds, including all of the prerace favorites, were named today for the classic, which will be run over a mile and one-eighth.

E. R. Bradley's Black Helen, entered with Bloodroot, shared the favorite's role in the early wagering with J. H. Louchheim's Morpluck at 2 to 1.

Roman Soldier Backed.

Roman Soldier, owned by Elwood Sachsenmaier, has been made second choice in the future book at odds of 4 to 1. He has been the winning sensation of the season here, capturing three major stake races and defeating most of the Derby nominees, with the notable exceptions of Black Helen and Morpluck, whom he has not faced.

Lightly treated in the weights, with an impost of 113 pounds, Black Helen will go to the post with Jockey Don Meade up. Eddie Arcaro wil ride Bloodroot while Bobbie Merritt will be atop Morpluck. Silvio Coucci will handle the reins of Roman Soldier.

Not only is the Derby purse the largest in years, but the amount of pari-mutuel wagering at the track will shatter all records since horse racing was legalized in Florida in 1931.

Sir Malcolm Decides to Try Again for 300 m. p. h. Speed Mark

Plans Sortie When Beach Is Ready

Lady Campbell Alone Is Not Requesting Him to Drop Attempt.

By Edward J. Neil.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 8.—Sir Malcolm Campbell decided today 276.816 miles an hour isn't fast enough for him and that he will stay here and continue to shoot for his goal of 300 until past the fatal tides of March, if necessary.

After conferring with the city fathers today, the titled Englishman who added 4.708 miles an hour yesterday to his old average of 272.108 announced he had "consented to remain" in the hope that heavy spring tides and "the almost certainty of strong northeast winds" would give him ideal conditions.

He made the north run through the measured mile at an average speed of 281.030 miles an hour, fastest he has ever driven. He had the wind-shutter closed on the front of Bluebeard on the north run, and he estimated today that if he had done the same going south he would have added 15 miles an hour to the 272.727 he achieved against the wind.

Those things, plus his conviction that Bluebird is capable of 300 miles an hour under absolutely perfect conditions, his burning desire to be the first man to cross land at that speed, and his belief that the beach will improve, led to his decision to stay.

"I don't know when I shall run again, but if the beach is right I'll go tomorrow," he said. "Bluebird is in perfect condition. I could run today if the beach were smooth enough."

Congratulations poured in on him today, coming from Americans famous for speed exploits, among them the American war ace, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, and dozens of cablegrams from friends and officials abroad.

No word has come from Britain's royal family, but the Campbells had a message from their 14-year-old son, Donald, left in school in England. He sent just two words—"hot stuff."

Eastern, Bethesda Lose in Tourney

scored from the floor in that order, and shades of former Eastern power actually flitted around the gym as the Washingtonians led, 15 to 11, at half-time.

Hollidge increased the advantage to 17-11 as the third quarter opened, but Jim Mundy and Sam Leven countered with a basket apiece. Every now and then Eastern flashed some brilliant passing, but it never became anything more than that and the Blue was being pressed to the limit to hold a 21-19 lead at the end of the period.

McCann Makes Goal.

Bill McCann netted a short set shot. Dean made a foul shot, but Boschen followed suit with 2-1 and John Marshall led, 23 to 22. McCann dropped in a basket and Mundy added another with a one-hand shot. Eastern seemed rather confused and with five minutes to play the situation was getting no better fast. Things grew worse as Hollidge went out for four personal fouls and Boschen dropped in a foul shot. For some reason, Dean, usually a dead shot on long ones, was not coming through in his customary fashion. There was one reason, however, for John Marshall was effectively monopolizing control of the ball.

Eastern had the ironic satisfaction of making the last points as Edelen broge through neatly to score on a fast pass from Dean, but the game ended in the next worried breath of the Eastern followers.

Massanutten Military Academy pushed to the semifinals in the afternoon with an extra-period 30-to-25 victory over the highly favored Asheville (N. C.) School for Boys.

In the only other afternoon game, Tech High, of Atlanta, took an early lead over Virginia Presbyterian, of Danville, and then hung on grimly to win, 43 to 38. The Crackers, interscholastic champions of Georgia, will meet the winner of tonight's second-round tussle between Bethesda-Chevy Chase High and Staunton Military Academy tomorrow in the other semifinal.

Team's Second Surprise.

While the Atlantans' victory was entirely expected, that of Massanutten was as much a surprise as its triumph over Raleigh (N. C.) High, yesterday. The Asheville Boys School holds the Prep School championship of North Carolina and Raleigh was the State's high school champion.

In addition to that, Asheville went into the game bearing the prestige of having eliminated the Virginia State champions, Jefferson High, of Roanoke, yesterday.

The rating of a favorite to reach the finals which Jefferson had enjoyed had been taken o[illegible] impressively by the Carolinans, but Massanutten proceeded to disregard the ratings with a second half offensive which wiped out a 7-point deficit at the intermission and gave it a well-earned triumph in the added session.

Overcome Foes' Lead.

The Cadets were trailing at the end of the first quarter, 9 to 6, and 16 to 11 at half-time. Asheville, a tall, rangy team, was displaying all the power which toppled the Old Dominion champions the night before. But with the opening of the third period, Capt. Tommy Hale, of Braddock, Pa., a suburb of Pittsburgh, led the Cadets on repeated scoring forays which had given them the lead, 23 to 16, as the last quarter began.

Baxter Taylor and Frank Valier wiped out the advantage for Asheville in the closing minutes, however, and the count was 25 to 25 at the end of the game. The Carolinians never scored after that, and a chap named Joe Dixon, of Warren, Ohio, took it unto himself to tally two baskets and a foul in the extra period for the 5 points which gave the Cadets their second straight upset of a State championship team.

Leads, 27 to 17, at Half.

Atlanta Tech took a lead of 27 to 17 over Virginia Presbyeterian in the first half after getting off to a 16-to-5 first-quarter start. Vernon Wynn, of the Calvinists, and his teammate, Claude Chattin, opened a rally after the intermission which had cut the score to 33 to 28 at the end of the third period. Tech managed to keep 5 points in front to the finish and went off the floor still a dangerous threat in the path of any team to the title.

Field Trial Association Formed at Warrenton

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Warrenton, Va., March 8.—A field trial association has been recently found in Warrenton, to be known as the Fauquier County Field Trial Association. A first meeting was held, with Ian S. Montgomery acting as chairman and Hugh Gouldtharpe as temporary secretary. Another meeting has been set for March 8 at 7 p. m. in the Municipal Building. There is great interest in this section in dogs, several places in the county breeding them.

R-r-revenge Is Their Objective Tonight

Harris Is Banking On Linke, Hadley

any pitcher on the squad. He's a work horse. He can start and finish his own games and pitch some great ball, and no man since Fred Marberry pitched for us can go in as relief as often and with the same effect as Hadley. He's the most willing guy in the world."

Harris, apparently, is not counting to any extent on the club's rookie pitchers, even the young men, such as Syd Cohen, Archie Scrivener, Reese Digges, Frank Peticolas and Henry Coppola, who have struck his fancy during the two weeks in training here.

Cohen Likely to Stay.

At best, he reckons them as fellows to be tabbed only for future consideration, a year or two, at least, away from the big leagues. Of the group, only Cohen is likely to be retained when the squad breaks camp here March 29. The rest will be shunted to Chattanooga, Albany, or Lancaster or Harrisburg, the Nats newly acquired farms.

His infield is Harris' greatest source of satisfaction, rating only a notch ahead of his respect for the Nats hitting power. Of the latter, Harris voiced his confidence the day he signed to manage the Nats, predicting that the pitching would hold the fate of the club.

Travis Great Help.

"Young Travis is a great help out there on third base," continued Bucky. "And he figures to be a better ball player this year, even without Joe Cronin playing alongside him. Cronin's absence might even help him. I know Joe put in a lot of time with him last year and helped his development, but while I was coaching on third base for the Red Sox I gained an idea that Travis was too greatly aware that Cronin was watching his every movement. That kind of puts a young fellow on the spot.

"I've already told Travis that the third base job is his and that he has made good. And he has. But he may be a better third baseman now that Cronin has gone and he has to depend on himself. Joe tried to change Travis' style of playing third, I understand, and it could have been either for better or for worse. The kid might be able to play the bag better as Cecil Travis than as Cecil Travis trying to play like Joe Cronin."

Fort Myer Opposes Fort Howard Boxers

Six bouts will be held at the new riding hall at Fort Myer starting at 8:30 tonight, when Fort Myer meets Fort Howard in the first of a series of interpost boxing contests.

All bouts will be three-round affairs. An admission charge of 50 cents will be levied.

3 Conference Marks Fall At Swim

McDavid, Brashier, of W. and L., Set Records in Preliminaries.

By the Associated Press.

DURHAM, N. C., March 8.—Three conference records were shattered today as the preliminaries of the fifth annual Southern Conference swimming meet were run off at Duke University here. The finals will be held tomorrow.

Dailey, of Duke, swam the 200-yard breast stroke in 2:38.1, surpassing his old record of 2:45.2 which he set last year. McDavid, W. & L., bettered by a fraction of a second his 220-yard free style record made in 1934. The old record was 2:29.3; the new, 2:29.1.

Brashier, another W. & L. swimmer, negotiated the 100-yard dash in 56.7, bettering the record of 57.9 set by McDavid, his teammate, in 1934.

One final event—the 400-yard relay—was run off, Washington and Lee taking the lead with 8 points. Duke was second, scoring 6 points and North Carolina State third, scoring 4.

The following qualified in the preliminaries:

150-yard back stroke—Glynn (W. and L.), Rettew (N. C. State), Whitmarsh (N. C. State), Franklin (W. and L.), Stillman (Duke).
50-yard dash—Brashier (W. and L.), Whiting (Duke), Durban (Clemson), Mervine (Duke), Wood (Maryland).

Blue Ridge Lines Adds To Lead in Frederick

Terp Ring Pilot 'In Air' Over Line-Up

Harmony Still Undecided Which Men to Start Against C. U.

AFTER a week of practice punching and an abbreviated elimination contest, Lieut. Jack Harmony, Maryland boxing coach, yesterday professed to be as far from knowing which men will face Catholic University Monday night at College Park as he was before starting.

But as the Terps began tapering off for their final and most important match of a highly successful season, it was apparent that Harmony had about decided to keep "Stew" McCaw in the 165-pound class and to give Al Farrell a fling at the heavyweight role. In this event, Johnny Gormley will handle the 175-pound assignment.

Maryland's other boxers will be Jim Young, 115 pounds; Tom Birmingham, 125 pounds; Dick Babcock, 135 pounds; Walter Webb, 145 pounds, and Mike Lombardo, 155 pounds. Barring last-minute substitutions or injuries, Maryland will enter the ring a 5-2 favorite over the Cards with this line-up intact.

Catholic U. Fit.

Catholic's mitten-pushers were pronounced fit and ready for the test yesterday afternoon by Coach Eddie LaFond. Realizing that it will face Maryland handicapped by the loss of several freshmen—who are permitted to engage in minor sports, of which boxing is one—the Cardinals are going into battle ready to give everything to spring an upset.

LaFond is counting heavily on Angy Restaino, 125-pounder; Capt. Eddie Thibideau, lightweight, and Red Fleming, light heavyweight, to score, and the defeat of any one of them will be fatal to Catholic's hopes. If they do come through, then the Brooklanders are in a good position to gain a tie, but their chances of winning are slimmer than a toothpick.

With Georgetown meeting Maryland in basket ball as a preliminary attraction to boxing, Ritchie Coliseum will fairly bulge with humanity. All but 200 seats, which will be placed on the floor at the finish of the ball game, have been sold.

Basket ball starts at 8 o'clock and boxing at approximately 9:15 o'clock.

Speedway's 'Barker' Drumming Up Trade

By Bill McCormick.

"THERE are approximately 3,200,000 bricks in the Indianapolis Speedway track," insisted the young man who looked like Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker. The young man looked like Capt. Eddie because he was Capt. Eddie's brother, Al. He was talking about the Indianapolis Speedway because, as director of promotion for the Indiana bowl on the 22,000-mile tour of good will, it was his business to talk about the Indianapolis Speedway.

"Yes, sir, approximately 3,200,000 bricks—and each brick must be carefully cleaned and massaged before each 500-mile race." The young man who looked like Capt. Eddie heaved a sigh of exhaustion at the very thought of massaging 3,200,000 bricks, sank back in his deep chair in the local lawyer's office where he was being interviewed, and gazed deep into a glass of Scotch and soda for further inspiration.

"I suppose you know that automobile racers don't use air in their tires at Indianapolis?" he queried hopefully. We didn't know it, and Al Rickenbacker enlightened us.

"They use a mixture of hydrogen and oxygen," he explained. "So much heat is generated in tires during a race that ordinary air would expand to a point that would burst the rubber. The mixture they use doesn't expand. Ho hum."

We queried Al Rickenbacker about the popularity of the 500-mile races at Indianapolis. His lethargy disappeared as quickly as Sir Malcolm Campbell passing a 1912 flivver.

"Boy, it's stupendous!" he exclaimed. "About 150,000 people turn out for the races each year. They start filing into the Speedway at least two weeks before each May 30—to hold down choice locations. They eat there, sleep there, until the day of the big race."

Al went on to inform us that admission to the grounds costs $2.50—an extra charge being made for automobiles. The $2.50 covers just admission. Seats in the numerous grandstands cost from $1 to $10 apiece—and they're always all taken before the grind gets under way. Because of a local ordinance, some one must remain in the cars within the infield at all times. "But, they don't seem to mind it."

"The racing game held up very well throughout the depression, and at the first indication of the so-called 'turning of the corner,' it began to boom as it never has boomed before. This year our advance reservations are 25 to 30 per cent of this date in 1934."

Just a Spectator.

Unlike his more-famed brother, Al Rickenbacker never has been an aviator or racing driver, but he often makes test runs with the drivers at the Speedway. He had just come from Daytona Beach, where he saw Campbell make several of his runs, and believes that this year's Indianapolis speed will exceed even the record of 104.863 set by Wild Bill Cummings last year.

"Campbell goes so fast you can hardly see him," he says, in explaining the difference between Sir Malcolm's runs and the Indianapolis grind. "It's all over—one way or another—in a flash. At Indianapolis the top speed is perhaps 135 miles an hour on the straightaway. The boys probably would average about 110 miles an hour if they did not have to slow up for accidents and repairs."

The last seen of Mr. Al Rickenbacker, he was heading away from Washington en route to one or the other of the 22 States he intends to visit before the big race on May 30.

Schmeling 5-1 Choice Over Hamas

Pounds Sparring Mates in Final Workout for Bout Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

HAMBURG, March 8.—Supremely confident he is destined to be the first man in history to regain the heavyweight crown, Max Schmeling today wound up his preparations for Sunday's 10-round bout with Steve Hamas with a furious workout at his snow-locked camp near here.

With a capacity crowd watching, Germany's pugilistic hero put on an exhibition that had his manager, Joe Jacobs, and his trainer worried stiff lest he incur a last-minute injury.

In addition to four rounds of shadow boxing, Schmeling traveled four torrid rounds with a pair of Germany's toughest young heavyweights. There was no doubt at the finish that he is in great shape and throwing punches with an abandon conspicuously missing in his last two battles in America.

Schmeling Favorite.

Hamas, who has puzzled German fans as well as the fight experts with his lackadaisical training, contented himself with limbering-up exercises after greeting Mrs. Hamas at the Hamburg dock. Maybe Steve knows what he is doing, but his quaint custom of training on beer and cigarettes made Schmeling a 5-to-1 favorite with no Hamas money in sight.

Most of the hard work in the American's camp has been done by the fighter's manager, Charlie Harvey. At a late hour tonight he was still going round and round with German boxing authorities. They finally agreed on one American judge—Sparrow Robertson, a Paris sports writer—but are being obstinate about appointing a neutral referee.

Stock Trading Falls Into Rut; Sales Smaller

New York Shipbuilding Is Weak Feature, Down 2½ Points.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 8.—Financial markets bogged down into a rut of narrow irregularity today and the turnover in stocks was reduced to a minimum. Equities ended a shade lower as rallies in the mines and utilities early in the session were dampened by a lack of response on the part of the industrials and rails.

Carrier shares appeared disposed to ignore an increase of 51,000 cars in the latest weekly loading report as compared with the previous 7-day period, which contained the Washington's Birthday holiday, but rail stocks were mostly a bit lower. New York Shipbuilding met substantial offerings and receded 2½ points to $7 as directors announced omission of dividend payments on the participating and founder's shares. Holders of corn products refining did not appear taken aback by announcement of 1934 earnings of $3.16 a share compared with $3.87 in the previous year. The stock ended ½ point higher at 65.

The day's turnover in the Stock Exchange aggregated 443,363 shares and the Associated Press average for 60 stocks dipped .1 of a point to 36.6 Nevertheless there was a fair number of small gains scattered among the minor losses in the list of trading favorites.

Among gainers of ⅛ to as much as ¾ of a point were American Telephone at 106¾, Allied Chemical at 133¾, Santa Fe at 39½, Consolidated Gas at 17⅜, Woolworth at 54⅝, and National Biscuit at 25⅞. On the other hand many leaders moved about equally in the opposite direction, including Pennsylvania at 19, Union Carbide at 47, International Harvester at 38, U. S. Steel at 31, and Union Pacific at 88. Standard Oil of New Jeersey and Sears got down about a point each at 37½ and 32½, respectively.

Wheat Is Firm; Corn Declines

Cotton Drops 2 to 8 Points in Narrow Transactions.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 8.—Relative firmness at the last in wheat values today contrasted with a sagging trend earlier that was associated with doubts relative to prevailing financial uncertainties.

Late reports of a severe dust storm in Nebraska extending west from North Platte had a bullish influence. A sharp rise of the pound sterling in foreign exchange likewise attracted attention, and so too did Department of Agriculture surveys indicating farm prices will have to advance 27 per cent to bring farmers' purchasing power to a parity with the pre-war level.

Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to one-half cent higher, May 96¼-96⅜; corn ⅜-½ down, May 82-82⅛; oats unchanged to ⅛ up, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 2 cents.

Not only were dust storms reported from Nebraska but in other parts of the Southwest, Kansas in particular. It was not until trading was nearly at an end, however, that crop damage possibilities began to counterbalance bearish sentiment ascribed largely to misgivings about monetary prospects. A handicap to wheat bulls was word of cheaper offers from Argentina and of larger shipments from Australia, with much talk that each day was lessening chances Canada could escape entering the new season with a wheat surplus that would apparently be disastrous in the event of a normal world crop.

Corn and oats prices were bearishly affected by slowness of shipping demand here for corn. Provisions were steadied by hog price upturns.

Banks Hold Bulk of Federal Debt; Baby Bond Offer Is Believed to Be Effort to Popularize Government Security Issues.

By a Special Correspondent.

New York, March 8.—While the outstanding debt of the Federal Government has approximately doubled during the past four years, if guaranteed as well as direct obligations are included in the calculation, holdings of Government bonds outside financial institutions have changed hardly at all. Doubtless this highly unbalanced market for Treasury obligations is one reason behind the current resort to the sale of "baby bonds" at a discount to popularize investor purchases of bonds of the Federal Government.

In other countries with a large government debt, such as France and Great Britain, Treasury obligations have become the staple popular investment. In the United States, however, individual investors were weaned away from Government bond investment after the war by the high prices to which such obligations went, as well as attractive alternative investment then available. In the past few years no persistent and organized effort has been made to reeducate individuals to invest their savings in Treasury bonds, as was done during the war.

The direct and guaranteed debt of the Federal Government aggregated $31,024,000,000 at the end of 1934, as compared with $15,774,000,000 four years earlier. The increase was thus almost 100 per cent, of which a little over $3,000,000,000 represents bonds of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation and the small outstanding issue of RFC notes.

Two-thirds of Treasury Deficit Financed by Banks.

Of this increase in the Federal debt of $15,250,000,000, commercial and savings banks accounted for more than $9,800,000,000. The banks bought almost two-thirds of the bonds issued by the Treasury to finance its deficit, as well as the bonds issued with the Government guarantee to alleviate the mortgage situation. As a result of the banks' huge purchases of Government bonds, they held 45 per cent of the total Federal debt at the end of 1934, as compared with 25 per cent four years earlier.

The Federal Reserve Banks added $1,703,000,000 to their holdings of Government obligations during this same four-year period, increasing their proportion of the total from 4 to 8 per cent. Hence, it will be seen that all banks, Reserve, commercial and savings, now hold some 53 per cent of the Government debt, as against 30 per cent four years ago.

Life insurance companies have joined commercial and savings banks as heavy buyers of Government bonds, adding $1,165,000,000 to their portfolio of Federal obligations during the past four years. As a result, they now own some 5 per cent of the greatly enlarged total outstanding debt, as against 2 per cent four years ago.

Agencies of the United States Government now own $1,300,000,000 of the Treasury's obligations, as compared with $30,000,000 so held four years ago. The agencies involved are chiefly the Postal Savings System and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, which invests its resources in Government bonds. These agencies now own more than 4 per cent of the Treasury's debt.

Insurance companies other than life and miscellaneous financial institutions also have increased their holdings of Government bonds, although their total holdings are much smaller than the holders already cited. Large business corporations too, now place their liquid reserves more largely in Government bonds, especially since the call money market is closed to them and even time deposits at the banks yield a low rate of return. Deducting such holdings, we find that individual and trustee holdings of Federal Government bonds aggregate some $10,500,000,000, or a little more than one-third of the total outstanding. This figure is little, if any, larger than the estimated total of individual and trustee holdings of Treasury obligations four years ago, when they equalled approximately two-thirds of the smaller Treasury debt then outstanding.

The people of this country, by and large, are thus not buying Government bonds directly. Various financial institutions currently hold two-thirds of the Treasury debt, as against one-third only four years ago. Some investment bankers believe that a Nation-wide syndicate of bankers, if allowed a moderate commission on sales of Treasury issues, could attract a good many popular subscriptions to Treasury offerings.

General Motors Business Shows Sharp Advance

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 8.—Sales of General Motors cars and trucks to consumers in the United States during February totaled 77,297 units against 54,105 in January and 58,911 in February, 1934. Bankers Advise Care Regarding Congress Bills

Abraham Lincoln Life Insurancy Is Absorbed by Bankers Life of Illinois.

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

Advices received from local bankers attending the Eastern Regional Savings Conference of the A. B. A., in New York, indicate that the majority of speakers are urging great care and caution by Congress in sifting the proposed legislation affecting the banking field.

Major topics which have been developed during the session, which opened on Thursday, include a warning against irresponsible loans as laid to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation by T. J. Caldwell, vice president of the Houston National Bank in Houston, Tex. He also stated that much of the proposed legislation that is being offered in Congress now is contrary to the fundamental principles of commercial banking.

John B. Burton, president of the National Bank of Far Rockaway, referred to the middle-class business man and the small merchant as today's "forgotten man." He averred that the most profitable phase of banking today is the personal loan business.

Among other speakers who addressed the conference are James K. Steuart, treasurer of the Savings Bank of Baltimore; Henry F. Long, commissioner of corporation and taxation of the State of Massachusetts; Jason Westerfield, assistant secretary of the New York Stock Exchange; David Friday, local economist, and Henry R. Kiney, president of the Savings Bank Association of New York.

Abraham Lincoln Life Taken Over.

Wahington life insurance policy holders in the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance Co., of Springfield, Ill., were yesterday notified that the entire business of that company has been taken over by the Illinois Bankers Life Insurance Co., of Monmouth, Ill.

The transaction, by which $62,000,000 insurance and $13,000,000 in assets were transferred, is one of the few large reinsurance projects in recent years in which no loss was suffered by the policy holders or agents.

By the transaction, $62,000,000 insurance and $13,000,000 in assets were transferred, giving the Illinois Bankers Life a total of more than $135,000,000 insurance in force, $31,000,000 in assets, 100,000 policy holders, and surplus and capital over all liabilities of more than $1,000,000. Certificates of assumption are being mailed to all policy holders and agents whereby the Illinois Bankers Life takes over, without any lien or restriction of any kind, the policies and agency contracts of the Abraham Lincoln Life.

Approved by Insurance Director.

A statement issued by Ernest Palmer, director of insurance of Illinois, with whose approval the reinsurance contract was concluded, gave an unqualified indorsement of its terms and commented particularly upon the fact that the Abraham Lincoln Life policy holders had been protected without loss of any kind. Director Palmer said:

"You are entitled to know that this department was fully informed at all times of the negotiations leading up to the signing of the contract, the various steps which were taken in accordance with the law and that the director of insurance formally approved the contract of reinsurance. All of the policy obligations of the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance Co. and all of its assets and its liabilities have been taken over and assumed by the Illinois bankers without any liens or limitations of any kind on insurance in force.

The Illinois Bankers Life was incorporated in 1929 as the successor of the Illinois Bankers Life Association, which was established in 1897. It operates on the legal reserve basis. The Abraham Lincoln Life was started as the Mutual Life of Illinois in 1916, changing to the legal reserve basis in 1920 and altering its title to the Abraham Lincoln Life in 1926. The home office of the Illinois Bankers Life, it was announced, will continue in Monmouth, Ill.

Stocks of Oil Increase While Output Drops

By the Associated Press.

The Bureau of Mines reported today that stocks of domestic and foreign crude petroleum on March 2 totaled 323,575,000 barrels, an increase of 2,208,000 over the preceding week. Stocks of domestic crude increased 2,013,000 barrels and foreign crude 195,000.

Daily average production for the week was 2,545,000 barrels, 45,000 less than the previous week.

Daily average imports were 119,000 barrels, three times the average of the previous week. Daily average crude runs to stills showed the usual end of the month decline, the average being 2,445,000 barrels.

Manufacturing Continues Gain

Activity Up 9.3% in January; 4.9% More Workers.

New York, March 8.—Manufacturing activity in January, as measured by man-hours worked, was 9.3 per cent higher than in December, the fourth successive monthly gain, according to the monthly survey of the National Industrial Conference Board announced today. This gain was a result of an increase of 4.9 per cent in number of workers employed and an advance of 4 per cent in hours worked.

Average hourly earnings were practically unchanged, advancing only from 59.3 cents in December to 59.4 cents n January. Average weekly earnings, on the other hand, increased 4.4 per cent from $20.70 in December to $21.61 in January. This increase more than offset the small advance in the cost of living, with the result that real weekly earnings, or the actual purchasing power of weekly earnings, increased 3.3 per cent.

Average working hours per week also advanced from 35.0 hours in December to 36.4 hours in January, a gain of 4 per cent. The combined effect of increased employment and longer working hours was further reflected in a 9.5 per cent gain in total pay rolls.

Figures for January, 1935, indicate a significant gain since January, 1934. During the year average hourly earnings increased 7.8 per cent; average weekly earnings, 14.4 per cent; average hours of work per week, 6.1 per cent; real weekly earnings, 8.6 per cent; total employment, 7.0 per cent; total man-hours, 13.7 per cent, and total pay rolls, 22.4 per cent.

The cost of living of wage earners advanced 1 per cent from December, 1934, to January, 1935. This rise, considerably higher than the average seasonal gain, is principally due to an increase of 3.4 per cent in retail food prices. The purchasing value of the dollar in January, 1935, was 122.5 cents, as compared with 100 cents in 1923.

The Dollar Abroad.

London, March 8 (AP).—The United States dollar closed at 4.78¾ to the pound today, compared with yesterday's close of 4.74¾, showing a net loss of 4½ cents to the pound. The opening was at 4.76½. The French franc closed at 71.86 against 71.06 to the pound yesterday.

The statement by the chancellor of the exchequer in the Commons yesterday in which he strengthened the barrier against currency stabilization was held responsible for the sharp rally in sterling and the corresponding depreciation in other currencies.

Paris, March 8 (AP).—The United States dollar gained 1¼ centimes today, closing at 14.9925 francs (6.669 cents to the franc) as compared with yesterday's close of 14.965 francs (6.682 cents to the franc.)

Berlin, March 8 (AP).—The United States dollar sold unchanged today from yesterday's quotation of 2.457 marks (40.70 cents to the mark).

Federal Bonds Drop Market To Lower Plane

New Haven 6-Point Rise Offset by Lethargy in Other Rails.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 8.—The bond market underwent another period of quiet adjustment today. Prime investments followed United States Governments into lower levels, while secondary issues were a trifle mixed.

Although a brisk rally lifted Government obligations up from the lows of the day during the final hour, closing prices of most Treasury loans were two-thirty-seconds to ten-thirty-seconds lower. Liberties and Home Owners Loans, however, not only recovered early losses but ended two-thirty-seconds to four-thirty-seconds ahead of the previous day. The Government turnover aggregated $7,290,000, compared with $9,370,000 on Thursday.

A smart rally in New Haven collateral 6s, which gained 6 points net at 52, was somewhat overshadowed by dragging tendencies in other rail liens. Union Pacific 4s lost a point at 102, Pennsylvania General 4½s were ⅞ lower at 106⅛, and Reading 4½s yielded 1¼ points at 105. Baltimore & Ohio Convertible 4½s, up 1⅛ at 45⅛, were among a few others selling higher.

There were some conspicuous exceptions to the lower trend in industrials and utilities. Consolidated Coal 5s bettered their 1935 high at 38⅞, up 1¾, and International Telephone Debenture 5s were a point higher at 61.

The foreign section displayed a generally steady tone. Advances were shown by German 7s, Poland 6s and Australian 5s. Belgium 6s lost 2⅛ points at 102½, but the turnover was small. Transfers aggregated $14,581,000, par value, compared with $17,896,000 on Thursday.

N. Y. Stocks Drop 21.7% in Year

New York, March 8.—The market value of fifty representative stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange at the close of business for the week ended March 2 was $11,285,433,750, a decrease of $32,493,750, or 29 per cent, compared with the market value of $11,317,927,500 at the close of the preceding week, according to a compilation by Paul H. Davis & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange. At the close of the corresponding week a year ago, the same fifty stocks had a market value of $14,413,051,000, indicating a decrease during the year of $3,127,617,250, or 21.7 per cent.

Chicago, March 8.—Twenty-five representative stocks listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange had a market value at the close of business for the week ended March 2 of $480,787,125, an increase of $1,073,375, or 22 per cent, as compared with the market value of $479,713,750 at the close of the previous week, according to a compilation by Paul H. Davis & Co. At the close of the corresponding week a year ago, the same twenty-five stocks had a market value of $576,516,625, indicating a decrease during the year of $95,729,500, or 16.6 per cent.

Lumber Sales Up 22 Per Cent

Production Is Lower but Shipments Gain in Volume.

By the Associated Press.

Lumber shipments for the week ended March 2 as reported by the National Lumber Manufacturers Association yesterday were the heaviest of any week of the year and 22 per cent above those of the corresponding week of last year.

The report, based on figures from 1,009 mills, said new business approximated the average of previous weeks of 1935 and was 9 per cent above the similar week of 1934. For the year to date, the report said, shipments and orders are 30 and 27 per cent, respectively, above what they were for the same period of 1934.

Figures for the week showed production at 152,375,000 feet as compared with 176,257,000 feet in 1,129 mills for the previous week; shipments totaled 198,141,000 feet against 189,531,000 feet and orders were 185,533,000 feet compared with 192,202,000 feet.

Swiss Fair at Basle To Have 1,200 Exhibits

The Consul General of Switzerland announced yesterday that the nineteenth annual Swiss industries fair will be held at Basle from March 30 to April 9, with more than 1,200 exhibitors displaying their products.

The Basle fair is the only Swiss commercial fair exclusively devoted to national production, stressing exhibits of the highest quality and craftsmanship. It is primarily designed to serve the wholesale trade.

Curb Registers Slight Losses In Day's Trades

Singer Mfg. an Exception With 7-Point Rise; Metals Resistant.

New York, March 8 (AP).—Following a fairly steady opening, the curb market turned irregular today and moderate losses were fairly numerous at the close. Metals and scattered specialty issues proved resistant. Alcohols were weak.

Distillers Corporation-Seagrams lost more than a point and Hiram Walker was off nearly 2. New York Shipbuilding (Founders shares) dropped more than 3 points on dividend omission. Other losers of fractions to around a point included Pan-American Airways, Swift Internacional, Gulf Oil, American Cyanamid "B" and Aluminum Co. of America.

Newmont, Lake Shore, Wright Hargreaves, American Gas & Electric and Swift & Co. ruled steady. Singer Manufacturing experienced one of its periodic upward surges, finishing 7 points higher. Dow Chemical and Parker Rust Proof were firm.

Transfers approximated 124,000 shares.

Gold Production Declines Except In South Africa

New York, March 8 (AP).—World gold production in January was 2,319,000 fine ounces against 2,330,000 in December, 1934, and 2,286,000 in November, according to American Bureau of Metal Statistics.

United States production in January was 245,000 ounces against 276,000 in December and 237,000 in November.

Canadian production in January totaled 254,000 ounces against 261,000 in December and 250,000 in November, while South African output in January was 891,000 ounces against 866,000 in December and 875,000 in November.

Business Briefs

New selling methods and the 1935 advertising campaign were chief topics discussed at Quiet May's spring sales conference in Baltimore. A dinner tendered to Albert J. Fleischmann, president, featured the first day of the gathering. In his opening speech he said that the return of buying power and the rising feeling of confidence had definitely reflected itself in May's increased sales in 1934, the approaching season indicating splendid opportunities for new business.

On the Air Today

By Katherine Smith.

YOU won't hear any New York hotel orchestras on the air tonight. The Musicians Union says, "Tax or no radio broadcasts;" the radio folks say, "It's not our quarrel. Meanwhile we'll put in our studio bands, or bands from other cities."

As far as we know hotel men aren't digging into their pockets for that $3-a-man tax. Musicians are perfectly happy to play on the air—they get plugged, and so do the hotels. They have to play for hotel patrons, why not for air patrons?

So, as you glance down the table and find all your favorites substituted for "dance orchestra," you know the reason why.

Children's radio programs make up in quantity what they lack in quality. Every day for several hours, the serial thrillers pour into American homes their full share of morbid fantasy, their frothy display of "heroism," their inanity and bad taste. "Goody-goody" lads and lassies are patted and fondled by their radio associates, their insipid remarks are held up as a pattern of childish good behavior.

Parents find these radio programs a problem. Their children ape the radio characters, go to bed to nightmares, or look upon aired maxims as truth.

Today on WRC, at 5:30 p. m., a new sort of children's program begins. "The Parade of Youth" brings true dramatizations of activities of live normal youngsters—their successes, their adventures that have made children's news. They aren't lacking in excitement nor interest. There may be a story of a boy who "crashed" the movies with 15 cents in his pocket, or a girl who collects foreign dolls as a hobby, or a boy in the North woods who has trained his own dogs to draw his wood-sled. Then there's to be a dramatized serial, about two youngsters who hunt for buried treasure by airplane.

Some may be stories of heroism—a boy or girl who saves a life—but in any sense the heroism isn't "mock." But in all dramatizations the experiences are real, lively and wholesome.

The Boswell Sisters will be on the air tonight from 10:50 to 11:05 from WJSV. This is, so far, their only air appearance while they are appearing at the Earle. Rumors are rising that they'll be scheduled on a sponsored program in the future. If it is so, congratulations to the sponsors. They're getting a fine feature.

Musical programs:

"Tristan and Isolde," from the Metropolitan Opera House, WRC, WMAL, 1:40 p. m. Geraldine Farrar will interview Giovanni Martinelli between the acts.

Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, with Dan Beddoe, features three Handel selections from oratorios, WJSV, 11 a. m.

Roxy salutes Noel Coward, with Bea Lillie's help. The comedienne appears as guest artist on his program, 8 p. m., WJSV.

Two glee clubs appear today. The Temple University Glee Club is on WJSV, at 12 noon; Ohio Wesleyan Glee Club at 6 p m., WJSV.

The Federal Diary

(Trade-Mark Applied For.)

By Morgan Baker.

COMPLAINTS of uncompensated overtime are coming in again. This time from one of the oldest civil service departments—Postoffice. The divisions handling the baby bonds are beginning work before 9 every morning and staying long after 4:30. Overtime continues, of course, at Federal-Housing Ad ministration, principally in mailing division and public relations.

BAKER.

Despite an official order at Federal Alcohol Control Administration prohibiting overtime, stenographers, it is reported, are being detained as late as midnight. It is said that secretaries of attorneys frequently handle few letters during the day and just before 4:30 p. m. are told overtime work is necessary.

One of the worst features of overtime work is that seldom more than an hour of notice is given, causing last minute cancellation of engagements for the evening. A dangerous feature is that of forcing women to go home late hours of the night without escorts. This is particularly disquieting to the women employes who live in the suburbs and isolated sections of Washington. Still another burdensome feature is the expense of buying dinner downtown with one waiting untouched at home. This problem obviously is most acute before pay days.

Postponed from a week ago, the Adjutant General's Office Lodge, No. 2, American Federation of Government Employes, will give its dance, card party and entertainment tonight at the Willard Hotel.

Pair Race Warming.

The race for pair championship trophy, combined first and second half averages, is growing warmer in the Federal Bridge League. With only three more nights to play standings to date are:

1. Ed Brooke and A. B. Galt, Execs, .572.
2. H. T. Wensel and W. Bockstahler, Phychems, .567.
3. W. A. Corley and L. R. Watson, Execs, .562.

John Williams, of Oxford, N. C., has been appointed to a position at Federal Housing Administration.

$2,600 Jobs Open.

Examinations for several $2,600 positions are announced by Civil Service Commission, as follows:

Assistant naval architect, $2,600 a year. Optional subjects are ship piping and ventilation, hull structures and arrangements, scientific ship calculations, and general.

Part-time industrial employment is being emphasized more and more in suburban land settlement in Germany, reports Dr. Charles P. Loomis, Bureau of Agricultural Economics, on the basis of a study he made in Germany as a fellow of the Social Science Research Council.

ROLAND HILL (F), Home Loan Bank Board, has been elected president of the newly organized New Dealers Club. Two other Government men were named to offices—Thomas Spangler, FERA, vice president, and Wayne J. Hansen (P), HOLC, chairman of the board of directors.

The members are young men and women who decided "to band together in order to promote an interest in current affairs and the workings of the Government and to provide a club for the youth of the Nation that are suddenly thrust into a new mode of living and are comparatively lost in the maze and turmoil . . . to further give them the chance to learn of the great New Deal by having prominent men and women from the various agencies address them and then conducting open forums. . . ."

The first dinner meeting of the club will be held March 19, at which time a member of Congress will speak on the value of youth organization.

A detailed report on irrigation problems is made by Wells A. Hutchins, Bureau of Agricultural Engineering, in a bulletin just issued by Agriculture, "Policies Governing the Ownership of Return Waters From Irrigation." It covers conditions in 13 States, including the 11 farthest West and Texas and Nebraska.

Diary Guest Tickets.

IF (F), (P) or (C) follows your name in this column call in person on the Federal Diary editor today between 12 and 2:30 p. m. You will receive tickets to one of the following Loew's theaters: (F) Loew's Fox (stage, Casino de Paree Revue and other acts; screen, Helen Hayes and Robert Montgomery in "Vanessa"); or to (P) Loew's Palace (Claudette Colbert in "The Gilded Lily"); or to (C) Loew's Columbia (stage, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson in person; screen, "Baboona").

Long trips are out
Just bet your hat,
For fifteen days
Are gone like—skat!

Bingo Party Tonight.

The bingo party tonight, which is one of the series held each Saturday by branches of Local No. 2, National Federation of Federal Employes, is for the benefit of Local No. 2. At 8 o'clock, at the local's headquarters, 710 Fourteenth street northwest, the entertainment committee will be hosts to union members and their Federal Employes friends. Only a nominal charge is made for this entertainment, according to William Walsh, General Accounting Office, committee chairman.

Contractor Is Saved From Death by Gas

Alvin S. Lochte, 39, Bethesda, Md., contractor, was recovering yesterday from the effects of illuminating gas fumes which he inhaled at his home in Woodmont, Md., early yesterday.

Lochte was found fully clothed, stretched on the floor, by his son-in-law, Lloyd B. MacEwen, 19. The Bethesda Rescue Squad and Dr. W. O. Huff revived him.

More Taxes.

WHEN I see the tax collector I use language which, I fear, well might jar the parish rector if he happened to be near; for the tax is always rising with a steadiness surprising; the collector's now advising that it's higher than last year. Now our revenues are shorter, it's a caution how they've shrunk, and we seldom have a quarter where we used to have a plunk; and it surely stands to reason we could not be charged with treason if we say, in such a season, that the tax scheme is the bunk. When we're feeling gay and wealthy, let the tax collector come; when our rolls are large and healthy, let him choose a goodly plum; but he shouldn't come demanding all the coin we have outstanding when it seems we'll soon be landing in the poorhouse by the slum. Now and then men are elected who inspire us with new trust; they will see old ills corrected, they'll be wise and fair and just; they will take their battleaxes and hew down the mounting taxes, and our courage once more waxes, thinking how they'll paw the dust. But it is the same old story when they hold official reins; they have got the pomp and glory for which every statesman strains; they have charmed us with their phrases, led us through their wordy mazes, now we all may go to blazes, while they rake their tainted gains. And the taxes keep increasing, keep on rising every year, never pausing, never ceasing, in their meteor career; I behold them rising faster, bringing sorrow and disaster, and my words would jar the pastor if he happened to be near.

ARE YOU GOING TO TAKE ME TO WESTCHESTER CLINIC FOR MY OPERATION, GRAN'MA?
THE DOCTOR SAID YOU SHOULD GO THERE, DENNIE, AND I WANT YOU TO HAVE THE BEST OF EVERYTHING.
REMEMBER, I WAS GOING THERE ONCE BEFORE WHEN I GOT THE MONEY FOR CATCHING THE THIEF
BUT WE LOST IT ALL IN THE FIRE AT JOE'S STORE—
THIS TIME WE'RE TAKING NO CHANCES, YOU'LL HAVE THE OPERATION RIGHT AWAY.
I WISH I DIDN'T HAVE TO GO TO WESTCHESTER THOUGH. IF I STAYED HERE IN TOWN, BILL COULD COME TO SEE ME.
I'LL WRITE TO THEM THIS MINUTE FOR INFORMATION. BEFORE WE KNOW IT, YOU'LL BE ALL WELL AGAIN— HONESTLY, DENNIE— I JUST GET WEAK WITH JOY, THINKING ABOUT IT.

SUCH A LUXURIOUS PLANE. HOW FAR IS IT TO UNCLE CHES' ESTATE?
WELL WHEREVER IT IS, IT WON'T TAKE THIS FLYING PARLOR LONG TO GET THERE.
THAT MOTOR IS SO NOISY.... OH ARE WE STARTING?
OH TELL THEM TO STOP! WE HAVEN'T GOT CHES!
DAD, THERE'S A MAN....
HEY! WAIT! STOP!....MY BROTHER-IN-LAW, MR. WARD...
YES SIR....MR. WARD VERY SORRY, BUT HE IN MUCH HURRY. HE SAY HE GO ON AHEAD IN OTHER PLANE. YES SIR.
OH I SEE. WELL THAT'S OKAY.
AH! THIS IS THE LIFE. FLYING.
TWO PLANES LIKE THIS BABY. THE ONLY THING I DON'T LIKE ABOUT THIS TRIP IS THAT WE'LL DROP IN ON OLD CHES JUST WHEN HE'LL PROBABLY BE ALL ON EDGE OVER THE INCOME TAX HE HAS TO PAY. HO HUM!

Essay Medals Are Presented 3 at McKinley

Sylvan Floam, Milton Rosenfeld and Jack Berchanko, three young men who ranked at the head of the February first graduating class at McKinley High School, were honored yesterday at special exercises at McKinley, when Frank C. Daniel, principal, announced them as winners over 200 classmates in division finals of the second Washington Post scholarship competion.

Dr. Will Hutchins, of the College of Liberal Arts of American University, presented a silver medal to each of the champions on behalf of The Post, and Mrs. Louise P. Engle, director of the competition, congratulated the winners. Their victory entitles them to compete in campus finals this spring for the competition's major awards of four-year tuition scholarships offered by American, Catholic, Georgetown and Howard Universities. They will be opposed by 28 other champions already selected in the local public high schools, as well as winners to be determined on March 31 from rural and local private school candidates.

Urges Continued Study.

Dr. Hutchins urged continued studies of civic problems among the defeated, as well as the successful contestants, all of whom submitted original essays on current and historic governmental problems.

"The high school and the college are primarily the training grounds of citizens," declared Dr. Hutchins. "Educators expect from you as students good citizenship in return for their years of endeavor in your behalf. No more practical project for the encouragement of good citizenship has been devised than this competition, inaugurated by The Washington Post, and the American University whole-heartedly joins with the other local institutions in sponsoring it."

Mrs. Engle explained The Post's purpose, in inaugurating the competition as twofold: To enlarge the interest of young students in the vital issues of the day, and to provide opportunities for further studies of these and related subjects at universities located in the Nation's Capital.

Graduated Third in His Class.

Floam, who was graduated third in his class, is 17 and the son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Floam, of 205 G street northwest. His winning essay covered the subject, "Pros and Cons of Hitlerism in Germany." He was a reporter and feature writer for Tech Life, and a member of the Philatelic Society and the Tech Patrol. He was especially interested in his studies in international problems and mathematics, but has not yet decided on the profession he will train for in college.

Berchanko, who is 18, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Berchanko, of 401 Rhode Island avenue northeast. He stood high in all of his studies, and hopes to major in either chemistry or legal subjects at college. He was a member of the McKinley French Club.

Rosenfeld, 17, is the son of Mrs. Esther Rosenfeld, of 432 Massachusetts avenue northwest. He attained high ratings both at McKinley and the Langley Junior High School. His ambition is to train for a career in public accountancy.

Washingtonian Wins Place in Ship Contest

A ship model built by John R. Ihrie, jr., of 718 Kentucky avenue, has been selected as one of a group of 50 out of 12,000 entries in a Nation-wide model building contest instituted by the Furness Bermuda Line and sponsored by the Model Builder Guild, it was learned yesterday.

Ihrie's model will be entered in the exhibit and final judging to be held in the British Empire Building in Rockefeller Center, New York, next week. He will be eligible to prizes which include several nine-day trips to Bermuda.

Five Fleeing Convicts Abduct Georgia Sheriff

Greenville, Ga., March 8 (AP). Sheriff C. H. Collier, of Meriwether County, in which President Roosevelt's Warm Springs home is located, was overpowered and abducted by five prisoners escaping from the jail here late today and released a short time later, 35 miles northeast of Greenville.

The sheriff telephoned to his office that he was freed at Brooks, a small town, and he immediately commandeered another automobile and gave chase.

Capital Third in Gifts Per Capita to Chest

Washington stood third among larger cities of the Nation in the amount per capita given to the Community Chest, figures from Community Chests and Councils, Inc., revealed yesterday.

Cincinnati led with $3.45 per capita in the last campaign. Minneapolis gave $3.39 per capita and Washington $3.09. Detroit was tenth with $1.

$165,500,000 Spent To Make 1934 Movies

New York, March 8 (AP).—The motion picture industry spent more than $165,500,000 to produce 662 feature pictures during 1934, the 1935 Film Daily Year Book reports.

This is more than $250,000 a picture, an increase of nearly 20 per cent over the previous year, the volume says, but the industry as a whole ended the year substantially in the black instead of with a loss as was the case the year before.

Board Creation Urged to Draft Capital Charter

Local Self Goernment, Congress Representation Recommended.

Legislation to provide for the appointment of a commission, consisting of residents of Washington, to draft a charter, providing for local self-government, and full representation in the Senate and the House, for the District was urged by L. A. Carruthers, president of the Forest Hills Citizens Association, in a radio address yesterday.

"We feel that we have established the right as citizens of the United States and the city of Washington to exercise a voice in the government," Mr. Carruthers, who also is first vice president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, asserted.

He stated Washington, with a population of approximately 500,000, has, within its limits, more people than any of eight States.

"As further evidence," Mr. Carruthers pointed out, "of our right to participate in both Federal and local goverpment, it is found that the District of Columbia pays more Federal income tax than any one of 30 States and more than the combined amount of 10 States, these 10 States having a representation in Congress of 55."

Mr. Carruthers stated the viewpoint of the Forest Hills Citizens Association, approving the council-manager form of government, with reservations, due to a few impending minor changes.

"The subject is under consideration by the federation, and no final action having been taken, so this is not construed as representing the views of the Federation of Citizens Associations," Mr. Carruthers added.

Mrs. Gould Wins $25,000 For 'Framed' Divorce Suit

'Prince Mike Romanoff' and 'Knockout Drops' Figured in Plea.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 8.—Mrs. Wilma E. Gould was awarded $25,000 late today for what she called a conspiracy to place her on the receiving end of a "framed" divorce suit.

The judgment was returned by a Supreme Court jury against Mrs. Gould's brother-in-law, Norman J. Gould; Elwood Kemp, jr., an attorney, Gerard Luisi, and the Luisi Investigating Co., a private detective agency.

Mrs. Gould, whose husband, Edward B. Gould, was committed to an institution before his divorce suit came to trial, smiled happily when the verdict was announced and said she was "very pleased" with the amount of damages.

She had sued for $500,000 but her attorney suggested in his closing plea to the jury that $50,000 would be sufficient.

Mrs. Gould charged that Harry F. Gerguson, otherwise known as "Prince Mike" Romanoff, helped manufacture divorce evidence against her by putting her to bed in his appartment after slipping "knockout drops" into her coffee.

Defense counsel moved unsuccessfully to have the verdict set aside as excessive, and then obtained a 30-day stay to prepare an appeal.

Mrs. Gould, who denied testimony by defense witnesses that she had been an inmate of disreputable houses before her marriage, said she would return to her dressmaking studio.

Minnesota House Gets Old-Age Pension Bill

St. Paul, March 8 (AP).—The first step toward enactment of social legislation advocated by Gov. Floyd B. Olson was taken today when the Minnesota House committee on public welfare sent to the House without recommendation a State-wide old-age pension bill.

The bill would authorize monthly payments of $45 to each person eligible who was 65 years old or more. The bill anticipates Federal aid and provides for the cost to be borne one-third by the State, one-third by the counties, and one-third by the Federal Government.

Code for Brewers Upheld by Court

Missouri Judge Sustains Ban on Retail Aid.

By the Associated Press.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 8.—Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis today upheld in general the brewing industry's NRA code.

The jurist overruled a motion by the M. K. Goetz Brewing Co. and the Goetz Sales Co., its subsidiary, to dismiss an order of the Government restraining the companies from lending beer-dispensing fixtures or money to retailers of Goetz beer.

Judge Otis held, on the other hand, it is "gravely to be doubted whether the lending of money by defendants to a retail dealer, even one in another State, and the furnishing of equipment by the defendants of retail dealers" are either unfair competition or constitute any part of or directly affect interstate commerce.

Goetz's counsel had attacked the code as an unauthorized delegation of powers to the President by Congress. The Government alleges this lending of fixtures is an obstruction in interstate commerce.
